FOREWORD

Rapidly changing technology over the past two or three decades has had great impact on the field of genealogy. The earliest development occurred when typesetting gave way to offset printing, making it economically feasible for almost anyone to publish. At first, computers offered only a way to do the typesetting at home or in the office, with ever–increasing capabilities for more professional results. As recently as twelve years ago, the best option available for "desktop publishing" was the daisy–wheel printer, which necessitated changing wheels for various type faces, and made italics in the middle of a line impossible. The advent of laser printers at reasonable prices not long after that solved such problems and made producing good camera-ready copy easy.

Then database programs for genealogy burst onto the market, providing an opportunity that soon became a major headache for editors of genealogical journals. Suddenly everyone was putting all his/her ancestral names into something like Roots I or Family Tree Maker or Reunion (only a few of many available programs), and it was possible to search in various fields to extract related information. Although unquestionably useful for such purposes, these programs did not – and still do not and probably never will – produce the sort of good genealogical writing that shows the presence of a selective and analytical mind behind it. Convincing the proud parent of material produced in this way that his/her article falls short has become a tiresome but increasingly necessary effort.

It is, therefore, with real pleasure that the Society presents a book that demonstrates the full use of computer technology without stumbling over its shortcomings. David Kruger's Jonathan Watson of Dover, New Hampshire, is truly remarkable in the way it combines the best of both worlds, merging classic standards of thorough genealogical research with the latest capability in computer data gathering and word–processing. The author has left no stone unturned in his efforts to find every related Watson and to solve every problem involving a Watson, and he has been unstinting in the amount of pondering, sifting, and weighing necessary in the production of a full family study. On the other hand, he has taken advantage of computer database capability, with a self–written program, to ensure that no bit of evidence, however, small, was lost or separated from the individual to which it applies.

Working with Mr. Kruger provided a special editorial challenge. If we were to include every land transaction, court record, and census, the text would be overburdened and unreadable. However, the thoroughness with which the author had collected such records was clearly superior, and it seemed irresponsible to withhold information that could prevent the reinvention of a wheel by future researchers. Computer technology provided a solution to the dilemma. Editorial suggestions were made, Mr. Kruger considered the questions, and found ways to present all of the background information without destroying the flow of the genealogical accounts. Using tables for census data, and set–off chronological sections for deeds and court records, he made it feasible to include absolutely everything.

This work does, therefore, meld the old and the new in a way that has not been done in a family genealogy before. All the capabilities of the computer, from data collection to printing camera–ready copy, have been used to advantage by an author whose expertise as a genealogical researcher and clear analytical thinker lights up the information he presents. Athletes break records; genealogists set standards. In Jonathan Watson of Dover, New Hampshire, David Kruger has set a new standard for the family genealogy.

PREFACE

INTRODUCTION

In 1969, when I was helping the family settle the estate of my mother's brother Watson Clark Adams, we came upon a family tree that he had assembled. As I showed interest in it, the family gave it to me. Over the next few years I periodically added a little to it here and there. By the late 1970s most of it was filled out to eight generations on my mother's side, and much of it to ten. However, there was a glaring hole beginning in the sixth generation with the parentage of her great-great-grandfather, William Watson of Pittsfield, New Hampshire.

For the next twenty years I collected information on the Watsons, first in New Hampshire, and then in all New England, to ascertain William's lineage. At various times I was sure that I had uncovered enough "proof" for correct placement of William within one of the several possible Watson families of New Hampshire, but each time more data shed new doubt. Only after my retirement in 1996 from a career in banking was I able to devote enough time to concentrate on solving the question. This study led to the article "The Identity of Deborah Cushing's First Husband – (not David, not Daniel) – Jonathan Watson," in the January 1998 issue of The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, 152:25–35. Now, satisfied that the lineage is correct, I am presenting this book for the descendants of Jonathan Watson, the progenitor of this American line, first noted in Dover, New Hampshire, in 1672.

During years of research, material was collected on more than 25,000 people, over 10,000 in New England with the surname Watson. The principal lines settled before the nineteenth century are apparently unrelated in America, with the possible exception of Robert (of Windsor) and John (of Hartford) who may have been brothers:

Jonathan Watson (1650?–1714), Dover, New Hampshire.
John Watson (1640?–1684), Rowley/Bradford, Massachusetts.
John Watson (1650?–1710), Salisbury, Massachusetts.
Nathan Watson (1729–1821), Nottingham, New Hampshire.
John Watson (1753–1823), Taunton, Massachusetts/Richmond, Maine.
Isaac Watson (1776–1853), Glenburn, Maine.
George Watson (1603–1689), Plymouth, Massachusetts.
Robert Watson (1605?–1689), Windsor, Connecticut.
John Watson (1615?–1650), Hartford, Connecticut.
John Watson (1619–1711), Cambridge, Massachusetts.
Matthew Watson (1664?–1720), Leicester, Massachusetts.
John Watson (1675–1769), Brookfield, Massachusetts.
John Watson (1646?–1729), South Kingstown, Rhode Island.
Robert Watson (1750?–1804), Gloucester, Massachusetts.

The first six families listed above are largely in New Hampshire and Maine. Material on the first, presented in this book, represents about one tenth of my accumulated information. The next two are unconnected New Hampshire Watson families, each of similar size to the first. I have plans to publish genealogies of each. The families of Nathan (of Nottingham), John (of Taunton/Richmond), Isaac (of Glenburn), John (of Cambridge), John (of Brookfield), and Robert (of Gloucester) are each considerably smaller, but have not yet been treated well in print, if at all. The families of George (of Plymouth), Robert (of Windsor), John (of Hartford), Matthew (of Leicester), and John (of South Kingstown) can all be found in print, each of the last four being the subject of full-length books. Even so, my research has uncovered significant additional material on each of those families that might eventually warrant publishing addenda.

Scope of Presentation

The original plan for this book was to complete the family from the 1670s through individuals found in the 1900 federal census; this has been largely accomplished. Watson daughters with progeny are carried forward to their children, with spouses, but subsequent generations are not included. In this process, I collected considerable further information on more recent Watson generations; therefore, I decided to publish all that was in hand, even beyond 1900. However, there are doubtless many more Watson twentieth–century descendants not included. Even so, there are here 2,400 descendants of Jonathan Watson of Dover: 1,500 with surname Watson (including adopted children and children of unmarried Watson daughters who carry the name forward) and 900 first–generation children of Watson daughters carrying different surnames.

Presentation Format

This book is arranged in Register Format, with only those individuals carried forward being assigned a number. Although genealogical convention dictates that individuals without progeny are not carried forward, eight Watsons in this book are treated further since the amount of data was sufficient enough, in the compiler's opinion, to add context to the overall fabric of the family.

Census data and tax inventories have been summarized and set off in more than 500 boxes within the text to make the information available without interrupting the flow of presentation. More than 1,200 real estate transactions and court cases have been excerpted and included within the text in a format designed to give full context, yet in abbreviated detail.

The text is fully footnoted, with the intention of giving the reader as complete a documentation of sources as possible, without, I hope, cluttering it.

SCOPE OF RESEARCH

The following sources have been fully searched for all Watson entries:

Town and vital records:
- New Hampshire:
  - All early town records, 1600s–1835+/-.
  - State-wide birth records, early–1900.
  - State-wide marriage, death, and divorce records, early–1937.
  - All town annual reports, 1887–1935.
- Maine:
  - State-wide birth, marriage, and death records, early–1935.
- Massachusetts:
  - All published town vital records, early–1850.
  - State-wide birth and marriage records, 1841–1905.
  - State-wide death records, 1841–1960.
- Vermont:
  - State-wide birth, marriage, and death records, early–1935.

Census records:
- New Hampshire and Maine:
  - All federal censuses, 1790–1900, 1920.
- Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Vermont:
  - All federal censuses, 1790–1900.
  - Massachusetts state censuses, 1855, 1865.
- New York:
  - Federal censuses, 1790–1860, 1880, 1900.
- All Other States:
  - Federal censuses, 1880, 1900.

Real estate records:
- New Hampshire:
  - Belknap and Carroll Counties, 1840–1865.
  - Merrimack County, 1823–1865.
  - Rockingham County, 1630–1865.
  - Strafford County, 1773–1865.
- Maine:
  - York County, 1642–1850.
  - Washington County, 1784–1850.

Probate records:
- New Hampshire:
  - Provincial, 1659–1770.
  - Belknap County, 1840–1900.
  - Merrimack County, 1823–1900.
  - Rockingham County, 1771–1900.
  - Strafford County, 1773–1900.

Maine:
York County, 1687–1850.
Washington County, 1785–1850.
Court records:
New Hampshire:
Provincial (Inferior and Superior), 1659–1772.
Strafford County, 1772–1783.
Pension records:
Revolutionary War.
Civil War (1866–1934).

In addition, these same sources have been consulted for other surnames allied with the Watson family, and many other state, county, and local records have been searched for specific individuals. Numerous secondary sources, such as family genealogies and town and county histories, have also been searched. Footnotes and Appendix C, the bibliography, give the full extent of research.

Economic Context

As the American, especially New England, economy developed over the last three centuries from agrarian to manufacturing to service, so has this family's participation in it changed. In the first five generations, 75% of the Watsons were farmers; the rest were spread evenly in various trades: tanners, blacksmiths, tailors, shoemakers, carpenters, and masons, with an occasional barber, printer, merchant, or mariner. Nearly 60% of the sixth generation were still farmers, but shoemakers and merchants were each more than 10%. By the seventh generation, farming employed only 25%, while 20% were merchants or salesmen and another 20% were factory or shoe workers. The last generations show less than 20% as farmers and continued concentrations of merchants and factory laborers.

Geographic Context

Appendix A contains a chronological listing of residence by town, with over 10,000 entries. Although 47 states are included (lacking only New Mexico, South Dakota, and Wyoming), it is immediately apparent that two–thirds of all residences for this family are concentrated in New Hampshire and Maine. When Massachusetts (predominantly the eastern quarter) is added, a full five–sixths of the family is accounted for.

Migration was overwhelmingly driven by economic factors. Most of those who moved were farmers who needed land. The migration pattern was predominantly from Strafford County, New Hampshire, north to towns east of Lake Winnipesaukee, and into Maine. Those who removed to eastern Massachusetts were largely tradesmen and factory workers. Only a few Watsons left New England for points west. One clear exception was Lorenzo Dow[7] Watson (No. 359) whose wanderlust took him to Utah, where he settled in Utah, leading to the fourth largest state concentration.

New Hampshire	40%	Maine	27%

Historical Context

Many Watsons, especially those in the early generations, served their towns, but generally in lesser offices. Only rarely were they among the prominent citizens elected selectman or mayor. Just two, Dudley[4] Watson (No. 43) and Elihu Hayes[6] Watson (No. 189), sought office above the town level. Four descendants served in the colonial wars, 20 in the Revolution (there were no Loyalists in the family), and nine in the War of 1812 – all enlisted soldiers. In the Civil War, 30 served, all for the Union from New Hampshire, Maine, or Massachusetts; five died in the war, three from battle wounds, two from disease. Only one, David[7] Watson (No. 356), was a commissioned officer, a U.S. Navy surgeon. In World War II, John E.[9] Watson (No. 465, i.) was a U.S. Navy seaman on shore–leave when he had the fatal misfortune to be in the Coconut Grove Club in Boston the night it burned.

In many ways this is a very unremarkable family with few individuals who stand out in the community. Nonetheless, these Watsons have been a part of the solid, if silent, majority in New England, making a life for their families from the land and from their various trades.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

In the publication phase of this book, the compiler is indebted to:

Jane Fletcher Fiske, Editor of The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, for her patient and thorough editorial assistance, rendered to this first–time author. Her suggestions on style, format, and content were most helpful. I benefited greatly from her long editorial experience.

D. Brenton Simons, Editorial Director of the Newbury Street Press, for his technical expertise in assembling this book.

David March, Editorial and Production Assistant of the Register, for his close attention to every small detail in proofreading – if typing errors remain, it is my failure to correct what he had pointed out.

Thomas Kozachek, Editor of the Newbury Street Press, for his work on layout and illustrations, especially the dropline charts.

Richard Stitt for his thorough indexing.

During the years of research, also recognized is the assistance given by:

The consistently helpful staff at several libraries: the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston; the Family History Library in Salt Lake City; the Exeter [N.H.] Public Library; the Dover [N.H.] Public Library; and the New Hampshire State Library in Concord.

The 1970 publication Lorenzo Dow Watson as a valuable source for several lines outside New England.

J. Hiram[10] Watson for his contribution of considerable information on current generations, as well as family photographs.

Stanley Watson Arnold for his generosity in sharing the records of Adah Eliza[8] Watson.

Many others who have given bits and pieces over the years.

FIRST GENERATION

1. JONATHAN[1] WATSON was born about 1650. He probably emigrated from Great Britain as a young man in the late 1660s or early 1670s; he is first noted in Dover, New Hampshire, in 1672, and he lived there for the rest of his life at the Upper Neck. He died during 1714,[1] after selling his land to his wife on 29 August,[2] in Dover.

While the Hayes genealogy states that Jonathan was said to be descended from George[2] (Robert[1]) Watson of Plymouth, Massachusetts,[3] no evidence has been found to corroborate the supposition, and such a relationship is highly doubtful. Furthermore, Robert Charles Anderson rejects outright the existence of this Robert Watson.[4] The compiler of this volume has concentrated on the American descendants of Jonathan Watson and has done no research into his ancestry, which probably is in the British Isles.

He married, first, in Exeter, New Hampshire, about 1675,[5] ABIGAIL[3] DUDLEY (Samuel[2], Thomas[1], Roger[A]), who was born there about 1655, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (____) Dudley. She died about 1678 in Dover.[6]

Jonathan married, second, in Dover, by December 1678, ELIZABETH BEARD, who was born there about 1655, daughter of Thomas and Mary (____) Beard. As Elizabeth Watson, she was willed £10, to be paid within two years, by her father Thomas Beard of Dover on 16 December 1678.[7] She died sometime after 13 September 1721, when she granted her property to her sons,[8] and before 1736,[9] probably in Dover.

Jonathan is first noted in Dover on 29 January 1672, when he appeared as a witness, with John Tuttle, to a deed recorded between John Reyner and Job Clements.[10] He appears on the Dover tax list of 14 February 1675/6[11]; his Cocheco province rates for 1680 were 1*s* 7*d*, almost the lowest of all residents, indicating modest holdings[12]; in June 1681 his rates for Cocheco at 3*s* 6*d* were still nearly the lowest,[13] as were those for Dover on 9 May 1682 at 7*s* 8*d*[14]; and he was again on the Cocheco tax list of 25 August 1684.[15] Further showing his modest beginnings in New Hampshire is the 1684 listing of indebtedness: he owed £7 9*s* 2*d*, almost the highest of all residents.[16] Early court records show that he was a witness, at Portsmouth 25 June 1678, in a case against John Waldron, "living in Chocheza [Cocheco]," for drinking and idling,[17] and he is again mentioned in a deposition 25 September 1678.[18] Two years later he was more directly involved, as "Jonathan Watson for selling beare appearing & y^{e} witnesses not appearing is referred to next Court," at Portsmouth on 7 December 1680.[19] At that next session, held in Dover 7 June 1681, "Jos: Beard [his brother–in–law] being som'ond to y^{e} Last Court to give in his testimony aboute Jonathan Watson selling drink wth out Licence & not appearing refer'd to this where now appearing & refusing to give his evidence The Court sentence him to pay a fine of 10*s* & Jonathan Watson to be ffree."[20] He was a juror 8 March 1693/4 in Portsmouth.[21] He was again a witness in 1702[22] and also witnessed the will of Thomas Hanson of Dover 24 February 1710 and 6 March 1710.[23]

The other references to Jonathan in Dover town records involve land grants. On 19 March 1693/4 20 acres at Fore River, First Crook Neck,[24] on 11 April 1694 20 acres at Oak Swamp,[25] and on 29 September 1713 30 acres more at Oak Swamp were set off to him.[26] On 8 May 1721 the twenty acres granted in 1693/4 to Jonathan, "late of Dover," were set off to Nathaniel Young as purchaser[27]; and on 23 March 1721/2 some of a 40–acre grant was purchased by [son–in–law] Eleazer Young.[28] These grants, with the exception of the discrepancy in acreage (30 or 40) for the last, correspond well with recorded deeds.

Real Estate Transactions of Jonathan Watson:

1699, Oct. 16: he of Dover with wife Elizabeth sold 3a. on Dover Neck to Thomas Whitehouse for £3 15*s*; both signed, and he acknowledged 17 July 1712 [Rockingham Deeds, 14:550].

1713, May 21: as "Senior," and husbandman of Dover, he sold 20a. on the river above Pine Point, Dover, granted by the town 2 April 1694, to Nathaniel Young for £3 10*s*; he signed by mark "W"; witnesses acknowledged Sept. 1735 [Rockingham Deeds, 21:559].

Nov. 7: he of Dover sold 20a. in Oak Swamp, Dover, granted by the town 11 April 1694, to William Twombly for £15; eldest son David Watson and widow Elizabeth Watson acknowledged 16 May 1720 [Rockingham Deeds, 11:340].

1714, Aug. 29: as yeoman of the "Cochesha" section of Dover, he sold his land to "Elizath my beloved wife" for "love, good will and affection" [Rockingham Deeds, 10:357].

1721, Sept. 13: Widow Elizabeth Watson granted the 30+a., house, barns, cattle, etc., received from her husband, to sons David Watson, William Watson, and Isaac Watson for "love, goodwill & affection" [Rockingham Deeds, 16:246].

1723, Feb. 21: 30a. of the grant to Jonathan were sold to son–in–law Eleazer Young by son David Watson; the lines had been laid out 23 March 1721, well after his death, on the 40a. grant "on y^{e} West End of Barbados woods" (with "JW" marked on trees at each corner), and recorded 20 May 1740 [Rockingham Deeds, 24:457; 94:207].

The year of his death as 1714 was stated in a deposition given by his son–in–law Joseph Thresher on 21 August 1736, describing him as a tanner of Dover; his widow was also deceased by 1736. This record names Jonathan's heirs as children ii. through ix. below, in that order, but does not name Samuel Watson.[29]

i. SAMUEL[2] WATSON, b. ca. 1678 in Dover, N.H.; m. MARY ____; he was not named as a 1714 heir of Jonathan in his brother–in–law's 1736 deposition[30]; his half brother David Watson was Jonathan's "eldest son," attesting to a deed on 16 May 1720, indicating that Samuel was no longer resident in the Dover area or, more likely, that he was deceased.[31] "Random notes for Watson Genealogy,"[32] doubtless written by the librarian of the Portland Public Library and of the Maine Historical Society at the time, Stephen Marion[6] Watson [No. 325], states that "Samuel[2] had wife Mary, and child Winthrop[3], born, January 11, 1723, in Dover; there were probably others." Further research shows that Winthrop[3] [No. 11] was in fact a son of Samuel's half brother David; whether there were "probably others" remains unproved, a century after S. M. Watson's investigations.

SECOND GENERATION

2. DAVID[2] WATSON (Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [1] and Elizabeth (Beard) Watson, was born about 1680 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died, probably in Dover, after 23 May 1743, his last recorded court action,[38] and before 18 August 1743, when he is mentioned in a deed as deceased.[39]

He married in Dover, about 1712, MARY[4] DUDLEY (Samuel[3-2], Thomas[1], Roger[A]), who was born about 1690 in Exeter, New Hampshire, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Thing) Dudley.[40] She died, probably in Exeter, after 13 April 1758, when she was named in her brother's will.[41]

David Watson, a farmer, weaver, and innholder, resided in Dover for his entire life, from 1680 to 1743, and was listed there in the 1732 New Hampshire census.[42] His homestead was in the Cocheco section of town, on the road to Barrington; his inn and tavern were near the center of town at Silver and Pleasant [now Central Avenue] Streets, by the Quaker meeting house.[43]

Real Estate Transactions of David Watson:

1716, March 31: as yeoman of Dover, he bought 2 tracts of land at Cocheco, Dover, from Nathaniel Stephens of Exeter for £66 [Rockingham Deeds, 10:90].

1719, Oct. 16: as weaver of Dover with wife Mary, he sold 100a. (half the grant to William Pomfret above Cocheco) to Ephraim Wentworth for £36; he signed his name, Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 21:206].

1721, Sept. 13: as yeoman of Dover, along with brothers William and Isaac, he received 15 of the 30a. granted to his father Jonathan by the town of Dover, with the house, barn, cattle, etc., from his mother Elizabeth Watson for "love, goodwill & affection" [Rockingham Deeds, 16:246].

Dec. 13: he of Dover sold the 10a., originally a town grant, received from his father through his mother, to John Ham for £10, and acknowledged 15 Dec. 1727 [Rockingham Deeds, 16:323].

1722, May 10: with James and Samuel Heard, he was an original proprietor of Lot 109, Rochester, N.H. [44].

1723, Feb. 21: with wife Mary, he sold 30a. of the 40a. granted to his father Jonathan, bordering on land of Pomfret Whitehouse, "on y^e^ West End of Barbados woods" (with "JW" marked on trees at each corner), to brother–in–law Eleazer Young for £11 10*s*; property lines were laid out 23 March 1723, and he acknowledged 12 Jan. 1725; [brother] Isaac Watson witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 24:457; 94:207].

1724, March 30: as yeoman of Dover with wife Mary, he sold a 40' x 80' lot on the road to Tole–end in Dover to Ebenezer Varney for £6; he signed his name, Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 20:198].

May 13: as yeoman of Dover, he bought 20a. in Dover from Joseph Twombly for £70 [Rockingham Deeds, 15:415].

July 10: he, of Dover with wife Mary, sold the 20a. in Dover, bought from Joseph Twombly, to [brother] Isaac Watson for £35; he signed his name, Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 19:350].

1729, Feb. 28: he, of Cocheco, Dover, with "Mr. Heard," sold land in Lot 109, Division 1, Rochester, to John Downing for £35 [Rockingham Deeds, 34:123].

July 18: he of Dover sold his one-third share of Lot 109, Rochester, to John Downing for £10 [Rockingham Deeds, 16:457].

1732, March 28: as innholder of Dover, he bought 142a. in Dover from Richard Waldron of Portsmouth [Rockingham Deeds, 24:522].

1733, Nov. 19: as husbandman of Dover, he sold 10a. of the 40a. laid out to his father Jonathan Watson to his brother Isaac Watson for £15; Jonathan Cushing [future father–in–law of son Jonathan Watson and of daughter Mary Watson] witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 27:91].

1733/4, Jan. 3: as husbandman of Dover, he sold a 40' x 80' lot (bought from Ebenezer Downs) to Joseph Hanson Jr. for £15 [Rockingham Deeds, 20:52].

1734, April 3: as husbandman of Dover with wife Mary, he sold a 212' x 40' lot with house, inherited by his wife, to John Causey and Otis Pinkham for £20; he signed his name and Mary marked by "X"; Jonathan Cushing [future father–in–law of son Jonathan Watson and of daughter Mary Watson] and Elizabeth Whitehouse witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 21:342].

Sept. 19: in connection with a transaction, he, "of full age," deposed that he remembered back 45 or 46 yrs. [1688–1689] that there was a cart path on a lot of land in Cocheco, and that in June 1734 "Some Body run a fence a Cross it" [Rockingham Deeds, 20:326].

Nov. 16: as husbandman of Dover, he sold 20a. (two–thirds of Lot 385, Division 1, Dover) to Paul Gile[s] for £20 [Rockingham Deeds, 21:183].

1736, July 23: as yeoman of Dover, he gave half of the 142a. in Dover bought from Richard Waldron, retaining pasture rights, "for y^e^ love goodwill & affection towards my son Dudley" and sold 4a. contiguous for £26, to son Dudley Watson; he acknowledged 18 Oct. 1738; this land is at Tole–end on the Cocheco River, fifth falls [Strafford Deeds[45], 1:5].

Dec. 7: as husbandman of Dover with wife Mary, he sold 10a. in Dover (bought from Ebenezer Downs) to Ichabod Canney for £18 15s; [son] Jonathan Watson witnessed; he signed his name, Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 82:177].

45. Strafford County [N.H.] Deeds, County Court House, Dover, N.H. [hereinafter Strafford Deeds], 1:5.

1737, Aug. 2: as husbandman of Dover with wife Mary, he sold a house lot in the north-east corner of the 10a. in Dover bought from Ebenezer Downs, to Ebenezer Smith for £30 and acknowledged 31 Dec. 1739; he signed his name and Mary marked by "X"; Jonathan Cushing [future father–in–law of son Jonathan Watson and of daughter Mary Watson] witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 24:488].

1738, May 20: as husbandman of Dover, he sold his pasture rights to 5a. [see deed of 7/23/1736 above] to son Dudley Watson for £5 [Rockingham Deeds, 24:523].

1741, Oct. 1: as husbandman of Dover, he sold 20a. in Lot 111, Division 2, Rochester, to Joseph Hanson, Jr. for £20; witnesses acknowledged 7 Sept. 1760, he then being deceased [Rockingham Deeds, 67:170].

1747, May 5: widow Mary Watson, signing by "X," with sons Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, sold 18a. in Dover on the south side of the road from Cocheco to Littleworth, west of Moses Wingate's homestead and house (by then on land bought from David Watson), to Samuel Hanson for £630 [Rockingham Deeds, 35:153].

May 22: widow Mary Watson, signing by "X," with sons Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, sold 10a. at Cocheco to [David's brother] Isaac Watson, bordering his other land, for £418 O.T.; acknowledged in Exeter on 17 April 1752 [Rockingham Deeds, 53:230].

June 9: widow Mary Watson bought a third of 167a. in Exeter for her use during her lifetime from sons Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson for £500 [Rockingham Deeds, 33:339].

Oct. 20: widow Mary Watson, signing by "X," with children Dudley, Sarah, Mary, and Mercy, relinquished her claim to 9a. in Dover to sons Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson; this land was at the corner of Silver and Pleasant [now Central Avenue] Streets, and probably the site of David Watson's inn and tavern [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

1752, April 2: widow Mary Watson, signing by "X," with sons Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, sold 96½a. at Beech Hill, Exeter, to Israel Gilman for £5,000 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 40:240].

David Watson in Court Records:

1707/8, Feb.: David Watson entered a complaint against Edward Evans and Timothy Carle, charging that they "had beaten & abused him at y^{e} [garrison] house of Jn^{o} Hayes this evening," 3 Feb. 1707/8; Evans was returned by the constable 17 Feb. 1707/8, but Carle was "not to be found" [N.H. Court Files, 17509].

1715, March 5: David Watson and [his brother] Jonathan Watson failed to appear in a meeting in Newington, N.H. [N.H. Court Files, 17085].

1724, May 1: as constable, David Watson entered a complaint against James Guppey charging that Guppey was discouraging the collection of town rates on Saturday, 25 April 1724; Guppey was fined £8 [N.H. Court Files, 20763].

May 1: as constable, David Watson entered a complaint against Benjamin Varney charging that Varney openly opposed the collection of town rates and threatened to do bodily harm and to "strike my damn'd long nose & pay me that way ... & threatened to drubb me," on Saturday, 25 April 1724; Varney was found guilty [N.H. Court Files, 21402].

1726/7, March 14: David Watson entered a complaint charging that "John Ham hath sold strong Drink by small measurs"; David was doubtless protecting his franchise as innkeeper with this action [N.H. Court Files, 11975].

1731, June 11: David Watson, innholder of Dover, entered a complaint charging that John Gage, mariner and licensed retailer, on 15 May 1731 sold "mixt liquor or Drink" at his house; he pleaded not guilty but was found guilty and fined £5, a third to go to the "informer"; Gage appealed, and the verdict was overturned 16 Aug. 1731 [N.H. Court Files, 21401].

June 21: David Watson, innholder of Dover, entered a complaint charging that William Welland defamed and libeled him in connection with the case against John Gage; Welland was found guilty, was fined 20*s* on 5 Aug. 1731, and appealed [N.H. Court Files, 21403].

1733, Aug. 17: John Tebbets sued David Watson, yeoman of Dover, for £10 to collect an overdue account of £3 10*s* for the purchase of a mill saw in 1731/2; the sheriff attached his hat, valued at 5*s* [N.H. Court Files, 12321].

March 13: Stephen Greenleaf sued David Watson, yeoman of Dover, for £20 to collect an overdue account for the 31 Aug. 1731 purchase of a barrel of sugar [N.H. Court Files, 14634].

May 15: David Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Nathaniel Young for £23 to collect an overdue debt of £10 17*s* 9*d*, dated 10 Dec. 1729 [N.H. Court Files, 12631].

May 22: David Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Nathaniel Young for £10 to collect an overdue account of £3 18*s* 9*d* for the purchase of rum and "mixt Liquor" in Dec. 1729; Young had partially paid by three days' work [N.H. Court Files, 12630].

Nov. 15, and again 1734, Nov. 5: Stephen Greenleaf sued David Watson, yeoman and innholder of Dover, for £30 to collect £11 14*s* 9*d* as 1732 and 1733 excise tax on 401 gallons of rum and 45 gallons of wine; Watson claimed payment had been made, and the jury agreed, 5 Dec. 1734 [N.H. Court Files, 19226; 20835]; after a lengthy legal wrangle over court costs, a jury in 1737 (with John Gage as foreman) found for him and awarded costs from Greenleaf.[46]

1736, July 27: David Watson, yeoman of Dover, sued John Tebbets 4th for £14 to collect an overdue debt of 20 Jan. 1735/6 for 1,700 feet of pine board not delivered by 10 May; he received a judgment of £5 19*s* and costs in Sept. 1736 and execution on 16 March 1736/7 [N.H. Court Files, 12624].

Aug. 21: his brother–in–law Joseph Thresher named David Watson as a son and heir of Jonathan Watson in a suit against his brother Isaac Watson [N.H. Court Files, 12380].

1738, May 16: David Watson, yeoman of Dover, sued Paul Giles for £13 to collect an overdue account of £6 16*s* 4*d*, for drink and pasturing oxen; Giles had paid a third by work, cash, and pine boards [N.H. Court Files, 17593].

May 16: David Watson, yeoman of Dover, sued Edmund Layne for £50 to collect an overdue account, "work Done by my Daughter Mercy ... [her] lodging and diet" for 152 days (5 July 1737 to 12 May 1738) at 3*s* 6*d* [N.H. Court Files, 21405].

May 23: Richard Hussey and Edmund Layne sued David Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £47 to collect an overdue account; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 2*s* [N.H. Court Files, 14825].

1741, Aug. 13: David Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Cheney Smith, physician, for £130 on a bond of £122 6*s* 4*d*, dated 5 May 1740 [N.H. Court Files, 25782].

1743, May 23: David Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Amos Young for £3 to collect an overdue note of £4 10*s*, dated 18 May 1742 [N.H. Court Files, 28534].

46. New Hampshire Superior Court of Appeals, N.H. Records and Archives Center, Concord, N.H. [hereinafter N.H. Superior Court], 1699–1738:224.

1749, Aug. 18: heirs of David Watson, their father, yeoman, late of Dover, deceased (Dudley Watson, yeoman of Dover, Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, Nathaniel Doe, innholder of Dover with wife Sarah, William Cushing, husbandman of Exeter with wife Mary, and Mercy Watson, singlewoman and spinster of Dover), were all to answer to Ephraim Wentworth, who was sued by Mr. Sheffield over 26a. sold by David Watson 16 Oct. 1719 to Wentworth, and by Wentworth in 1724 to Sheffield [N.H. Court Files, 11674].

David Watson was a constable for Dover from at least 23 August 1718 to 22 July 1727.[47] These records show that David's activities in this office as he attempted to collect taxes did not endear him to citizens in some circles. He was also not afraid to bring court actions to protect his tavern business against real or perceived infringement on his license.

Although he appears quite frequently in real estate and court records, he was not otherwise active in town affairs and appears only rarely. David and his brother–in–law Eleazer Young, "both of full age," deposed 25 July 1721 that 40 acres granted to "Jonathan Watson our father by the town of Dover" were sold to Mr. Clark.[48] He signed a bond for the administrators of the estate of [his cousin] Joseph Beard on 4 December 1723 in Dover.[49] His land was mentioned as next to [brother] Isaac Watson's in March 1732.[50] As late as 1799–1801 David was referred to as a non–resident, original proprietor, along with Samuel and James Heard, of the 230–acre Lot 107, Division 2 (Rochester), Farmington, New Hampshire.[51]

David Watson, with many others in Dover, petitioned the Provincial Court on 15 December 1729 against false entries of land grants.[52] He petitioned the court for a land grant for a new township "lying nigh Winnepissocay Pond," with [his brother] Isaac Watson, [his son] Dudley Watson, and many others on 6 February 1732/3.[53] His 1741 parish rates at Cocheco, were £1 2*s* 11*d*, well within the top quartile of the 166 taxpayers.[54] Mary

3. WILLIAM[2] WATSON (Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [1] and Elizabeth (Beard) Watson, was born about 1682 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, between 23 August 1743, his last court action,[56] and 28 September 1743, when his wife was granted administration on his estate.[57]

He married, first, in Portsmouth, on 24 June 1714, MARTHA (____) ROBINSON,[58] who was born about 1690. She was the widow of Captain John Robinson, who died in 1712, and with whom she had two sons, John and Daniel.[59] She died about 1732, probably in Portsmouth.

William married there, second, after 1733, SARAH (BRIARD) MAINWARING, who was born 2 February 1700/1 in Portsmouth (Newcastle), daughter of Elisha and Abigail (Drew) Briard, and the widow of Thomas Mainwaring, who died 1 October 1733 in Newcastle, New Hampshire.[60] She died there after 4 May 1758.[61] No record of children by this marriage has been found.

He lived in Dover from 1682 until 1714, when he moved to Portsmouth, living there at least to 1720. In 1721 he was resident in "New York" and was not in New Hampshire again to live until 1731, while his wife Martha was resident in Portsmouth by 1729. In 1731 he resettled there for the rest of his life, to 1743, residing on the north side of Craffords Lane. William Watson was a mariner, a sea captain, and for the last twelve years of his life a shopkeeper.

The only recorded real estate transaction involving William was when he, a mariner of New York, along with brothers David and Isaac (both remaining in Dover), received 15 of the 30 acres granted to his father Jonathan by the town of Dover, with the house, barn, cattle, etc., from his mother Elizabeth Watson on 13 September 1721 for "love, goodwill & affection."[62] How he disposed of this share of his father's property does not appear. Other than tax rolls, the only reference to him in town records is his election as constable 25 March 1738, and he hired Charles Gorwood the same day to serve in his place.[63]

William Watson in Court Records:

1714, Aug. 16: in Portsmouth, William Watson refused to aid the sheriff in the arrest of Dorothy Frost [N.H. Court Files, 22073].

1732/3, March 9: William Watson, shopkeeper or mariner of Portsmouth, sued John Martin of Newcastle for £10 to collect an overdue account of £5 5*d* (for the purchase of small household items in Sept. and Oct. 1732) [N.H. Court Files, 12626].

1736, Aug. 21: his brother–in–law Joseph Thresher named William Watson as a son and heir of Jonathan Watson in a suit against his brother Isaac Watson [N.H. Court Files, 12380].

Dec. 22: William Watson, shopkeeper of Portsmouth and signing by "X," sued Mark Nelson for £10 to collect an overdue account of £5 8*s* 11*d* (for the purchase of "4 pr Woomens Shoos," 205 lbs. Beef, and 11 lbs. mutton); he was granted execution and was paid [N.H. Court Files, 12628].

1737/8: William Bridgham sued William Watson, shopkeeper of Portsmouth; the case (Bridgham appealing a £3 judgment to Watson) was heard 20 Jan. 1737/8, and Bridgham was awarded 16*s* and costs [N.H. Court Files, 18794].

1738, May 8: William Watson, shopkeeper of Portsmouth, sued Hannah Banfield for £7 to collect an overdue account of £3 7*s* 2*d* (for the purchase of cloth); she had worked off part of the account at 7*s*/week, 18 March to 12 May 1735; he was granted execution of £2 3*s* 2*d* and costs on 28 June 1738 [N.H. Court Files, 12629].

1742, Nov. 22: William Watson, shopkeeper of Portsmouth and signing "WWatson," sued Mark Nelson for 45*s* to collect an overdue account of £4 4*s* 3*d* (for the purchase of kersey and other cloth); he was granted execution of £1 1*s* ¼*d* on 10 Feb. 1742/3 and again on 4 March 1742/3, after which payment was received [N.H. Court Files, 25783].

1743, Aug. 23: William Watson, shopkeeper of Portsmouth, sued John Lowd for £3 to collect an overdue account of £2 16*s* (for the purchase of cloth, buttons, hat, etc., offset by the delivery of 11 pair of shoes) [N.H. Court Files, 12821].

William's shop in Portsmouth dealt in various dry goods and shoes, as evidenced by the accounts presented in court for collection; on occasion, he also traded in other provisions such as meats. Tax records, above, indicate moderate prosperity over the years, although in 1736 William's rates were fully abated (presumably for inability to pay), and his estate was eventually insolvent. After his absence from Portsmouth in New York during the 1720s, taxes for 1729 and 1730 were in his wife Martha's name, indicating that he was still actively engaged as a sea captain and not regularly present in port. Furthermore, the 1732 New Hampshire census[64] lists Martha in Portsmouth as the head of the household with one male over 16, probably their son, even though by then taxes were again in William's name, as "Captain."

William Watson, a shopkeeper of Portsmouth, died shortly before his wife Sarah was granted administration of his estate on 28 September 1743.[65] Inventory presented at court 25 April 1744 showed assets of £167 15*s* 9½*d*, including £127 5*s* 9½*d* in dry goods from his store; however, claims against the estate totaled £356 2*s* 3½*d*, including notes for £110 to John and Winchester Mannering, at the time Sarah's minor sons by her first husband, and the estate was therefore insolvent.[66] Sarah evidently was left with some means (either from her father or from her first husband), despite William's insolvency, as she sold 14 acres and a house on Great Island (Newcastle) to Abraham Trefethren for £200 O.T. on 8 July 1757,[67] and a quarter of a pew in the Newcastle Meeting House to Mesech Bell, Jr. for £12 O.T. on 4 May 1758.[68]

Children of William and Martha (____) (Robinson) Watson, both born in Portsmouth, N.H.:

13. i. WILLIAM[3] WATSON, b. ca. 1716.
ii. ELIZABETH WATSON, b. ca. 1720; bp. 7 March 1741/2 in Portsmouth.[69]

4. ISAAC[2] WATSON (Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [1] and Elizabeth (Beard) Watson, was born about 1686 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died there shortly before 26 April 1753, when administration of his estate was granted.[70]

He married, first, in Dover, about 1723, LILLIAS[4] CHESLEY (Samuel[3], Philip[2-1]), who was born about 1695 in Dover, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Smith) Chesley.[71] She died there about 1741.

Isaac married, second, in Dover, about 1741, JOANNA ____, who was born about 1720, probably in Dover, where she died 28 October 1784.[72]

Isaac, a farmer who also dealt extensively in lumber, resided in the Cocheco section of Dover along the river, for his entire life, from 1686 to 1753, and was listed there in the 1732 New Hampshire census; his widow Joanna lived there to her death in 1784.

Isaac and his son Samuel Watson were in "y[e] Second foot Company of Dover, July the 24, 1740."[73]

1780, March 30: Joanna Watson, a widow of Dover signing by "X," sold a one–thirteenth share from her dower and part of her "late [step] son John['s]" 5a. on the road from the Cocheco Meeting House to Littleworth to Otis Baker for £30; [stepson] William Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 2:505].

March 30: Joanna Watson sold a one–thirteenth dower share of 25a. in Dover and part of her (deceased) [step]son John Watson's 5a. on the road from the Cocheco Meeting House to Littleworth, which [stepson] "Benjamin [Watson] now improves," to [stepson] William Watson for £150; Joanna Watson retained life tenancy [Strafford Deeds, 2:505; 19:269].

Isaac Watson in Court Records:

1733, July 26: Isaac Watson, laborer of Dover, sued Joseph Hall, Jr., alleging that Hall had entered Watson's land at "Barbadoes" in Dover during Feb. 1733 and had cut down 20 hemlocks of more than one foot in diameter [N.H. Court Files, 14884].

Aug. 15: Joseph Hall sued Isaac Watson, laborer of Dover, for £10 to collect an overdue debt for 15 days' labor, £3 15*s*, and use of his oxen during Jan. 1733; the sheriff attached his hat, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 13682].

1736, Aug. 21: his brother–in–law Joseph Thresher sued Isaac Watson, yeoman of Dover, for £70 over the division among Jonathan Watson's heirs (all named) of 30a. at Oak Swamp, Dover (widow and mother Mary Watson's one–ninth share of land owned by father Jonathan Watson); the sheriff attached his ax, valued at 3*s*; also suing was John Ham, on whose account the sheriff attached one of Isaac's chairs, valued at 2*s* [N.H. Court Files, 12380].

Aug. 18: Isaac Watson, yeoman, with his wife Lillias, and with Timothy Hanson and his wife Kezia, sued Samuel Emerson and Timothy Emerson for £600, alleging illegal entry to 20a. and 10a. in Durham (land of Lillias' and Kezia's father Samuel Chesley, who died in 1707, leaving widow Elizabeth); Chesley's estate inventory was given; the plaintiffs were granted £200 damages on 22 May 1738, title to and possession of six–eighths of two–thirds of the land [N.H. Court Files, 18305].

1754, Nov. 7: widow Joanna Watson and [son] Joseph Watson, both of Dover, administrators of the estate of Isaac Watson, yeoman, intestate, sued Hezekiah Jenness of Hampton Falls for £10 to collect an overdue note of £22 10*s*, dated 14 May 1752 [N.H. Court Files, 9277].

All references to Isaac Watson in town records relate to land grants and taxes. During March 1732, 15 acres next to [his brother] David Watson's were laid out to him.[74] In May 1734, ten acres bought previously from Thomas Downs were laid out by the town.[75] At his request, ten acres bought from William Weymouth near Oak Swamp, and next to his other land, were laid out on 23 November 1735.[76] On 30 March 1739, one acre of common land granted to him and others 8 July 1734 was laid out to Robert Hanson.[77] He was an original proprietor of Canterbury, New Hampshire, on 20 May 1727, with the 40–acre Lot 79 drawn to his right[78]; this lot was finally laid out on 11 April 1781; at a meeting in Durham on 15 March 1743/4 he was taxed 10*s*.[79] On 2 August 1750 the 100–acre Lot 105 in Canterbury was laid out and drawn to him; this lot continued to carry his name as original proprietor at least to 1792, when Lot 174, Division 4, was laid out in his name, even though Thomas Clough paid £177 for Lot 105 on 25 April 1764.[80] Lot 105 eventually was included in the formation of the town of Loudon (1773), where his name continued to be attached until 1806.[81]

He was also a grantee of Middleton, New Hampshire, on 27 April 1749, drawing Lot 93 on 11 April 1750. By 28 December 1769 Hezekiah

Varney had settled with his family on Isaac Watson's original lot, had cleared three acres, felled two more, and had constructed a house but no barn; the property was assessed £10 for improvements.[82]

Isaac Watson, with his brother David Watson, nephew Dudley Watson and many others, on 6 February 1732/3 petitioned the Provincial Court for a land grant for a new township "lying nigh Winnepissocay Pond."[83] His parish rates for 1741, at Cocheco, were £1 11*s* 1*d*, well within the top quartile of the 166 taxpayers.[84] He was occasionally involved with neighbors and friends, as when he witnessed the will of Richard Scammon of Dover 20 December 1723.[85]

His widow Joanna Watson and his son Joseph Watson were granted administration of his estate on 26 April 1753.[86] On 2 June 1753, the inventory showed a substantial estate of £9,258 19*s* 3*d*, with two pages of detail. Real estate (£7,625 — 83% of the total) included his house and barn (£850), 80–acre homestead (£4,000), two acres and house [of brother David] where [nephews] "Jon^a^ & Winthrop Watson" live (£700), 20 acres on the west side of the road to Littleworth (£1,200), 136 acres in Division 2, Rochester (£675), and four acres on the south side of the road near [nephew] Dudley Watson's (£200). His clothing, kitchen utensils, furniture, bedding and linens, "1 old large Bible," tools, cart, saddle and bridles, etc., were valued at £550 9*s* 3*d*. Livestock (£715) included 12 sheep, ten lambs, a horse and colt, a yoke of oxen and a yoke of steers, four cows and three calves, two heifers and four yearlings, a young bull, and seven swine. Assets involving his lumbering business (£302 10*s*) were for a log road, mill logs, 5,950 feet of boards due from various people, as well as notes for 4,500 feet of boards, 1,600 shingles, and oak timbers sold and delivered since his death. "Broad Cloathe and trimmings to his son Jonathan Watson," £16, and "Sundry Things in his Daughter Keziahs Possession," £50, finished the inventory.[87] The administrators' account of estate settlement (receipts £1,503 8*s*, expenditures £2,291 9*s* 1*d*) was allowed 31 March 1756; among the many items were £116 paid to [son] David Watson and another £25 12*s* to him for paying Daniel Warner in boards, as well as receipts of £200 for the sale of four acres near [nephew] Dudley Watson's and £805 for the sale of [brother] David Watson's house and two acres to [son] David Watson.[88]

On 11 April 1757 Dudley Watson and others testified that his uncle Isaac Watson had, during his lifetime, conveyed property to son Samuel Watson that was more than Samuel's proportion of the estate; the probate court authorized division of real estate two days later, Samuel Watson, eldest son, being then deceased.[89] On 23 April 1757, the real estate was divided. Widow Joanna Watson received, in the "Dwelling house," the two southerly lower rooms, the southwest room above, and one–third of the cellar, use of part of the barn, 15 acres (the "Sheffields Grant," bought from Charles Baker [in 1749]), and five of the 18 acres, for mowing, on the north side of the road to Littleworth; the balance, left undivided among Isaac's children, was valued at £600 for the rest of the house, £200 for the rest of the barn, £2,970 O.T. for the remaining 54 acres of the homestead at £55, and £910 O.T. for the remaining 13 acres for mowing at £70. Two days later, 136 acres in Division 2, Rochester, were appraised for £1,360. [Son] Joseph Watson, yeoman, gave a £4,000 bond, with sureties by John Gage, Jr., innholder, and [his brother] David Watson, blacksmith, all of Dover, in 1758 to pay the other heirs their shares (thirteen children in all).[90]

Isaac's property was not finally divided until 11 August 1795, some 42 years after his death, when Joanna's dower third was apportioned in small pieces to his many heirs: son Samuel had received his patrimony during his father's lifetime; to the heirs of son Benjamin Watson, Sr., deceased [1785]; to heirs of daughter Keziah Cromwell, living; to heirs and legal owners of son Isaac Watson [died 1765]; to heirs of son Joseph Watson [died 1767]; to son William Watson, living; to William Watson as legal owner of son Jonathan Watson's share; to heirs of son John Watson [died 1759]; to widow of son Isaac Watson [died about 1765], her widow's third, living; to widow of son John Watson [died 1759], her widow's thirds, living; to Francis Drew for the share of his wife, Isaac's daughter Elizabeth Drew, living; to heirs of son Daniel Watson [his rights sold to Isaac's grandson, Joanna's son, Dominicus Hanson in 1793 and 1794]; to daughter Joanna Hanson, living; to heirs of David Watson [his rights sold to Otis Baker in 1769, acknowledged in 1794]; to daughter

"Zeviah" Stackpole, living; and, to heirs of son George Watson [died 1790].[91]

Joanna Watson and her stepson Joseph were assessed parish rates for 1753 in Dover, the "Cocheco Part," at 14*s*, in the lower middle of all taxes.[92] She became a member of the First Church in Dover on 13 July 1755.[93] Joanna Watson, the widow of the intestate Isaac Watson, was declared non compos mentis during March 1759. She "has fallen into Distraction [...] for more than Nine Months last Past [...] and has Suffered much for want of proper Care [...] and has been [...] very ill treated." While her dower thirds should be sufficient for her support, the property "has been Neglected and tho' She lives in the Said Mansion House of the Deceased [...] and his Eldest [probably misstated, and means Joseph] Son lives there also yet he is far from taking that Care Relating to the Premises which ought to be taken [...] and as he is not her Child Supposes him under no Obligation to do it." William Parker was made her overseer.[94]

5. ALICE[2] WATSON (Jonathan[1]), daughter of Jonathan [1] and Elizabeth (Beard) Watson, was born about 1692 in Dover, New Hampshire. She died, probably in Madbury, New Hampshire, sometime after 25 April 1742, when she was baptized with her two children in Dover by Rev. Jonathan Cushing.[97]

She married in Newington, New Hampshire, on 28 December 1716, both of Dover, by Rev. Joseph Adams,[98] ELEAZER YOUNG, who was born during 1691 in Dover, son of Thomas and Mary (Roberts) Young.[99] He died sometime after 1776, when he signed the Association Test, probably in Madbury.

Real Estate Transactions of Eleazer Young:

1721, July 25: Eleazer Young and his brother–in–law David Watson, "both of full age," deposed that 40a. granted to "Jonathan Watson our father by the town of Dover" was sold to Mr. Clark [Dover TRs, 3:146].

1723, Feb. 21: Eleazer Young bought 30a. of the 40a. granted to his father–in–law Jonathan Watson, bordering on land of Pomfret Whitehouse, "on y^{e} West End of Barbados woods" [in the section of Dover later set off as Madbury] (with "JW" marked on trees at each corner), from brother–in–law David Watson for £11 10*s*; property lines were laid out 23 March 1723 and acknowledged 12 Jan. 1725 [Rockingham Deeds, 24:457; 94:207; Dover TRs, 3:146, 148].

1736, Sept. 18: Eleazer Young, husbandman of Dover, and his wife Alice sold all rights to the estate of "our Father Jonathan Watson" to "Brother" Isaac Watson for £10; he signed his name; she marked by "X"; Jonathan Cushing witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 92:361].

1765, Oct. 2: Eleazer Young, yeoman of the Madbury Parish of Dover, signing by mark "E," sold 60a., his homestead farm in Madbury, to "my son Solomon Young" for £200 [Rockingham Deeds, 89:18].

Alice Young was named as a daughter and heir of Jonathan Watson in a suit by her brother–in–law Joseph Thresher against her brother Isaac Watson on 21 August 1736.[100]

ii. LUCY YOUNG, b. ca. 1720, bp. 25 April 1742 in Dover.[105]

6. MARY[2] WATSON (Jonathan[1]), daughter of Jonathan [1] and Elizabeth (Beard) Watson, was born about 1694 in Dover, New Hampshire. She died, probably in Hampton Falls, New Hampshire, after 28 September 1736, when she sold land.[106]

She married in Dover, on 3 July 1711,[107] intention recorded 26 May 1711 in Salem, Massachusetts,[108] JOSEPH THRESHER, who was born there about 1685, son of Henry Thresher.[109] He died, probably in Hampton Falls, after 4 April 1747, when he sold land on which he lived.[110]

Mary Watson lived in Dover from her birth, about 1694, until her marriage in 1711, when she moved to her husband's residence in Salem, where their first child was born. Soon thereafter they removed to the section of Hampton, New Hampshire, set off as Hampton Falls in 1719, living there from about 1717 to 1736, and for some time thereafter, at Butler Hill on the road from the Line Meeting House to Fogg's Corner.

THIRD GENERATION

7. DUDLEY[3] WATSON (David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [2] and Mary (Dudley) Watson, was born about 1713 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died there 28 February 1770, as recorded in Master Tate's diary.[122]

He married in Dover, during 1736, CHRISTINE[4] BAKER (Thomas[3], Timothy[2], Edward[1]), who was born 5 June 1716 in Northampton, Massachusetts, daughter of Thomas and Christine (Otis) Baker.[123] She died on 18 March 1776 in Dover.[124]

Dudley resided in Dover, at Tole–end on the Cocheco River, for his entire life, 1713–1770, and was listed there in the 1732 New Hampshire census. His widow Christine continued to live there until her death in 1776. Dudley Watson was a farmer and in his later years, from 1755, styled "gentleman."

Real Estate Transactions of Dudley Watson:

1734, Dec. 18: he of Dover bought 10a. at Cocheco and Dover Neck from Nathaniel Austin for £66 [Strafford Deeds, 28:399].

1736, July 23: he of Dover received a half of 142a. in Dover, less pasture rights, "for y^{e} love goodwill & affection," and bought 4a. contiguous for £26, from father David Watson [Rockingham Deeds, 24:522; Strafford Deeds, 1:5].

1738, May 20: as husbandman of Dover, he bought pasture rights to 5a. [see 1736 deed above] from father David Watson for £5 [Rockingham Deeds, 24:523].

1743, Aug. 18: as husbandman of Dover, with brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, he gave rights to father's land and property to brothers Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson "in Consideration of the Patrimony which we have already Received from our Father David Watson"; he acknowledged 19 Sept. 1748 [Rockingham Deeds, 61:92].

Dec. 1: as husbandman of Dover, he bought 79⅓a. (17½a. north of Robert Evans', 6½a. south of "his father David Watson Deceased" and 55⅓a. toward Tole–end, all on the Cocheco River and on the road from Tole–end to Rochester) in Dover from Richard Waldron for £55 6*s* 8*d* [Rockingham Deeds, 32:500].

1747, Oct. 20: as husbandman of Dover, with sister Marcy Watson, brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, and brother–in–law William and sister Mary Cushing, he sold 9a. in Dover to brothers Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, for £100; mother Mary Watson also relinquished her claim [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

1753, Sept. 20: as yeoman of Dover, he bought 80a. with house at Red Oak Hill, Epping, from [brother] Jonathan Watson for £3,000 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 40:213].

was sold to Thomas Cogswell for back taxes on 17 April 1793.[134] Dudley Watson only once served in public office, and that was in 1766 as selectman of Dover.[135] On 6 September 1769, "Joseph Hall on account of some irregular Behavior in a difference with Dudley Watson & Wife was suspended from our Communion as was s^{d} Watson's Wife"; on 27 December 1769 "the Suspension of Dudley Watson's wife was taken off on her acknowledgment."[136] The nature of this difference does not appear.

His only military service on the record was with his brother Jonathan Watson, among the "Troopers under the Command of Cop^{ll} Tristram Coffin in Dover, July y^{e} 29, 1740."[137] Nevertheless, he was occasionally styled "Captain," as well as "gentleman," indicating his respected standing in the community.

Administration of his estate was granted to his widow Christine Watson on 28 March 1770; she and [son] Thomas Watson gave a £500 bond that day. The inventory taken 27 June 1772 amounted to the substantial sum of £1,395 4*s* 6*d*, including his dwelling house, barn, and 125 acres, £675; 110 acres and 100 acres in Rochester, £360; a house, barn and lot at Cocheco, £100; half a corn mill, £75; and, "One Negro man £50."[138] After Christine's death, his son Thomas Watson as administrator freed the slave belonging to Dudley's estate, on 4 June 1777.[139] This African–American was probably Gloster Watson, who then enlisted in the Army for service during the Revolution: on 10 January 1778 at Valley Forge, he was listed as among the absentees from Col. Nathan Hale's Regiment, left at "Prokepsey [...] sick," and described as coming from Barrington, New Hampshire, aged 27 years, 5'6" tall, negro, wool hair, and white eyes.[140] He was again listed on 1 January 1780 as being a private in the 5th Company, 2nd New Hampshire (Col. George Reid's) Regiment. "Glocester" Watson received soldier's back pay of Epping, New Hampshire, about 1759.

He married, probably in Dover, about 1745 but certainly before 2 December 1746,[148] DEBORAH[5] CUSHING (Jonathan[4], Peter[3], Daniel[2], Matthew[1], Peter[A], Thomas[B], John[C], William[D], Thomas[E], William[F], Geoffrey[G]), daughter of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Cushing) Cushing, who was born on 6 January 1722 in Dover and baptized the next day by her father[149]; the church record says: "Deborah Cushing born 5 of January 1721/2 about 8 o clock in the morning. Baptized Sund. the 7th day."[150] She died on 3 February 1800 in Dover.[151] Deborah remarried before 9 December 1769 [deed[152]], as his second wife, MOSES[3] WINGATE (John[2-1]), who was born on 27 December 1698 in Dover and died there 9 February 1782, son of John and Ann (____) Wingate.[153] Deborah continued to live in Dover after her second husband's death to her own death in 1800.

Moses Wingate, in his will dated 19 December 1780 and proved in April 1782, named as executor Nathaniel Watson [No. 40], "son of my wife by a former marriage."[154] He willed to Deborah the household goods of "whatsoever kind she brought with her when I married her," along with the west end of the house and a third of the estate; the remainder, after legacies to a daughter and grandchildren (by his first wife), was willed to Nathaniel Watson. The inventory of his estate, taken 5 July 1782, totaled £520 1*s*, including 55 acres (75% of the total value), livestock, and household goods. Also inventoried were Deborah's possessions: a bed, two pillows, a bolster, a bedstead with cord, two "sheats," a blanket, a coverlet, and a pillow case; a case of drawers, one large and one broken table, a pine table, six carved chairs, three white chairs, and a large looking glass; a large [spinning] wheel, a hat case, a brass kettle, two pewter platters, and six plates; and, "8 large bound Books on religious matters" and three pamphlets — total value of £28 8*s*.[155] A review of her father's inventory taken 23 and 24 September 1769[156] shows none of these items, indicating that this personal property came with Deborah from her first husband, or that it had come from her father's family before his death.

Sarah, the widow of his son William Watson [No. 42], applied for a pension in 1852, nearly a century after Jonathan Watson's death. Pages from the family Bible were torn out and submitted to substantiate the pension claim, and give all birth dates for William, his wife, and his children. On 7 March 1854, Sally Kaime [No. 115], William's daughter, deposed that "[m]y father was born in Dover, and brought up in Nottingham after his [unnamed] father's death which was when my father was about two or three years old. My grandmother was Deborah Cushing of Dover a relative of Daniel Cushing who I have heard him say was in the army with him at Rhode Island in 1778."[157] This Daniel Cushing was William's first cousin, son of Deborah's brother Peter Cushing.[158] Further confirming this relationship is William's first recorded real estate transaction in 1779, when he sold one–ninth of 26 acres, Lot 112, Division 2, Rochester, New Hampshire, "as yet undivided with the other owners"[159]; in the 1769 inventory of Deborah's father, Jonathan Cushing, is one–third of Lot 112, Division 2, Rochester[160]; although Jonathan Cushing was intestate and there is no record of the division of his estate, a share of the Lot 112 doubtless passed through Deborah to William Watson.

The birth record for Deborah Cushing begins: "Children of Jonathan Cushing. This record was copied, June 12, 1833, from an original paper preserved by Thos. Cushing, the son of Peter Cushing, the son of Rev. Jonathan Cushing"; it appears on the very first page of the parish records transcribed by Asa A. Tufts, clerk of the church.[161] From this there is no question of his mother's identity, but what of his father's? Also appearing on that first page, obviously added later in pencil, probably also by Asa A. Tufts, is a cross by Deborah's name, footnoted to "Married to David Watson of Dover." This is the only early reference to him by name, added many years after the fact, and was probably the source picked up on, and misread, by Alonzo Quint, first published in 1867, wherein he stated that Deborah Cushing "married Daniel Watson of Dover (we don't know who he was)."[162] This [mis]quote was directly repeated in the 1923 History of Dover,[163] and was probably the source of the same statement in the 1886 Wingate Family[164] and in the 1905 Cushing Genealogy[165]; the earlier (1877) Cushing Genealogy[166] only listed Deborah within Rev. Jonathan Cushing's family, without information on marriages.

Adding to the question is Northwood Records, which states that "William Watson, born 1756, died September 11, 1827, [was] said to be son of Solomon."[167] Extensive research in New Hampshire and Maine records shows no Solomon Watsons born before 1792. Mehitable ["Hattie"] A. Watson, daughter of William Watson [No. 246], also claims her great–great–grandfather to be this Solomon in a 15 February 1906 letter, but several other serious inaccuracies, and total lack of documentation beyond "family tradition," make this information highly doubtful.[168]

Extensive research by the compiler of this book into the identity of either "David" or "Daniel" Watson has found no direct reference to this individual in any early record — town, church, land, probate, or court; no passenger lists exist to show a "David" or a "Daniel" as newly arrived from Europe. This is highly unusual: all other Watson males who married and had children were noted at least somewhere in primary records. The total record silence is doubly extraordinary given the prominence of Deborah's family in Dover, her father being the settled clergyman for over half a century (1717–1769). While the identity of his wife and two children can be proven without doubt, "David/Daniel" is a mystery. A search for residence in Nottingham as suggested in the above pension deposition, analysis of naming patterns for family ties, and a thorough review of all Watson real estate records for the next two generations failed to identify this person.[169]

"David" was in all likelihood a mistake made by Asa A. Tufts nearly a century after the fact, which led to the misreading as "Daniel" and the misidentification in several other works. The preponderance of facts and circumstances have led the writer to conclude that Deborah Cushing's first husband was, in fact, Jonathan[3] Watson, son of David. Jonathan's wife, Deborah in ten deeds, fits as Cushing: her father baptized him before their marriage, and Rev. Jonathan Cushing was closely associated with this Watson family, living as neighbors in Cocheco and witnessing many (at least fourteen) Watson deeds; her birth in 1722 is right; David would be Jonathan's father and brother, and Daniel would be Deborah's son, not her husband, named from the Cushing family tradition, as this is the first appearance of the name in the Watson line but common in the Cushing; Jonathan and Deborah Watson were neighbors of and knew well Moses Wingate, whom Deborah (Cushing) Watson married secondly; her brother married Jonathan's sister Mary; and, Deborah Cushing had a sister Elizabeth for whom her daughter could well have been named. Adding two more children, Nathaniel and William, also fits: Jonathan[3] lived at least to 1757 but then disappears from all records, probably because he died shortly thereafter ("two or three years" after William's birth in 1756); Jonathan[3]'s son Jonathan[4] named a son Nathaniel; and, Jonathan[3], Jonathan[3]'s brother Winthrop[3], and William[4] all named sons Stephen, the first appearance among the New Hampshire Watsons, but another given name common in the Cushing family. William[4] and the other children would have been raised in Epping, on Red Oak Hill (then still owned by Jonathan's brother Dudley[3] Watson) next to the Nottingham line (and not actually in the town of Nottingham, as stated in the 1854 deposition), by Deborah, probably with the help of another of Jonathan's brothers, Winthrop[3] Watson. Also due to probable faulty memory 98 years later was the statement that William was born in Dover: although it is possible that Deborah returned to her Cushing family in Dover for the birth, it is more likely that William was born in Epping. Deborah had moved back to Dover by 1769 to marry Moses Wingate, probably with some of her children (and certainly Nathaniel). This would also remove the curious, complete silence in the records for this individual, a David or Daniel Watson who never existed. The only piece of evidence to the contrary is Asa Tufts' note in Deborah's birth record. From this analysis of coincidences and circumstances, Nathaniel and William Watson are placed as additional children of Jonathan[3] Watson of Dover, Exeter, and Epping, New Hampshire, whose wife Deborah, as named in deeds, was in fact Deborah Cushing.

Jonathan lived in Dover at Tole–end from his birth about 1715 until the summer of 1747, when he moved to Exeter with his wife, mother, and brother, and took up residence at Beech Hill on the west side of town near the Epping Road. In April 1752 he sold his Exeter property, bought land, house, and barn in Epping, and removed there with his family. He lived at Red Oak Hill on the north side of town, bordering on Nottingham, until 1757 and for some time thereafter, probably to his death about 1759. The final record of Jonathan, however, was dated 31 October 1757, when he was last sued, indicating that his residence was "Brintwood," the town bordering Epping and Exeter. Jonathan Watson was a farmer and lumberman, and operated an inn and tavern in Dover and later in Epping.

Jonathan Watson and his brother Dudley Watson were found among the "Troopers under the Command of Cop[ll] Tristram Coffin in Dover, July y^e^ 29, 1740."[170] He was on the 5 August 1745 muster roll of Capt. Joseph Hanson's Troopers who "Scouted in the woods and found themselves horses provisions & ammunition."[171] He also served at Crown Point [New York] during the French and Indian Wars, in [brother–in–law] Capt. Nathaniel Doe's Company, Col. Meserve's Regiment, 1 May 1756 to 5 November 1756.[172]

Real Estate Transactions of Jonathan & Deborah (Cushing) Watson:

1736, Dec. 7: he witnessed a deed for [his father] David Watson [Rockingham Deeds, 82:177].

1742, March 15: as husbandman of Dover, he bought 12+a. on the upper end of Dover Neck on the Cocheco River from John James for £115 [Rockingham Deeds, 32:572].

1743, Aug. 18: as husbandman of Dover with brother Winthrop Watson, he received rights to father's land and property from brother Dudley Watson and from brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, "in Consideration of the Patrimony which we have already Received from our Father David Watson" [Rockingham Deeds, 61:92].

1746, Dec. 2: as innkeeper of Dover with wife Deborah, he sold the 12+a. on Dover Neck to Ambrose Brampton for £145; [sister] Mary "Cushin" witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 32:575].

1747, May 5: with brother Winthrop Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, and with his wife Deborah and mother Mary Watson, he sold 18a. in Dover on the south side of the road from Cocheco to Littleworth, west of [Deborah's future second husband] Moses Wingate's homestead and house (by then on land bought from David Watson), to Samuel Hanson for £630; [Deborah's father] Jonathan Cushing witnessed; Mary marked by "X"; all others wrote their names; the brothers acknowledged at Exeter on 28 March 1748; this land was sold a month later to Moses Wingate [Rockingham Deeds, 35:153].

May 9: with brother Winthrop Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, he bought rights to all land and property of father David Watson from sister Marcy Watson and brother–in–law William and sister Mary Cushing for £400 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 61:91].

May 22: with brother Winthrop Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, and with his wife Deborah and mother Mary Watson, he sold 10a. at Cocheco, Dover to [uncle] Isaac Watson, next to Isaac's other land, for £418 O.T.; all but Mary signed their names, Mary by "X"; they all acknowledged at Exeter on 17 April 1752 [Rockingham Deeds, 53:230].

May 26: as innholder of Dover with brother Winthrop Watson, he bought 167a. in Exeter from Trueworthy Dudley for £550 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 40:238; 42:175].

June 3: Lt. Moses Wingate, gentleman of Dover, bought 18a. on the south side of the road from Cocheco to Littleworth, next to land bought from [father–in–law of his future second wife] David Watson "on which the said Wingets Dwelling House

June 9: with brother Winthrop Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, he sold one third of 167a. in Exeter to "our Honoured Mother Mary Watson Relict Widow of our Honoured Father David Watson late of Dover" for her use during her lifetime for £500; [brother–in–law] Nathaniel Doe witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 33:339].

Oct. 20: with brother Winthrop Watson, both "late of Dover ... now of Exeter, Husbandmen," he bought 9a. in Dover from brother Dudley Watson, sister Marcy Watson, brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, and brother–in–law William and sister Mary Cushing for £100; mother Mary Watson also relinquished her claim; this land was at the corner of Silver and Pleasant [now Central Avenue] Streets, and probably the site of David Watson's inn and tavern [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

Oct. 21: with brother Winthrop Watson, both "late of Dover ... now of Exeter, Husbandmen," and with his wife Deborah, he sold 9a. owned by their father David Watson to John Gage for £950 O.T.; [brother–in–law] William Cushing witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 37:311].

1748, Aug. 27: with brother Winthrop Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, he bought the Exeter homestead of David and Mary Connor for £1,200 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 114:511].

1751, March 26: with brother Winthrop Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, and with his wife Deborah, he sold 45a. in Exeter to Daniel Smith for £1,550 O.T.; all three signed acknowledgment on 27 March 1755 [Rockingham Deeds, 39:497].

Sept. 3: with brother Winthrop Watson, both husbandmen of Exeter, and with his wife Deborah, he sold 2a. in Dover with their father's house and homestead to [uncle] Isaac Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £700 O.T.; [Deborah's father] Jonathan Cushing witnessed; they acknowledged 17 April 1752 [Rockingham Deeds, 42:361].

1752, March 10: as yeoman of Exeter with his wife Deborah, he sold 96½a. at Beech Hill, Exeter, "on which I now dwell," to brother Winthrop Watson for £550 N.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 42:174].

April 2: with brother Winthrop Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, and with his wife Deborah and mother Mary Watson, he sold 96½a. at Beech Hill, Exeter, to Israel Gilman [in trade for Epping land below] for £5,000 O.T.; all but Mary signed their names, Mary by "X." At the same time, he bought 80a. with house and barn at Red Oak Hill, Epping, from Israel Gilman [in trade for Exeter land above] for £5,000 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 40:212, 240].

Oct. 7: as yeoman of Epping, he sold 4a. in Epping bought from Israel Gilman to Ebenezer Dow for £160 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 39:411].

1753, June 12: as yeoman of Epping with his wife Deborah, he sold 17+a. near his house in Epping to Caleb Philbrick for £640 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 42:315]. See Court Record 5/21/1754 below.

Sept. 20: as yeoman of Epping with his wife Deborah, he sold 80a. with house at Red Oak Hill, Epping, to [brother] Dudley Watson for £3,000 O.T.; he acknowledged the same day at Portsmouth; Dudley sold 56a. 2 mos. later, presumably leaving 24a. for Jonathan and his family to live on [Rockingham Deeds, 40:213].

Dec. 21: as yeoman of Epping, he bought 3a. in Epping from John Folsom for £350 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 48:380].

1755, March 7: as yeoman of Epping, he sold 3a. in Epping bought from John Folsom to David Lawrence for £104 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 48:382].

1769, Dec. 9: Moses Wingate, gentleman of Dover, with his wife Deborah in her right, along with Peter Cushing and John Wingate, with his wife Elizabeth in her right, sold Lot 17, Range 2, Division 1, Chichester ("originally Granted to our Honoured Father the Rev^{d} M^{r} Jonathan Cushing [...] intestate"), to "our Brother" William Cushing for £6 10*s* [Rockingham Deeds, 106:444].

1770, Oct. 26: Moses Wingate, gentleman of Dover, along with William Cushing of Exeter, John Wingate of Madbury, and John Woodman of Durham, sold two–thirds of Lot 5, Division 4, Rochester, to Ephraim Foss for £4 10*s* [Strafford Deeds, 3:122].

1774, May 26: Moses Wingate, gentleman of Dover, with his wife Deborah in her right, along with [brothers–in–law] William Cushing of Exeter and John Wingate of Madbury, with his wife Elizabeth in her right, sold one–third of Lot 2, Division 3, Rochester, "Property of Reverend Jonathan Cushing," to Peter Glidden for £30; Deborah acknowledged 10 Jan. 1775 [Strafford Deeds, 2:132].

With 73 Provincial Court actions (two licensing him as taverner, eleven as plaintiff and 60 as defendant), Jonathan Watson was in court by far the most of any Watson during the colonial era in New Hampshire; he alone accounts for 35% of all Watson actions. Interesting also is the fact that the second most litigious was his father, and that half of all the Watson cases were incurred by father and son. From these records, we can infer that he was probably of legal age on 21 May 1737, when he, in his own right, brought his first case, therefore born before May 1716. It is also clear that he was active throughout his life dealing in lumber and wood, from red oak staves in 1738 to part ownership in a sawmill in Epping by 1753, with frequent litigation over non–delivery of lumber against advances. Furthermore, currency was scarce, and barter, especially denominated in boards, was common. While Jonathan was often sued for debts, it appears that he was not in imminent danger of failure but rather living just ahead of his means and using the court system to support his payment timing — he was apparently willing to pay interest and court charges to support the relatively affluent life style shown by the lists of goods for which he incurred debt — and he ultimately made good on all his debts. Of the 60 cases as defendant, 45 occurred in the five–year period 1750–1754; his financial tightness was apparently brought on when he was sued to make good on four large bonds to which he had committed, 1747–1750. He was sued but three times after 1754 as he increasingly improved his finances, largely through the sale of real estate to family members for liquidity, leaving none in his name after 1755. His sideline as a tavernkeeper, following his father's and grandfather's tradition, is also evident, with licensing in Dover in 1746 and in Epping in 1752 shortly after his removal there. His close relationship with his sister Mary, and later with her husband William Cushing, is clear as well: among his delinquent accounts were purchases of fabric and other dry goods for Mary in 1743, before her marriage, and 1750–1752 for her husband. She, as Mary "Cushin," also appears as a witness on one of his deeds in 1746, as does her husband in 1747. That he was close to his younger brother Winthrop is also quite evident in these records: thirteen of his 21 real estate transactions were with this brother, one way or another, moving to Exeter at the same time, and living with and supporting their mother together. Winthrop, however, largely avoided his brother's financial entanglements, being involved in only two of Jonathan's 60 cases as defendant.

May 21: Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Epping, sued Caleb Philbrick of Epping for £72 to collect an overdue note of £45 12*s* 8*d* O.T. payable in pine boards "at Watsons Mill at Rawlins Meadow" at £12 per 1,000 feet, dated 6 Sept. 1753; the note was in part payment for land purchased by Philbrick from Watson; on 3 Dec. 1753 Jonathan endorsed the note "Mr. Caleb Philbrick S^{r} Pay to Eph^{m} Robinson the Contents of the within note, it being for Valey Rec^{d} of S^{d} Robinson"; Philbrick claimed that Watson hauled his boards away from the "mill which said Watson oned part of"; Jonathan denied the allegation, and the court found for him on 30 Sept. 1754 in the amount of £11 8*s* 2*d* N.T.; he was granted execution 28 Oct. 1754 and was paid in full [N.H. Court Files, 25778].

Aug. 22: Peter Gilman of Exeter sued Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Epping, to collect an overdue account of £62 17*s* (for purchase of blankets, pepper box, cloth, and rug 26 Nov. 1750; linen and tin measures in 1751; silk, indigo, and broadcloth in 1753 — totaling £94 11*s*, offset by credits of £31 14*s* for hauling 4,585 feet of lumber and delivering hay and 550 staves); Gilman was granted judgment of £15 14*s* 3*d* N.T. on 5 Dec. 1754 and execution on 4 Feb. 1755 [N.H. Court Files, 5218].

Oct. 11: Elias Ladd of Exeter sued Jonathan Watson of Epping for £27 to collect an overdue note of £55 8*s* O.T. payable in money or pine boards, dated 15 April 1754; David Lawrence gave bail for him [N.H. Court Files, 9508].

1755, Aug. 29: John Light sued Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Epping, and [brother] Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, for £50 to collect an overdue note of £100 O.T. to [brother–in–law] William Cushing, dated 9 May 1747 at Portsmouth and endorsed over to Light in 1755; the sheriff attached a chair from each Watson, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 16222].

1757, May 20: Job Judkins of Exeter [future father–in–law of Jonathan's son David] sued Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Epping, for £8 to collect an overdue note of £17 5*s* O.T., dated 11 Nov. 1755; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 27592].

Oct. 31: Stephen Evans of Dover sued Jonathan Watson, husbandman of "Brintwood," for £140 to collect four overdue notes to John Ham (and endorsed over to Evans), each of £70 O.T., dated 6 June 1751 at Dover and due variously to 6 June 1756; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 26357].

Unlike the great volume of real estate dealings and court activity, Jonathan appeared only rarely in town records. His parish rates for 1741 at Cocheco were 16*s* 2*d*, about in the middle of the 166 taxpayers.[173] The town of Dover paid Jonathan £36 for 1,000 feet of bridge planking and an additional £8 18*s* for putting them in during 1746.[174] The town also laid out the 7+ acres, part of his father's common right of 8 July 1734, in August 1747.[175] He does not appear at all in the early records of Exeter [but almost none survive for the period 1741–1762, just when he was resident there]. In Epping, a vote to abate his parish tax "past in the negative" on 14 March 1757[176]; grounds for his request were probably his absence as a soldier the previous year, rather than financial need. Whatever the reason, his fellow citizens turned him down.

Neither Jonathan nor Deborah left a will, nor were their estates probated. Apparently no birth records of their children were kept or submitted to the town by Jonathan and Deborah, nor has any record of baptism survived. If a family Bible recording any of these events was kept, it is now lost. The only specific date found for any of them was for William in his Bible as stated above. The approximate dates, apparent order, and presumed locations of birth have been ascertained by analysis of other extant records relating to these children throughout their lives.

177. Elmer E. Doe, The Descendants of Nicholas Doe (Orleans, Vt., 1918) [hereinafter Nicholas Doe], 146–149.

She married in Dover about 1742, but before 18 August 1743 [deed[178]], NATHANIEL[3] DOE (Sampson[2], Nicholas[1]), who was baptized as an infant on 19 March 1717/8 "at Loverland" in Durham, New Hampshire, by Rev. Hugh Adams, son of Samson and Mary (Hopley) (Ayers) Doe.[179] He died after 1772,[180] probably in Vassalboro.

Sarah resided in Dover from her birth to her marriage about 1742. She and her husband first lived in Newmarket, New Hampshire, in 1743, but by 1744 they had returned to Dover, where she lived at least to 1748. They had moved back to Newmarket by 1760. In 1757 they had sold most of their land in Durham and in Berwick, Maine, and during November 1765 bought land in Wiscasset [Vassalboro, on the Kennebec River], Maine, moving there with the family. There is no further record of Sarah, but Nathaniel Doe, a farmer throughout his life, is noted selling land to his sons 1770–1772 in Vassalboro.[181]

Nathaniel Doe was a captain with a company in Col. Meserve's Regiment at Crown Point [New York] 1 May 1756 to 5 November 1756; his wife's older brother Jonathan Watson served under his command.[182]

Real Estate and Court Records of Nathaniel and Sarah Doe:

1743, Aug. 18: Nathaniel Doe, husbandman of Newmarket with wife Sarah and with her brother Dudley Watson, gave rights to her father's land and property to her brothers Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson "in Consideration of the Patrimony which we have already Received from our Father David Watson"; Nathaniel signed his name, but Sarah marked by "X"; they both acknowledged 19 Sept. 1748 [Rockingham Deeds, 61:92].

1744, Aug. 6: Nathaniel Shannon, shopkeeper of Portsmouth, sued Nathaniel Doe and [brother–in–law] Jonathan Watson, both yeomen of Dover, for £60 to collect an overdue note of £120 O.T., dated 22 June 1744; the sheriff attached Doe's hat and Watson's table; the court found for Shannon on 6 Dec. 1744 [N.H. Court Files, 25651].

1747, June 9: Nathaniel Doe witnessed a deed for [brothers–in–law] Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson [Rockingham Deeds, 33:339].

Oct. 20: Nathaniel Doe, husbandman of Dover with wife Sarah and with [her brother] Dudley Watson, [her sister] Marcy Watson, and [brother–in–law] William and [her sister] Mary Cushing sold 9a. in Dover to [her brothers] Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, for £100; [her mother] Mary Watson also relinquished her claim; Nathaniel signed his name, but Sarah marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

1748, Oct. 13: Nathaniel Doe witnessed a note for [brother–in–law] Jonathan Watson [N.H. Court Files, 29757].

v. SARAH DOE, b. ca. 1755 in New Hampshire; m. in Vassalboro March 1782 BENJAMIN NOBLE.

10. MARY[3] WATSON (David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of David [2] and Mary (Dudley) Watson, was born about 1722 in Dover, New Hampshire. She died after 18 August 1749 [suit below], and after the births of her four probable children, as late as 1770, probably in Exeter, New Hampshire.

She married in Dover, after 1743 and before 2 December 1746, when she witnessed a deed, WILLIAM[5] CUSHING (Jonathan[4], Peter[3], Daniel[2], Matthew[1], Peter[A], Thomas[B], John[C], William[D], Thomas[E], William[F], Geoffrey[G]),[184] who was born 26 December 1723 in Dover and baptized there by his father three days later, son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Cushing) Cushing.[185] He died shortly before 30 January 1777 in Exeter, when administration of his estate was granted to Daniel Smith, Nicholas Smith, and Nathaniel Healey.[186] Mary's brother Jonathan Watson married William's sister Deborah Cushing.

Mary resided in Dover from 1727 to at least 1747. In the summer of 1747 her brothers Jonathan and Winthrop Watson, along with their mother, removed to Exeter. It is likely that she and her husband also came to Exeter at or near the same time. They were certainly there by 1749, where her four children were born, and where William, a farmer, resided to his death at the beginning of 1777.

Real Estate and Court Records of William and Mary Cushing:

1743: Her brother Jonathan Watson purchased fabric worth £10, "del[ivered to] Sister Mary [Watson]," in 1743 from Samuel Gerrish, for which unpaid account he was sued in 1751 [N.H. Court Files, 29757].

1746, Dec. 2: as "Mary Cushin," she witnessed a deed for [her brother] Jonathan Watson [Rockingham Deeds, 32:575].

1747–1755: [Her brothers] Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson gave a note of £100 O.T. to William Cushing, dated 9 May 1747 at Portsmouth [probably in connection with the real estate transaction above], which Cushing endorsed over to John Light in 1755; Light promptly sued the Watsons to collect [N.H. Court Files, 16222].

1747, May 9: William and Mary Cushing, he husbandman of Dover, with sister Marcy Watson, sold rights to all land and property of father David Watson to brothers Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson for £400 O.T.; William signed his name, but Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 61:91].

Oct. 20: William and Mary Cushing, he husbandman of Dover, with her brother Dudley Watson, her sister Marcy Watson, her brother–in–law Nathaniel and her sister Sarah Doe, sold 9a. in Dover to her brothers Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, for £100; her mother Mary Watson also relinquished her claim; William signed his name, but Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

Oct. 21: William Cushing witnessed a deed for [brothers–in–law] Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson [Rockingham Deeds, 37:311].

1749, Aug. 18: William Cushing, husbandman of Exeter with wife Mary, and with her brothers and sisters as heirs of David Watson, their father, yeoman, late of Dover, were all to answer to Ephraim Wentworth, who was sued by Mr. Sheffield over 26a. sold by David Watson 16 Oct. 1719 to Wentworth, and by Wentworth in 1724 to Sheffield [N.H. Court Files, 11674].

1750–1752: Jonathan Watson was sued in 1753 for non–payment of account covering purchases from Nicholas Perryman of Exeter of dry goods for "y^{r} brother William Cushing ... del^{d} [per] y^{r} ord^{r}" 1750–1752, including a felt hat [N.H. Court Files, 8136].

1769, Dec. 9: William Cushing, yeoman of Exeter and "our Brother," bought Lot 17, Range 2, Division 1, Chichester ("originally Granted to our Honoured Father the Rev^{d} M^{r} Jonathan Cushing ... intestate"), from Moses Wingate with his wife Deborah in her right, along with Peter Cushing and John Wingate with his wife Elizabeth in her right, for £6 10*s* [Rockingham Deeds, 106:444].

Dec. 19: William Cushing, yeoman of Exeter, sold Lot 17, Range 2, Division 1, Chichester, to John Taylor, Jr. of Hampton for £12 [Rockingham Deeds, 106:324].

1770, Oct. 26: William Cushing, yeoman of Exeter, along with [brothers–in–law] Moses Wingate of Dover, John Wingate of Madbury, and John Woodman of Durham, sold two–thirds of Lot 5, Division 4, Rochester, to Ephraim Foss for £4 10*s* [Strafford Deeds, 3:122].

1772, Dec. 17: William Cushing, yeoman of Exeter, sold 50a., Lot 126, "below the river," Chichester, the original right of his father Rev. Jonathan Cushing, to John Brown of Chichester for £18 [Rockingham Deeds, 105:409].

1774, May 26: William Cushing, yeoman of Exeter, along with [brothers–in–law] Moses Wingate of Dover, with his wife Deborah in her right, and John Wingate of Madbury, with his wife Elizabeth in her right, sold one third of Lot 2, Division 3, Rochester, "Property of Reverend Jonathan Cushing," to Peter Glidden for £30; William acknowledged at Exeter on 10 June 1775 [Strafford Deeds, 2:132].

William Cushing appears on the surviving Exeter tax rolls from 1763 to 1776, all in the bottom quartile among taxpayers.[187] His highway taxes from 1772 to 1776 place his residence in the west side of town, on "mast swamp road so called to the Brentwood line,"[188] not far from his wife's brother Winthrop Watson on Beech Hill. Daniel Smith, one of the executors of his estate in 1777, was also a neighbor, living next to Winthrop Watson.

Inventory of William Cushing's estate was taken 25 June 1777 and totaled a modest £34 7*s*: no real estate; a case of drawers, a desk, a table, six chairs, two beds with cords, two blankets, a cow, a spinning wheel, two trammels, a pair of andirons and fire dogs, books, two silver spoons, an iron and pewter pot, and £11 16*s* in cash.[189]

Dr. Quint says they "left no children"[190]; however, there were four Cushings, Peter, William, Mary and Deborah, resident in Exeter, New Hampshire, during the 1780s and 1790s, as seen in tax, town, military, and land records, not identified in either of the Cushing genealogies. Furthermore, these Cushings lived in the vicinity of Beech Hill in Exeter, near the Watsons, as did William and Mary Cushing, the only Cushings in town. From these circumstances, along with the obvious name connections to the Watson and Cushing families in Exeter, it is quite likely that William and Mary Cushing did have children, as follows.

Probable children of William and Mary (Watson) Cushing, all born in Exeter, N.H.:

i. PETER CUSHING[4], b. ca. 1755; m. in Hampton, N.H., 23 Nov. 1780, SUSANNAH MILLS, he of Exeter, she of Brentwood.[191] As yeoman of Exeter, he bought 100a. Lot 4, Range 9, Shapleigh, Maine., on the Salmon Falls River from [cousin] Dudley Watson [No. 43] for £100 on 27 Jan. 1778.[192] He was surety for [his cousin] Jonathan Watson [No. 38] as guardian of Joseph Edgerly on 7 Sept. 1791, and on 16 Oct. 1792 his homestead was next to Brentwood land divided among the heirs of Joseph Edgerly, on the road from [cousin] Jonathan Watson's to Capt. Butler's.[193] As husbandman of Exeter, he sold 25a. in Limerick, Maine (one–quarter of Lot 11, Range H), to [cousin] Jonathan Watson for $125 on 1 Nov. 1800.[194] He was taxed regularly in Exeter and was in censuses there, 1790 [1M (16+), 1M (0–16); 3F] and 1800 [1M (16–26), 1M (26–45); 3F (0–10), 1F (10–16), 1F (16–26), 1F (26–45)].

ii. WILLIAM CUSHING, b. 1760; served four times in Revolution, 1775–1781, with cousins Daniel and Stephen Watson [Nos. 44 and 45], aged 20 in 1780.[195] He was taxed in Exeter and listed in 1800 census there [2M (0–10), 1M (26–45); 1F (10–16), 1F (16–26), 1F (26–45)].

iii. MARY CUSHING, b. ca. 1765; d. 7 July 1838 in Freedom, N.H.[196]; m. in Exeter, 24 March 1785,[197] SAMUEL JUDKINS, int. there 5 March 1785[198]; he d. 11 Nov. 1809 in Effingham, N.H.[199]

iv. DEBORAH CUSHING, b. 1768 (calc.); m. (int.) in Exeter 3 Sept. 1791 EDWARD SANBORN of Epping, N.H.[200]; she gave deposition for her sister Mary in Freedom, 28 Aug. 1838, aged 70.[201]

11. WINTHROP[3] WATSON (David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [2] and Mary (Dudley) Watson, was born 11 January 1724 in Dover, New Hampshire.[202] He died after 25 March and before 27 August 1777 in Exeter, New Hampshire, the dates of his will and of probate.[203]

He married in Exeter, about 1750, ABIGAIL ____, who was born about 1730. She died probably about 1795, as she was last taxed in Exeter for 1794.[204]

Winthrop lived in Dover from 1724 until 1747. He moved to Exeter in the summer of 1747 with his mother and brother Jonathan, where he lived for the rest of his life as a farmer. His widow Abigail continued to live in Exeter to 1795; the 1790 census listed her as the head of the family, consisting of four females [Abigail and three daughters — probably Mary and Rebecca, with either Sarah or Elizabeth].

Real Estate Transactions of Winthrop Watson:

1743, Aug. 18: as husbandman of Dover with brother Jonathan Watson, he received rights to father's land and property from brother Dudley Watson and from brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, "in Consideration of the Patrimony which we have already Received from our Father David Watson" [Rockingham Deeds, 61:92].

1747, May 5: with brother Jonathan Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, and with his mother Mary Watson, he sold 18a. in Dover on the south side of the road from Cocheco to Littleworth, to Samuel Hanson for £630; Mary marked by "X"; all others wrote their names; the brothers acknowledged at Exeter on 28 March 1748 [Rockingham Deeds, 35:153].

May 9: with brother Jonathan Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, he bought rights to all land and property of father David Watson from sister Marcy Watson and brother–in–law William and sister Mary Cushing for £400 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 61:91].

May 22: with brother Jonathan Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, and with his mother Mary Watson, he sold 10a. at Cocheco, Dover to [uncle] Isaac Watson, next to Isaac's other land, for £418 O.T.; all but Mary signed their names, Mary by "X"; they all acknowledged at Exeter on 17 April 1752 [Rockingham Deeds, 53:230].

May 26: as husbandman of Dover with brother Jonathan Watson, he bought 167a. in Exeter from Trueworthy Dudley for £550 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 40:238; 42:175].

June 9: with brother Jonathan Watson, both husbandmen of Dover, he sold one third of 167a. in Exeter to "our Honoured Mother Mary Watson Relict Widow of our Honoured Father David Watson late of Dover" for her use during her lifetime for £500; [brother–in–law] Nathaniel Doe witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 33:339].

Oct. 20: with brother Jonathan Watson, both "late of Dover ... now of Exeter, Husbandmen," he bought 9a. in Dover from brother Dudley Watson, sister Marcy Watson, brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, and brother–in–law William and sister Mary Cushing for £100; mother Mary Watson also relinquished her claim. This land was at the corner of Silver and Pleasant [now Central Avenue] Streets, and probably the site of David Watson's inn and tavern [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

Oct. 21: with brother Jonathan Watson, both "late of Dover ... now of Exeter, Husbandmen," he sold 9a. owned by their father David Watson to John Gage for £950 O.T.; [brother–in–law] William Cushing witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 37:311].

1748, Aug. 27: with brother Jonathan Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, he bought the Exeter homestead of David and Mary Connor for £1,200 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 114:511].

1751, March 26: with brother Jonathan Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, he sold 45a. in Exeter to Daniel Smith for £1,550 O.T.; they signed acknowledgment on 27 March 1755 [Rockingham Deeds, 39:497].

Sept. 3: with brother Jonathan Watson, both husbandmen of Exeter, he sold 2a. in Dover with their father's house and homestead to [uncle] Isaac Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £700 O.T.; they acknowledged 17 April 1752 [Rockingham Deeds, 42:361].

1752, March 10: as yeoman of Exeter, he bought 96½a. at Beech Hill, Exeter, from brother Jonathan Watson and his wife Deborah for £550 N.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 42:174].

April 2: with brother Jonathan Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, and with their mother Mary Watson, he sold 96½a. at Beech Hill, Exeter, to Israel Gilman [in trade for Epping land purchased by Jonathan that day] for £5,000 O.T.; the men signed their names, but Mary marked by "X" [Rockingham Deeds, 40:240].

1774, May 14: as yeoman of Exeter, he bought 10a. and 6a. on the Epping Road, Exeter, from Joseph Gordon for £57 12*s* N.T. [this land was sold by son Daniel Watson in 1784] [Rockingham Deeds, 137:256].

Winthrop Watson in Court Records:

1749, Aug. 18: Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, with his brothers and sisters as heirs of David Watson, their father, yeoman, late of Dover, were all to answer to Ephraim Wentworth, who was sued by Mr. Sheffield over 26a. sold by David Watson on 16 Oct. 1719 to Wentworth, and by Wentworth in 1724 to Sheffield [N.H. Court Files, 11674].

1751, Aug. 19: Thomas Packer sued Winthrop Watson and [brother] Jonathan Watson, both yeomen of Exeter, for £250 to collect an overdue note of £500 O.T., dated 27 March 1751 at Exeter to Jonathan Gilman; the sheriff attached Winthrop's hat, valued at 5*s*, and one of Jonathan's chairs, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 27901].

1752, May 19: Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, sued Josiah Moody of "Brintwood" for £15 to collect an overdue note of £31, dated 27 Nov. 1751; he was granted execution for £7 15*s* and costs on 9 Jan. 1753 and again 28 March 1753 before receiving satisfaction [N.H. Court Files, 28525].

1753, May 19: Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, sued David Page of Epping for £25 to collect an overdue note of £50 O.T., dated 1 Jan. 1753; he was granted execution for £12 15*s* and costs on 29 Aug. 1753 and received £53 O.T. on 7 Jan. 1754 [N.H. Court Files, 28523].

May 21: Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, sued Samuel Richards for £12 to collect an overdue note of £24 3*s* O.T. payable in white pine boards, dated 21 April 1752 [N.H. Court Files, 9280].

1754, Nov. 18: Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, sued Gilman Dudley of Exeter to collect an overdue note of £20 payable in white pine boards, dated 20 Feb. 1754; he was granted execution for £17 12*s* and costs on 1 March 1755 and was paid 25 Feb. 1756 [N.H. Court Files, 9279].

1755, Aug. 29: John Light sued Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, and [brother] Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Epping, for £50 to collect an overdue note of £100 O.T. to [brother–in–law] William Cushing, dated 9 May 1747 at Portsmouth and endorsed over to Light in 1755; the sheriff attached a chair of each Watson, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 16222].

1765, Aug. 20: Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, sued John Gilman and John Gilman 3rd for £75 to collect overdue notes of £75 O.T., dated 18 Feb. 1763, and of £771 6*s* O.T., dated 9 Aug. 1764 [N.H. Court Files, 6772].

1769, Dec: Abigail Watson, wife of Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Exeter, was indicted for being absent from church worship without good reason from 1 Sept. 1769 to date in Dec. 1769 [N.H. Court Files, 25737].

That Winthrop Watson was close to his brother Jonathan is evident from deeds. All but the last of fourteen transactions were undertaken in one way or another with his brother. However, he largely avoided his brother's financial entanglements by becoming involved in only two of Jonathan's 60 cases as defendant. The cause of Abigail's absence from church in 1769 is not apparent, nor is the outcome of the complaint.

Winthrop appears as a taxpayer in Exeter on the surviving records every year 1763 to 1776, in each case in the top 10%, indicating his affluence.[205] In 1768 the town "paid Winthrop Watson the proportion of [school money] for mast swamp road for year 1766," £3 1*s* 2*d*.[206] Extant highway tax records, 1772–1776, show Winthrop Watson and his neighbor Daniel Smith between them footing 20% of the bill in their district, the western part of town toward Epping, which included "the road leading from Russels corner to Newmarket line by Winthrop Watsons house"[207]; this road exists today as Old Town Farm Road. On 5 November 1774 he was taxed 10*s* 9¾*d* [in the top 10% of all Exeter citizens] for the relief of the poor of Boston; however, he dissented and was excused from payment.[208] On 10 June 1775 the town "p^{d} Winthrop Watson in full for a highway laid out thru his land," £4 10*s*[209]; this was probably connecting what is now Beech Hill Road, from Daniel Smith's, to Old Town Farm Road, and continuing on as today's Cuba Road.

His will was dated 25 March 1777 and proved 27 August 1777: to wife Abigail his household goods, three cows and seven sheep (the executor to keep them on the farm for her), one third of the house, and £105 (£15 one month after his death, and £15 annually thereafter for maintenance of herself and "my children"); to son Daniel Watson in two years the 18 acres on Epping Road bought from Joseph Gordon, and a yoke of two–year–old steers now; to son Stephen Watson £100 "when he arrives at twenty one," and a yoke of two–year–old steers now; to daughter Mary Watson £100 "when she arrives at twenty one" or at her marriage; to son David Watson £100 "when he arrives at twenty one," and a yoke of one–year–old steers now; to daughters Sarah Watson, Elizabeth Watson, and Rebecca Watson £60 each at twenty one or at marriage; and, to son Dudley Watson all the homestead real estate and personal property after the other legacies, and he to be executor. The inventory was returned on 29 January 1778, totaling £1,857 3*s* 7*d*: real estate, £1,250; notes, £233 16*s* 7*d*; cash, £70; "Stock of Chattel," £211 10*s*; cart, wheels, etc., £25; four feather beds and bedding, £30; and all other household goods, furniture, and his clothing, £36 17*s*.[210]

The poll listed on Abigail's tax inventory of 1778 was probably for son Daniel. The acreage taxed to her from 1784 had until then been taxed to son Dudley, in addition to the other land inherited from Winthrop, and was owned by Dudley. Although Exeter inventories have not survived for 1788–1805, tax rates have, and Abigail was assessed for 1788, 1790, 1793, and 1794 as "Widow."[211] She was also subject to highway taxes in 1778–1779, 1784–1787, and 1794.[212]

12. MERCY[3] WATSON (David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of David [2] and Mary (Dudley) Watson, was born about 1725 in Dover, New Hampshire. Mercy was baptized by Rev. Jonathan Cushing in Dover on 11 April 1742[218] and was admitted to membership in the First Church of Dover two months later on 20 June 1742[219]; if membership then required majority by women, it is possible that Mercy was born not later than 1721. She died some time after the 1810 census.

She married in Dover, after a court record of 18 August 1749 and before the baptism of her first child on 25 November 1753, BENJAMIN[5] HANSON (Benjamin[4–3], Tobias[2], Thomas[1]), who was born about 1730, son of Benjamin and Mary (Ham) Hanson.[220] He died sometime after the 1810 census.

Mercy and Benjamin resided in Dover for their entire lives, she from about 1725, and he from about 1730, to at least 1810. Benjamin Hanson was a blacksmith, as was his father before him and his sons after. He was styled "3rd" to distinguish him from his grandfather, father, and son — "Sr.," "Jr.," and "4th."

Oct. 20: as "Marcy Watson," singlewoman of Dover, with brother Dudley Watson, brother–in–law Nathaniel and sister Sarah Doe, and brother–in–law William and sister Mary Cushing, she sold 9a. in Dover to brothers Jonathan Watson and Winthrop Watson, for £100; mother Mary Watson also relinquished her claim; Marcy marked by "X," unable to write her name [Rockingham Deeds, 35:317].

1749, Aug. 18: Mercy Watson, singlewoman and spinster of Dover, with her brothers and sister as heirs of David Watson, their father, yeoman, late of Dover, were all to answer to Ephraim Wentworth, who was sued by Mr. Sheffield over 26a. sold by David Watson 16 Oct. 1719 to Wentworth, and by Wentworth in 1724 to Sheffield [N.H. Court Files, 11674].

Real Estate Transactions of Benjamin Hanson:

1759, Oct. 3: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Mercy, he sold 108½ sq. rods in Dover on the road from Cocheco to Dover Neck to Moses and Stephen Varney for £900 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 89:122].

1767, May 30: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Mercy, he sold 23a. in Dover on the west side of the road to Durham and on the west side of the Bellamy Bank River, to Stephen Evans [Strafford Deeds, 19:53].

1773, May 13: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Mercy, she signing by "X," he sold a quarter–acre lot on Dover Neck to a committee for the county to build a "gaol" [Strafford Deeds, 8:410].

1784, Feb. 10: as blacksmith of Dover, "3rd," he sold a quarter–acre lot in Dover to [son] Jonathan Hanson, blacksmith of Dover, where Jonathan had already built his house [Strafford Deeds, 19:463].

1785, Sept. 15: as blacksmith of Dover, he sold a lot in Dover next to the county jail to Gen. John Sullivan of Durham [Strafford Deeds, 6:310].

1787, Feb. 5: as blacksmith of Dover, he sold a lot in Dover to [son] Benjamin Hanson, "4th," blacksmith of Dover [Strafford Deeds, 8:545].

1792, April 30: as blacksmith of Dover, he bought 8a. in Dover from George Hanson [Strafford Deeds, 14:481].

1803, May 28: as blacksmith of Dover, "3rd," he bought a lot in Dover from George Hanson [Strafford Deeds, 40:392].

13. WILLIAM[3] WATSON (William[2], Jonathan[1]), son of William [3] and Martha (____) (Robinson) Watson, was born about 1716 in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. He is probably the male over age 16 in the 1732 census with his mother. He died about 1740, probably in Portsmouth.

William Watson, Jr., mariner of Portsmouth and servant of Samuel Waterhouse, was charged by Hannah Guptail, singlewoman of Berwick [Maine], "that he had carnal knowledge of her Body & that she is now with child by him" on 2 December 1736; Waterhouse gave a £20 bond to assure William's appearance in court[226]; the outcome of this case does not appear in the records. His province and town rates, as "Jr." on the north side of Crafford's Lane [with his father], totaled 14*s* in 1739 and 20*s* in 1740; the 1740 tax was fully abated.[227]

He resided in Portsmouth from 1718 to 1740, when he either moved from town or, more likely, died. There is no record to indicate that William Watson ever married.

Child of William Watson and Hannah Guptill, out of wedlock:

i. (CHILD) GUPTILL[4], b. ca. 1737 in Berwick, Maine; no further record.

14. SAMUEL[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born about 1724 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died there before 23 February 1757, when administration of his estate was granted.[228]

He married in Dover, about 1747, LYDIA ____, who was born about 1725. She died, probably in Dover, before 6 March 1765, when license to sell her dower was granted.[229]

Samuel resided in Dover for his entire life, from 1724 to 1757; his widow survived him there to 1765. He was a farmer, and, judging from court records, a small–time merchant or trader.

He and his father Isaac Watson were in "y^e^ Second foot Company of Dover, July the 24, 1740."[230] From this record we can infer that he was at least sixteen, the minimum age for entry into military service, and therefore born before or during 1724. His name is also found on the 1 October 1745 muster roll of the company of soldiers furnished by Dover, under the command of Capt. Thomas Westbrook Waldron, at the capture of Louisbourg; he was noted as having "Received of the Commissary, one pair of Mogasons [shoes]."[231]

Samuel was called "husbandman of Dover" 22 August 1750 when he bought 40 acres at Tole–end, Dover from his father Isaac Watson and [stepmother] Joanna for £200 O.T.[232] With his wife Lydia [called "Liddia" and "Ledy"], he sold the 40 acres in Dover, at Tole–end on the south side of the road leading to Rochester, to Reuben Hayes for £2,000 O.T. on 30 December 1751, signing by "X."[233] He was assessed parish rates for 1753 in Dover, the "Cocheco Part," at 5*s* 3*d*, at the low end of all taxes.[234]

Samuel Watson in Court Records:

1749, May 19: Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Daniel Palmer for £40 to collect an overdue note of £5 O.T., dated 3 March 1748/9 [N.H. Court Files, 13484].

1749/50, Jan. 4: Joshua Perkins sued Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £5 to collect an overdue note of £9 10*s*, dated 20 Nov. 1749; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 10230].

1751, April 30: John Wedgwood sued Samuel Watson, yeoman of Dover, for £70 to collect overdue notes of £100 O.T., dated 14 Sept. 1749, and of £40 O.T., dated 5 June 1750; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 2*s*; Wedgwood was granted execution on 25 Oct. 1751 and received payment [N.H. Court Files, 25809].

Nov. 19: John Rollings sued Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £20 to collect an overdue note for delivery of 2,800 feet of white pine boards in three mos., dated 30 March 1751; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 2*s*; Rollings was granted execution for £11 4*s* plus costs on 26 Dec. 1751 and received payment 15 Jan. 1752 [N.H. Nov. 27: [His cousin] Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Epping, sued John Tibbets of Dover for £60 to collect an overdue note to Samuel Watson, endorsed over to Jonathan, for 6,000 feet of white pine boards, dated 26 April 1752, and another note for 1,500 feet, dated 13 May 1752; Jonathan was granted execution for £30 and costs on 9 Jan. 1753 and again 30 March 1753 [N.H. Court Files, 27524].

1753, June 18: Eliphalet Daniel sued Samuel Watson, yeoman of Dover, for £75 to collect overdue notes of £30, dated 20 Dec. 1752, and of £120 O.T., dated 21 Dec. 1752; [cousin] Jonathan Watson bailed him; Daniel was granted execution for £37 10*s* plus costs on 12 March 1754 [N.H. Court Files, 27301].

Nov. 19: Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Samuel Tibbets of Rochester for £8 to collect an overdue account of £31 O.T. for purchases (of rum and sugar) and services (4½ days gathering corn and pasturing oxen) March to July 1752, offset by £12 for delivery of 1,000 feet of "board at the mill," signed by Samuel [N.H. Court Files, 28521].

Nov. 19: Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, sued Joseph Hall for £8 to collect an overdue account of £18 for purchase of a wood sled and a gun in 1752 offset by £2 for one day "swingling flax" and a half day's work with a yoke of oxen; he was granted execution for £4 plus costs on 14 Nov. 1753 [N.H. Court Files, 28526].

1754: Isaac Libby sued Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £30 to collect an overdue note of £60 O.T. payable in pine boards by 1 May 1753, dated 17 Jan. 1753; several payments had been made, including one by [brother] Jonathan Watson; Libby was granted execution [N.H. Court Files, 4287].

May 20: John Gage sued Samuel Watson, husbandman of Dover, for £25 to collect an overdue note of £54 O.T. to Thomas Perkins payable in lumber by 1 March 1753, dated 10 June 1752; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 5*s*; Gage was granted execution for £13 10*s* plus costs on 3 Oct. 1754 [N.H. Court Files, 29483].

1760, Feb. 15: James Kielle, administrator of the estate of Samuel Watson, husbandman late of Dover, intestate, sued Jonathan Hodgdon for £5 to collect an overdue account of £14 13*s* 9*d* O.T. (dated 9 April 1752, in his lifetime) for purchase of five gallons of rum and sugar offset in part by delivery of 3,700 shingles during Sept. 1752; Lydia Watson gave a deposition on 3 March 1760 as wife and widow [N.H. Court Files, 9563].

Administration of the estate of Samuel Watson, yeoman of Dover, was granted to James Kielle 23 February 1757.[235] On 11 April 1757 [his cousin] Dudley Watson and others testified that Isaac Watson had, during his lifetime, conveyed property to his son Samuel Watson that was more than Samuel's proportion of the estate; the probate court authorized division of real estate to the other heirs two days later, Samuel Watson, the eldest son, being then deceased.[236] Samuel's heirs were not included in the final division of his father's estate in 1795, as he had received his patrimony during his father's lifetime.[237] Inventory of Samuel's estate on 16 May 1757 totaled £316 15*s* 6*d*, but claims on 28 February 1759 were £485 3*s* 8*d*, leaving the estate insolvent.[238] His estate indentured the house lot to Sylvanus Hussey for £60 on 23 December 1757.[239] License to sell the widow's dower, she being deceased, was given 6 March 1765.[240] From these records it is clear that Samuel had spent all his patrimony and more, leaving nothing for his posterity.

Children of Samuel and Lydia (____) Watson, all born in Dover, N.H.:

49. i. GEORGE[4] WATSON, b. 1748; m. ELIZABETH GERRISH.
50. ii. LILLIAS WATSON, b. ca. 1750; m. THOMAS SHANNON.
51. iii. ISAAC WATSON, b. ca. 1752; m. MARY HOGG.

15. KEZIAH[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born about 1730 in Dover, New Hampshire. She died in Durham, New Hampshire, some time after the birth of her last child on 6 August 1764 and before 22 October 1793, when she was not named in her husband's will.

She was of the Cocheco section of town when she married in Dover, on 4 February 1760, as his second wife, recorded in Master Tate's diary,[241] ELIPHALET[4] CROMWELL (Samuel[3], Philip[2], Giles[1]), who was born 12 November 1716 in Dover[242] and baptized there 31 July 1726,[243] son of Samuel and Rachel (____) Cromwell. He died in Somersworth, New Hampshire, after 22 October 1793, when he wrote his will, and before 6 January 1794, when it was proved.[244]

Keziah lived in Dover from 1730 until 1760. At marriage she moved to Somersworth, living there from 1760 at least to 1764. "Eliph Crommell" was listed in the 1790 census for Somersworth, with two males over 16, one male under 16, and one female.

Her brother Benjamin Watson was sued by Job Clements to collect an overdue account of £83 for the purchase of wool cloth and blanketing, on 17 February 1761; the account was reduced £33 by "his Sister Kezia for her trouble in keeping victuals for Joyners when my pew in Cocheco

As a gentleman of Somersworth, Eliphalet Cromwell made his will on 22 October 1793 and it was proved 6 January 1794; in it he left to his son, and executor, Samuel Cromwell, "who has lived with and assisted me," 60 acres with buildings, 7½ acres in Spruce Swamp, and all personal property; to daughters [by his first wife] Dorothy Henderson and Lucy Ricker 5*s* each; to daughter Hannah Watson a maple case with nine drawers; and to "Mr. Josiah Paul," who married daughter Elizabeth, 5*s*.[247]

Children of Eliphalet and Keziah (Watson) Cromwell, all born in Somersworth, N.H.[248]

[73.] i. HANNAH CROMWELL[4], b. 19 Nov. 1760[249]; m. (1) JAMES GUPPY, JR.; m. (2) her first cousin JAMES[4] WATSON [No. 73].
ii. ELIZABETH CROMWELL, b. 19 Dec. 1762[250]; d. before father's will of 1793; m. JOSIAH PAUL.
iii. ESTHER CROMWELL, b. ca. 1763; died young.
iv. SAMUEL CROMWELL, b. 6 Aug. 1764[251]; named in father's will, 1793.

16. JOHN[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born about 1731 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died in Scarborough, Maine, before 1 October 1759, when administration of his estate was granted.

He married in Scarborough, about 1755, ELIZABETH LARRABEE, who was born there 18 May 1732, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Johnson) Larrabee. She married, second, as his second wife, in Scarborough, 12 June 1760, ROBERT HASTY, who was born 2 February 1714 in Londonderry, Ireland, and died 29 October 1810 in Limington, Maine; she had three children with her second husband.[252] Elizabeth died on 24 January 1819 in Limington.[253]

John Watson lived in Dover from his birth until 1755. He then moved to Scarborough, where he lived as a tanner until his death in 1759. Elizabeth continued to live in Scarborough until 1783, when she moved with her second husband to Limington, where she resided to her death in 1819.

On "Fryday February 1st 1754" at the General Court in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, John Watson gave account of a vessel seen from Boon Island coming into the harbor with distress signals flying.[254]

His wife Elizabeth was granted administration of his estate on 1 October 1759. Inventory taken two days later totaled £39 6*d*, including a large Bible, a loom, and tackling. The estate was insolvent after widow's thirds and expenses, and final settlement was 1*s* 6½*d* on the pound.[255]

[His stepmother] Joanna Watson sold a one–thirteenth share from her dower and part of her "late [step]son John['s]" five acres on the road from the Cocheco Meeting House to Littleworth, to Otis Baker on 30 March 1780 for £30 [256]; [his brother] William Watson witnessed. A share of his father's estate was set off to John Watson's heirs on 11 August 1795; his widow Elizabeth also received her widow's thirds.[257]

Child of John and Elizabeth (Larrabee) Watson:

52. i. JOHN[4] WATSON, b. 22 Oct. 1757 in Scarborough, Maine; m. MARY HASTY.

17. DAVID[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born about 1732 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died after 12 June 1794, when he acknowledged a deed,[258] and before the final settlement of his father's estate on 11 August 1795,[259] possibly in Dover, or more likely in Middleton, New Hampshire.

He married, first, at the South Church in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, on 27 April 1754, MARY LANG,[260] whose parentage has not been learned. She was born about 1735 and died about 1756, probably in Dover.

David married, second, again at the South Church in Portsmouth, on 26 May 1757,[261] ABIGAIL WHITE, who was baptized at that church on 16 June 1734, daughter of Nathaniel and Hannah (____) White.[262] She died after 19 May 1788, when she signed a petition,[263] possibly in Dover, or more likely in Middleton.

David Watson was a blacksmith. He lived in Dover from his birth about 1732 until 1768, when he sold his Dover land, bought in Rochester, New Hampshire, and moved there. He sold out in Rochester and moved back to Dover in 1775. He was resident in Middleton in 1784, and was back in Dover in 1788. He apparently returned to Middleton by 1791, living there to 1794 and for some time thereafter. He is not found by name in the 1790 census, and was probably counted in the household of his son Nathan Watson in Middleton, which had two males over 16.

During the French and Indian Wars David served with his brother William Watson on the Crown Point expedition in Capt. Hercules Mooney's Company from 8 March 1757 to 9 August 1757.[264]

Real Estate Transactions of David Watson:

1754, May 20: David Watson bought 2a. by the Quaker meeting house in Dover with [uncle] David Watson's house and homestead from [his stepmother] Joanna Watson and [brother] Joseph Watson, administrators of [his father] Isaac Watson's estate, for £805 O.T. [Rockingham Deeds, 50:47].

May 29: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Mary, both signing their names, he sold a quarter–acre lot in Dover to Samuel Hall for £200 [Rockingham Deeds, 52:107].

1756, June 2: as blacksmith of Dover, he sold a house lot in Dover from the 2a. bought from his father's estate to his brother Benjamin Watson (who had "Lately Erected & set up an house frame" on the lot) for £120 O.T.; [brother] Joseph Watson witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 50:399].

1759, Aug. 2: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Abigail, both signing their names, he sold a house lot in Dover to Isaac Hill for £150 O.T.; he acknowledged 30 Oct. 1765 [Rockingham Deeds, 87:46].

1763, Feb. 13: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Abigail, both signing their names, he sold house and land in Dover on the road from Cocheco to Littleworth to Timothy White for £1,500 O.T. [Strafford Deeds, 19:323].

Oct. 8: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Abigail, she signing by "X," he sold 80a., Lot 57, Division 2, Rochester, to George Willand and Daniel Heard for £2,100 O.T. [Strafford Deeds, 112:20].

1767, March 30: as blacksmith of Dover, he sold a house and lot in Dover to his brother Benjamin Watson for 12*s* [Rockingham Deeds, 97:194].

1768, May 4: as blacksmith of Dover, he bought land in Lots 54, 55, and 56, Division 1, Rochester, from Otis Baker for £200 [Strafford Deeds, 1:441].

1769, Jan. 7: as blacksmith of Rochester with wife Abigail, he sold 1¼a. in Dover (where he used to live, next to [brother] William Watson's and to Otis Baker's land, bought from "mother in law" Joanna Watson and brother Joseph Watson, out of his father Isaac Watson's estate) and rights to [stepmother] Joanna Watson's estate, to Otis Baker for £90; he acknowledged at Dover 12 June 1794 [Strafford Deeds, 18:468].

1772, June 16: as blacksmith of Rochester, he sold, with a 3–yr. buy–back, mowing rights to 20a. in Rochester to [husband of No. 31] Heard Roberts [Rockingham Deeds, 105:821].

1775, June 2: as blacksmith of Rochester with wife Abigail, she signing by "X," he sold 70a. in Rochester "where I now live" to [husband of No. 31] Heard Roberts for £200; [Heard's brother–in–law] Thomas Watson [No. 29] witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 1:442].

June 3: he of Rochester had his rights to 80a. in Division 3, Rochester, and land in Division 4 sold at auction for unpaid 1772–1774 taxes on 29 May 1775, for 17*s* 9*d* and 12*s* to Ichabod Corson and William Allen [Strafford Deeds, 1:439; 3:22].

1784, March 17: as blacksmith of Middleton, he sold 50a. in Lot 7, Division 2, Middleton, to [son] Nathan Watson for £42 [Strafford Deeds, 37:386].

1788, May 4: as blacksmith of Dover with wife Abigail, sold 18a. in Dover (Lot 78, Division 2; 15a. he bought from brother Joseph Watson on the north side of the road from Cocheco to Littleworth; 3a. bought from "mother in law" Joanna Watson out of father Isaac Watson's estate) to Otis Baker for £150 [Strafford Deeds, 12:468].

1791, Nov. 26: as blacksmith of Middleton, he sold part of Lot 78, Division 2, Middleton, to "my son" Nathan Watson for £80 and another part to "my son" Joseph Watson for £40 [Strafford Deeds, 22:336; 37:387].

David Watson in Court Records:

1754, Aug. 16: David Watson, blacksmith of Dover, sued Stephen Harford of Rochester for £5 to collect an overdue 1752 account of £8 15*s* for horse shoeing and a chain swing [N.H. Court Files, 7183].

1760, May 19: Joseph Burley, Jr., of Newmarket sued David Watson, blacksmith of Dover, and Thomas Roberts, claiming that he had leased one–fifth of two–thirds of 2a. in Dover, part of the estate of [David's uncle] David Watson's estate, from Nathaniel Doe, in the right of [David's cousin] Sarah his wife, on 1 Jan. 1760 to farm for five yrs., and that Watson and Roberts had forcibly ejected him from the land; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 29826].

1764, Nov. 17: David Watson, blacksmith of Dover, sued Ebenezer Wentworth, Jr. and Ebenezer Wentworth for £180 to collect an overdue note of £355 O.T., dated 20 Dec. 1763 [N.H. Court Files, 22916].

1766, Feb. 18: [brother–in–law] Francis Drew, Jr. sued David Watson, blacksmith of Dover, for £23 to collect an overdue note of £364 10*s* O.T. (= £18 4*s* 6*d* N.T.), signed by him 7 May 1764; the sheriff attached a chair, worth 2*s* [N.H. Court Files, 6276].

1768, Aug. 17: John Titcomb of Dover sued David Watson, blacksmith of Rochester, for £30 to collect an overdue account of £27 14*s* 4*d* for purchases, Dec. 1759 to Aug. 1767, of rum, wine, fish, cloth, clothing, grain, a horse, a cow, and many sundries [N.H. Court Files, 6815].

1770, Feb. 19: Timothy White sued David Watson, blacksmith of Rochester, for £16 to collect an overdue note of £9 10*s*, dated 21 July 1769 [N.H. Court Files, 12598].

1774: Moses Varney sued David Watson, blacksmith of Rochester, for £2 16*s* 6*d* for non–delivery of pine boards at Cocheco Landing under a note signed 1 April 1774; although Watson defaulted, Varney could not prove his case and no judgment was rendered [Strafford Court[265] 1773/1774:97].

1775: Samuel Leighton of Kittery sued David Watson, blacksmith of Rochester, to collect an overdue note for 6,000 feet of white pine board, dated 15 Sept. 1773; Leighton was granted execution on 25 Feb. 1775 for £10 14*s* 4*d* and was paid [Rockingham Court[266] 1774/1778:248].

David was assessed parish rates for 1753 in Dover, the "Cocheco Part," at 4*s* 6*d*, at the low end of all taxes.[267] He and others petitioned the General Court on 19 January 1765 for "some allowance for the time and expense in apprehending Daniel Meserve"; recompense was voted.[268] He served as moderator at a town meeting in Dover in 1765.[269] On 19 May 1788 his wife, "Nabby," was one of the eight Watson women among the "ladies of Dover" petitioning for a reprieve of the death sentence on Elisha Thomas; three Watson men [but not David] also signed.[270] A share of his father's estate was set off to David Watson's heirs on 11 August 1795[271]; he had sold off his rights to Otis Baker in 1769, and acknowledged the deed 12 June 1794 at Dover, the last record of him.

1804 in Dover, she of Dover, he of Somersworth, as his second wife, GERSHOM HORNE.[281] She died before 24 January 1818, when her dower reverted to William's estate.[282]

William Watson, a cordwainer, resided in Dover his entire life, 1733–1800. His home was on the northwest corner of Locust and Silver Streets, next to Moses Sawyer and near Dr. Ezra Green; the house was gone by 1851.[283] His widow, Lucy, lived in Dover at least to her remarriage in 1804, and probably to her death in 1817–1818.

He performed military service at least five times during the wars with the French: he was a sentinel at Albany [New York] in Capt. Paul Gerrish's Company, Col. Gilman's Regiment from 19 September 1755 to 14 December 1755; he was in [cousin Sarah Watson's husband] Capt. Nathaniel Doe's Company, Col. Meserve's Regiment, with [his cousin] Jonathan Watson at Crown Point [New York] 12 May 1756 to 13 October 1756; William served with [his brother] David Watson on the Crown Point expedition in Capt. Hercules Mooney's Company, Col. Meserve's Regiment, 5 March 1757 to 5 November 1757; he was again at Crown Point, in Capt. Trueworthy Ladd's Company, 11 April 1758 to 27 November 1758; and, he was at No. 4 [Charlestown, New Hampshire, on the Connecticut River] 10 March 1760 to 21 November 1760, back in Capt. Samuel Gerrish's Company, Col. Goffe's Regiment.[284] In the 1758 service, Parmenas[3] Watson of South Hampton, New Hampshire (Jonathan[2], John[1] Watson of Salisbury, Massachusetts), was in the same company; in 1760, John[4] Watson of Newmarket, New Hampshire (John[3], Nathaniel[2], John[1] Watson of Rowley/Bradford, Massachusetts), was in his company. A petition of William Watson, soldier, was dismissed by the General Court on 29 January 1760.[285] In 1760 at Somersworth, "Mark Giles Enlisted [in Kings Service] and hired W[m] Watson in his Room [place]."[286]

Real Estate Transactions of William Watson:

1788, March 9: as cordwainer of Dover, he bought all rights to the estate of his father Isaac Watson through Joanna Watson, "last wife of ... Isaac," from [nephew] James Watson for £30 [Strafford Deeds, 9:257].

1802, April 27: Lucy Watson, the widow of William, had house and lot set off to her as dower [Strafford Probate, 7:255].

Nov. 16: Lucy Watson, administratrix of his estate, sold at auction 4+a., Lots 5 and 6 in Dover, to Thomas Footman for $99.67 [Strafford Deeds, 41:161].

Nov. 16: Lucy Watson, a widow of Dover, administratrix of his estate, sold at auction 8+a. (next to land set off to Keziah Watson, now owned by Benjamin Watson, and to shares of Isaac, Joseph, William, and Jonathan Watson — part of the settlement for the heirs of Isaac Watson), to [nephew] Benjamin Watson for $160.15 [Strafford Deeds, 41:219].

Nov. 22: Lucy Watson, a widow of Dover, administratrix of his estate, sold at auction half of the Congregational Meeting House pew ("with the heirs of [his brother] Benjamin Watson deceased and is the same Pew wherein the families of said Benjamin & William have usually occupied") to [nephew] Isaac Watson 3rd for $25.50; [son] John S. Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 44:193].

1818, April 21: William Twombly, administrator of the estate of William Watson, cordwainer of Dover, sold the house and lot in Dover on the northerly side of the road from the Dover Meeting House to Barrington, the dower of "Relict Lucy Horn," to Jacob M. Currier for $206.50 [Strafford Deeds, 103:376].

William Watson in Court Records:

1763, Jan. 17: John Field of Dover sued William Watson, cordwainer of Dover, for £30 to collect an overdue note of £63 15*s* O.T., dated 15 Sept. 1762 [N.H. Court Files, 6771].

June 20: William Watson, cordwainer of Dover, was charged by John Legro of Somersworth for trespass, and that on 31 May 1763 Watson beat and wounded him "with a large club or stick"; he pled not guilty, but the court found for Legro and granted execution of 30*s*, which was paid [N.H. Court Files, 4245].

1786, Nov.: William Watson, yeoman of Dover, sued Moses Canney to collect an overdue note for the delivery of £15 16*s* in pine board by 1 Jan. 1785, dated 8 Nov. 1784, and was granted judgment of £11 2*s* [Strafford Court, 1785/1790:183].

1787, June: William Waldron was granted judgment of £4 16*s* against William Watson and Moses Osgood, both yeomen of Dover, for a £7 note signed 20 May 1787 [Strafford Court, 1785/1790:313].

1792, Nov.: William Watson, cordwainer of Dover, sued Samuel Wentworth to collect an overdue note of $30 in silver (or £9), dated 22 Sept. 1791, and was granted judgment of £9 11*s* 11*d* [Strafford Court, 1792/1793:360].

1795, Jan. 26: Samuel Wentworth was granted execution for £11 4*s* 10*d* against William Watson, cordwainer of Dover [Strafford Court, 1794:31].

June: William Watson, cordwainer of Dover, sued [first cousins once removed] Thomas Watson [No. 29] and Winthrop Watson [No. 30], along with Paul Horn, trustees of Ichabod Horne, to collect an overdue note of £11 6*s* 8*d*, dated 28 Sept. 1776; after much legal argument, William was granted judgment of $22.78 [Strafford Court, 1794:261].

William Watson witnessed the will of Tobias Hanson of Dover on 18 November 1762.[287] The town paid him £1 15*s* in 1765 for use of his horse to Newbury [Massachusetts] to hire Joshua Noyes to teach school.[288] He acted as moderator of a town meeting in 1766.[289] On 30 July 1770 the First Parish Church took back the gallery pew for which he had contracted to buy but had not paid; he was also one of the ten petitioners on 31 December 1777 for a congregation meeting to raise the minister's salary to offset currency inflation.[290] The town paid him 2*s* 9*d* for a lock and hook on the pound in 1776 and £1 2*s* for repairing the pound.[291] He was town constable 1776–1782.[292] Dover "pd W^{m} Watson in part of his Son Benjamin Watsons note that he has against Said Town for corn what is paid is 54 bushels," £16 4*s* in 1782.[293]

William Watson and [nephews, sons of his brother Samuel] George Watson and Isaac Watson were among those signing a petition for a lottery to raise £300 to build a bridge, 30 August 1786.[294] He was one of three Watson men, and his wife Lucy one of the eight Watson women among the "ladies of Dover," petitioning for a reprieve of the death sentence on Elisha Thomas, 19 May 1788.[295] He, again with [nephew] George Watson and this time with [son] Ahimeaz Watson, was among the petitioners from Dover for a lottery to fund bridge building, 3 January

x. ABIGAIL WATSON, b. ca. 1785; d. 25 Sept. 1822 in Dover[311]; m. there on 24 Dec. 1812, by Rev. Joseph W. Clary, DANIEL TRACY[312]; no children.[313]

19. BENJAMIN[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born 3 April 1734 in Dover, New Hampshire.[314] He died there 31 January 1785.[315]

He married in Dover, about 1767, LYDIA[5] HANSON (Isaac[4], Tobias[3-2], Thomas[1]), who was born there 5 November 1742, daughter of Isaac and Susanna (Canney) Hanson.[316] She died in Dover during December 1827, aged 85 years.[317]

Benjamin Watson, a tailor, resided in Dover his entire life, from 1734 to 1785, near the center of the town. His widow Lydia continued to live there more than 40 years longer, to her death in 1827. She was head of the household in the 1790 census, with two males over 16, two males under 16, and four females. In the 1800 and 1810 censuses (1820 is missing for Dover) she was enumerated with her son Benjamin Watson.

Real Estate Transactions of Benjamin Watson:

1756, June 2: as tailor of Dover, he bought a house lot in Dover (where he had "Lately Erected & set up an house frame") out of the 2a. bought from their father's estate, from his brother David Watson for £120 O.T.; [brother] Joseph Watson witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 50:399].

1767, March 30: as tailor of Dover, he bought a house and lot in Dover from his brother David Watson for 12*s*; the same day, he bought 36¼a. on the Cocheco River, Dover, with part of the house and barn, from [his brother] Joseph Watson's widow Elizabeth for £122 10*s* [Rockingham Deeds, 96:193; 97:194].

April 2: as tailor of Dover, he sold the house, lot, and barn in Dover bought from his brother David Watson to Benjamin Peirce for £112 10*s* [Rockingham Deeds, 97:195].

1773, Oct. 19: as tailor of Dover with wife Lydia and the other children of Isaac Hanson, he sold rights to 17+a. and other land in the estate of Joseph Hanson, to John B. Hanson for £3 12*s*; [brother] William Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 28:150].

1783, April 22: as tailor of Dover, he bought rights to the estate of Richard Scammon of Dover from Richard Starbird for £57 10*s* [Strafford Deeds, 5:90].

1784, March 5: as tailor of Dover, he bought rights to the estate of Richard Scammon of Dover from Daniel and Elizabeth Furbush for £48 [Strafford Deeds, 20:31].

March 16: as tailor of Dover, he bought rights to the estate of Richard Scammon of Dover from Joseph and Prudence Lord for £48 [Strafford Deeds, 20:33].

1785, Jan. 29: as tailor of Dover with wife Lydia, he sold 8¼a. in Dover, next to Moses Wingate's received from her father Isaac Hanson's estate, to Moses Wingate for £45 [Strafford Deeds, 6:199].

1824, Jan. 15: Lydia Watson, singlewoman of Dover, sold a half–acre lot in Dover to grandson John Watson for $1, love and affection [Strafford Deeds, 120:456].

Aug. 19: Lydia Watson, singlewoman of Dover, sold 2a. Dover near the court-house, "descended to me from Isaac Hanson," and claim to the estate of her late husband Benjamin Watson, except for the land sold to John Watson, Jr., to [son] Benjamin Watson for $1 and his bond of maintenance ($1,000) for her support during her lifetime [Strafford Deeds, 119:474, 475].

His appearances in court and in town records were rare — one time each. Benjamin Watson, tailor of Dover, was sued for £25 by Job Clements of Dover to collect an overdue account of £83 for the purchase of wool cloth and blanketing, on 17 February 1761; he had worked five days in 1758 for Clements as partial payment, as had [brother–in–law] Francis Drew (seven days in 1757 and 1758); the account had been further reduced £33 by "his Sister Kezia for her trouble in keeping victuals for Joyners when my pew in Cocheco New meeting house was built."[318] In 1768 he bought the old pound at Cocheco from the town for £1 12*s.*[319]

Benjamin Watson of Dover and Cutts Shannon of Portsmouth were sureties of £500 for the bond of John Gage, Jr. of Dover as guardian of [Benjamin's future brother–in–law] Francis Drew, minor "upwards of" [over] 14, and Tamson Drew, children of Joseph (who died in 1757) on 31 May 1758[320]; Francis Drew became a tailor, probably having been apprenticed to Benjamin and later marrying Benjamin's sister Elizabeth. He witnessed the will of Tristram Coffin of Dover on 27 April 1761.[321]

In the division of her father Isaac Hanson's real estate on 6 April 1771, Lydia Watson received 1¾ acres and 8½ acres in Dover on the [Littleworth] road from Cocheco to Jonathan Bickford's.[322] His widow Lydia was one of the eight Watson women among the "ladies of Dover" petitioning for a reprieve of the death sentence on Elisha Thomas, on 19 May 1788; three Watson men also signed.[323] A share of his father's estate (one third of the house and barn and a half–acre lot, in Dover) was set off to Benjamin Watson's heirs in the final division on 11 August

He married, first, in Scarborough, on 20 November 1755, OLIVE[4] SEAVEY (Thomas[3], William[2-1]), who was born about 1737, daughter of Thomas and Hannah (Knight) Seavey.[333] She died there before 1789.

Jonathan married, second, on 26 July 1789 in Pepperellboro [Saco], Maine, "Sabath Evening,"[334] intention recorded in Scarborough, 10 July 1789, he of Scarborough, she of Pepperellboro,[335] HANNAH (MANNY) (SEAVEY) CHANDLER, whose parentage has not been learned. She was born during 1744 and was the widow of DAVID SEAVEY and of BENJAMIN CHANDLER. After Jonathan's death, she married for the fourth time 1 January 1805 in Scarborough, both of Scarborough, intention recorded there 8 December 1804, ROGER LIBBY.[336] She died 13 December 1828 in Buxton, Maine.[337] Jonathan and Hannah had no children.

Jonathan Watson lived in Dover from 1736 until 1755. He then moved to Scarborough, where he lived as a farmer for the rest of his life, to about 1799.

Real Estate Transactions of Jonathan Watson:

1755, Feb. 26: as laborer of Scarborough, he bought 100a. in Scarborough and Biddeford from John Hayes for £8 [York Deeds, 34:286].

1768, June 25: as yeoman of Scarborough, with Elisha Berry, Jr., he bought one–fifth of 200a. in Lots 4, 5, 6 and 8, Biddeford and Scarborough, from Joseph Jewett for £45

1785, Feb. 9: as husbandman of Scarborough, he sold all rights to the estate of his father Isaac Watson to his brother William Watson for £400 [Strafford Deeds, 19:268].

1790, April 5: as yeoman of Scarborough with wife Hannah, he sold 16a. in Scarborough to Stephen Andrews for £16; [son] Jonathan Watson, Jr. witnessed [Cumberland Deeds, 31:14].

1794, Oct. 15: he of Scarborough partitioned 187a. of 800a. in Scarborough and in Pepperelboro with Clement Meserve [Cumberland Deeds, 39:265].

1798, Oct. 25: as yeoman of Scarborough, he sold 144a. in Scarborough and in Pepperelboro, the homestead farm "where I now live," to [son] Jonathan Watson, Jr. for $200 [York Deeds, 67:277; Cumberland Deeds, 32:87].

He was assessed parish rates for 1753 in Dover, the "Cocheco Part," at 4*s* 6*d*, at the low end of all taxes.[339] Jonathan Watson's share of his father's estate was set off to [brother] William Watson as legal owner on 11 August 1795.[340] Jonathan Watson, yeoman of Scarborough, sued Thomas Libby on 12 September 1795 for $150 to collect an overdue note of £24 18*s* 1*d*, or $83.[341]

In 1771 the Massachusetts Tax Valuation List showed him in Scarborough: one poll, one–eighth mill right, one horse, two oxen, two cattle, four swine, 20 acres tilled (20 bushels of grain per year), two acres mowing (two tons of hay per year), and five acres meadow (three tons of hay per year).[342] He was listed in both Scarborough and Gorham, Maine, in the 1790 federal census, each showing two males over 16, one male under 16, and three females. In the 1798 Massachusetts Tax Valuation he was listed in Scarborough with a dwelling house on four perches, 78 square feet, and 30 acres in Pepperellboro (Saco).[343]

Children of Jonathan and first wife Olive (Seavey) Watson, all born in Scarborough, Maine:

i. OLIVE[4] WATSON, b. ca. 1756; died probably young.

69. ii. LILLIAS WATSON, b. 24 Feb. 1764; m. JONATHAN MCKENNEY.

21. ISAAC[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born about 1737 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died about 1765 in Chesapeake Bay, Maryland/Virginia.[344]

He married in Falmouth, Maine, on 29 March 1760,[345] SARAH[5] CUSHING (Jeremiah[4–3], Daniel[2], Matthew[1], Peter[A], Thomas[B], John[C], William[D], Thomas[E], William[F], Geoffrey[G]), who was born 13 October 1737 in Provincetown, Massachusetts, daughter of Jeremiah and Mary (____) Cushing.[346] She died after 11 August 1795,[347] probably in Falmouth.

"Random notes for Watson Genealogy" by Stephen Marion[6] Watson [No. 325] state that "Isaac Watson, from Dover, N. H., to Scarborough', about 1755, was bound by his elder brother Jonathan to Benjamin Thrasher of Cape Elizabeth for the trade of a tanner ... [and] was drowned from a coasting vessel in Chesapeake Bay, a few years after his marriage; the wife Sarah, did not long survive and the grandmother Cushing brought up the daughter Mary, who became the wife of Isaac Dyer."[348] Benjamin Thrasher was Isaac's first cousin, son of Joseph and Mary[2] (Watson) Thresher [No. 6].

As a tanner of Falmouth, Maine, he sold all rights to the estate of his father Isaac Watson to his brother William Watson on 21 January 1762 for £250 O.T.[349]; his mother was named as "Lyllas." On 11 August 1795 a share of his father's estate was set off to Isaac Watson's heirs and legal owners; his widow Sarah also received her widow's thirds, indicating she was then still living, contrary to S. M. Watson's statement above.[350]

22. JOSEPH[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Lillias (Chesley) Watson, was born about 1739 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died, probably on or very near 14 February 1766 (calculated by his widow's claim for a total of 344 weeks' support of his three children on 27 April 1768[351]), in Dover, but certainly before 26 March 1766, when his wife was appointed administratrix of his estate.[352]

He married, probably in Dover, about 1760, ELIZABETH ____, who was born about 1740. She married, second, before a probate accounting on 27 April 1768, as his third wife, AMOS HOWARD, who was born about 1735 and died after a probate suit on 13 December 1792.[353] She died in Dover after 13 November 1811, when she sold dower land.

Joseph Watson, a farmer, resided in Dover for his entire life, from 1739 to 1766, living on his father's homestead at Tole–end on the Cocheco River. The farm was as near to Durham settlements as it was to Dover, and Durham doctors attended illnesses in the family. His widow continued to live in Dover, where she was listed with her second husband, Amos Howard, in the 1790 census (two males over 16, one male under 16, and two females).

Real Estate Transactions of Joseph Watson:

1758, Sept. 21: as husbandman of Dover with wife Elizabeth, he sold 96a., Lot 93, Division 2, Rochester, bought by "my father Isaac Watson" in 1738 from Samuel Beard, to Daniel Titcomb, et al., for £1,000; he acknowledged 13 June 1761; Jonathan Cushing witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 66:42].

1761: as yeoman of Dover with wife Elizabeth, he sold 40a. in Division 2, Rochester, bought by his father Isaac Watson from Amos Pinkham, to Ephraim Wentworth for £502 [Rockingham Deeds, 71:161].

1767, March 30: Widow Elizabeth Watson of Dover, signing by "X," sold, to pay estate debts, 36¼a. on the Cocheco River, Dover, with part of the house and barn, to [his brother] Benjamin Watson for £112 10*s* [Rockingham Deeds, 96:193].

1811, Nov. 13: Elizabeth Howard sold 15a. in Dover, her dower from Joseph Watson, to [nephew] Benjamin Watson (five–sixths of the land and all the buildings) and to Samuel Hanson (one–sixth of the land) for $100 [Strafford Deeds, 69:348].

Joseph Watson in Court Records:

1754, Nov. 7: Joseph Watson and [stepmother] widow Joanna Watson, both of Dover, administrators of the estate of [his father] Isaac Watson, yeoman, intestate, sued Hezekiah Jenness of Hampton Falls for £10 to collect an overdue note of £22 10*s* dated 14 May 1752 [N.H. Court Files, 9277].

353. First two marriages: NEHGR 74(1920):50; 92(1938):104.

1756, Nov. 16: Joseph Watson, husbandman of Dover, was sued for £4 by Joseph Atkinson, physician of Durham, to collect an overdue account of £7 10*s* O.T., "for attendance in sickness and medicines" on 17 Sept. 1754, "for 2 visits for your wife" and "22 potions stomack powders" on 27 Nov. 1754, "for ditto" and "for a potion of Physick for yourself" on 6 June 1755; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 3*s* [N.H. Court Files, 6006].

1759, March: Joanna Watson, the widow of Isaac Watson, intestate, was declared non compos mentis: she "has fallen into Distraction ... for more than Nine Months last Past ... and has Suffered much for want of proper Care ... and has been ... very ill treated." While her dower thirds should be sufficient for her support, the property "has been Neglected and tho' She lives in the Said Mansion House of the Deceased ... and his Eldest [probably an incorrect statement, and means Joseph] Son lives there also yet he is far from taking that Care Relating to the Premises which ought to be taken ... and as he is not her Child Supposes him under no Obligation to do it." William Parker was made her overseer [N.H. Court Files, 28527].

1764, July 29: Joseph Watson, yeoman of Dover, was sued by Rebecca Adams, a widow of Durham as executrix of the estate of physician Samuel Adams, to collect an overdue note of £57 10*s* dated 19 May 1762; the sheriff attached one of his chairs, valued at 6*s* [N.H. Court Files, 86].

Joseph and his stepmother were assessed parish rates for 1753 in Dover, the "Cocheco Part," at 14*s*, in the lower middle of all taxes.[354] He witnessed the will of John Wallingford of Rochester on 27 October 1761.[355] A share of his father's estate was set off to Joseph Watson's heirs on 11 August 1795.[356]

His widow Elizabeth Watson was granted administration of his estate on 26 March 1766. Inventory of his estate on 10 April 1766 amounted to £287 4*s* 3*d*, including two–thirds of the "mansion house," two–thirds of the barn, and 50 acres [the other third belonged to his stepmother]; her widow's dower of 17+ acres and part of the house, cellar, and barn were set off to Elizabeth on 23 March 1767 [see front and end papers in this volume for the plan of division]. Claims on 30 July 1767 were £118 3*s* 9¾*d*. Administratrix Elizabeth [by now] Howard and her second husband Amos Howard submitted an accounting, which mentioned "Maintenance of three of the Deceas'ds Children being under 7 Years of Age" (344 weeks at 2*s*), and notes from [Joseph's brothers] Benjamin Watson and David Watson, which were proven to have been repaid; this accounting was allowed 27 April 1768. Claims were settled for £95 7*s* 7½*d* in August 1768; but [Joseph's brother] William Watson of Dover sued Amos and Betty Howard almost 25 years later, on 13 December 1792, for not paying his claim.[357]

Children of Joseph and Elizabeth (____) Watson, all born in Dover, N.H.:

i. ISAAC[4] WATSON, b. 23 Oct. 1760; d. after the 1810 census, probably in Dover. Isaac Watson was mustered in Sept. 1779 for 2 months' service at Portsmouth in Capt. Nute's Company[358]; the town of Dover paid him an £18 14*s* bounty as a soldier "for their service at Portsmouth under Col. Dame," 1779.[359] In 1785, Timothy Dexter sued Isaac Watson, tailor of Dover, and John Roberts to collect an overdue note for 15,000 feet of pine boards (£60) dated 9 Jan. 1782 at Newburyport, Mass., due in 7 mos., and obtained a £33 3*s* execution on 27 Sept. 1785.[360] On 6 Jan. 1790, as yeoman of Dover, he sold the rights to Joanna Watson's rights of thirds as widow of [his grandfather] Isaac Watson, 1a. in Dover, to [cousin] Ahimeaz Watson [No. 60] for £5.[361] On 16 April 1800, as Jr. and caulker of Dover, he sold rights to real estate of [father] Joseph Watson and [mother] Elizabeth Howard to [cousin] Benjamin Watson [No. 65] for $40; [future cousin–in–law] Samuel Hanson and [cousin] Isaac Watson 3rd [No. 67] witnessed.[362] He was in the 1810 census in Dover, 2 males over 45.

73. ii. JAMES WATSON, b. 8 May 1763; m. HANNAH (CROMWELL) GUPPY.

iii. SARAH WATSON, b. 2 Jan. 1766[363]; d. after 30 April 1800, when she sold land; m. BENJAMIN HAM, probably in Dover, before a deed of 30 July 1789; Benjamin died in Dover during early Jan. 1798.[364] On 30 July 1789, Benjamin and Sarah Ham, she signing by "X," sold the rights to Joanna Watson's rights of thirds as widow of [her grandfather] Isaac Watson, 1a. in Dover, to [her cousin] Ahimeaz Watson [No. 60] for £6; [her mother] Elizabeth Howard witnessed.[365] On 30 April 1800, Sarah Ham, a widow of Dover signing by "X," sold rights to real estate of her "late father Joseph Watson" and her "late mother Elizabeth Watson now Elizabeth Howard" to [cousin] Benjamin Watson [No. 65] for $40.[366] No record of children has been found, but the 1790 census lists "Benj[a] Ham" with one male over 16 and 2 females, raising the possibility that they had a daughter; Sarah is not separately identifiable in subsequent censuses.

23. JOANNA[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Isaac [4] and Joanna (____) Watson, was born about 1740 and baptized 16 June 1742 in Dover, New Hampshire, by Rev. Jonathan Cushing.[367] She died there during 1826.[368] She lived in Dover her entire life, the last 60 years as a widow.

She married in Dover, about 1759, HUMPHREY[5] HANSON (Joseph[4], Tobias[3-2], Thomas[1]), who was born 27 August 1738 in Dover[369] and baptized there 3 September 1738 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing, son of Joseph and Sarah (Scammon) Hanson.[370] He died there 13 November 1766.[371]

Administration of the estate of Humphrey Hanson, yeoman, of Dover, was granted to Ezekiel Varney on 22 July 1767; inventory of 29 November 1767, showed real estate, £266, and personal property, £80.[372]

A share of land from her father's estate was set off to Joanna Hanson on 11 August 1795.[373] She, a widow of Dover with [son] Joseph Hanson, [daughter] widow Elizabeth Gilman, and Joseph and [daughter] Sarah Richardson, sold 2+ acres [her share of her father's estate] at Pine Hill, Dover, to [nephew] Samuel Watson for $144 on 4 June 1819.[374]

Children of Humphrey and Joanna (Watson) Hanson, all born in Dover, N.H.:[375]

i. DOMINICUS HANSON[4], b. 19 Dec. 1760; d. probably by 1819. As tailor of Dover, he bought rights to one share in [his grandmother] Joanna's thirds of the estate of [his grandfather] Isaac Watson from [uncle] Daniel Watson for £15 on 6 Feb. 1793.[376] As tailor of Dover, he bought rights to the estate of [his grandfather] Isaac Watson from [uncle] Daniel Watson for £30 on 12 July 1794.[377] [His cousin] Isaac Watson [No. 67] received land in Dover next to Nathaniel Watson [No. 40] in satisfaction of a judgment of $66.01 against Dominicus on 17 Feb. 1817 [Strafford Deeds, 97:297].

ii. SARAH HANSON, b. 22 Dec. 1762; m. in Dover, 14 Dec. 1783, JOSEPH RICHARDSON, he of Durham, N.H.[378] Both living, 1819.

iii. JOSEPH HANSON, b. 18 Dec. 1764, living 1819; m. in Rochester, N.H., 4 March 1798, CHARITY DAME; nine children recorded there, 1799–1815.[379]

iv. ELIZABETH HANSON, b. 12 May 1767, living 1819; m. in Dover, 7 Dec. 1788, JOHN PHILLIPS GILMAN[380]; four children.

24. ELIZABETH[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), called "Betty," daughter of Isaac [4] and Joanna (____) Watson, was born about 1742 and was baptized 12 June 1743 as Elizabeth and again 5 October 1755 as Betty with her brothers and sister, both times by Rev. Jonathan Cushing, in Dover, New Hampshire.[381] She died there about 1817.

She married in Dover, during 1761, FRANCIS[5] DREW (Joseph[4], Francis[3], John[2], William[1]), who was born during 1738 and baptized there 24 May 1741 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing, son of Joseph and Tamsen (Drew) Drew.[382] He married, second, in Dover, 9 October 1818, the widow EUNICE (SMITH) (CHURCH) EVANS.[383] Francis died there 6 January 1824.[384]

1810: 1M (45+); 1F (45+).

Elizabeth and Francis resided in Dover their entire lives, she from 1742 to 1817, he from 1738 to 1824. He was a tailor, a trade to which he was apprenticed, after his father's death, under his brother–in–law Benjamin Watson.

[Her brother] Benjamin Watson of Dover and Cutts Shannon of Portsmouth were sureties for the £500 bond given by John Gage, Jr. of Dover as guardian of [her future husband] Francis Drew, minor "upwards of" [over] 14, son of Joseph (died 1757) and Tamson Drew, on 31 May 1758.[385] [Her brother] Benjamin Watson was sued by Job Clements to collect an overdue account of £83 for the purchase of wool cloth and blanketing, on 17 February 1761; Francis Drew worked seven days in 1757 and 1758 for Clements in partial payment of Benjamin's account.[386]

Francis Drew, Jr., tailor of Dover, sued [brother–in–law] David Watson for £23 to collect an overdue note of £364 10*s* O.T. (= £18 4*s* 6*d* N.T.), dated 7 May 1764, on 18 February 1766.[387] A share of her father's estate was set off to Francis Drew for Elizabeth Drew, his wife, on 11 August 1795.[388]

25. ZERVIA[3] WATSON (Isaac[2] Jonathan[1]), daughter of Isaac [4] and Joanna (____) Watson, was born about 1748 in Dover, New Hampshire, and baptized there 5 October 1755 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing.[390] She died in Dover 12 October 1820.[391] Her given name was variously spelled "Zervia," "Zerviah," and "Seviah."

She married in Dover, about 1763, SAMUEL[4] STACKPOLE (Joshua[3], Philip[2], James[1]), who was born there on 17 October 1740, son of Joshua and Lucy (Baker) Stackpole. He died 22 July 1824 in Rochester, New Hampshire.[392] Her half–brother William married Samuel's sister Lucy.

Zervia resided in Dover for her entire life, from 1748 to 1820, as did her husband from 1740 to 1824. "Sam[l] Stagpole" was listed in the 1790 census of Dover with two males over 16, three males under 16, and four females. In 1800 the family consisted of one male and one female over 45 (Samuel and Zervia), one female 26–45 (Lydia), and one female 16–26 (Susan).

A share of land from her father's estate was set off to Zervia Stackpole on 11 August 1795.[393] Samuel Stackpole was a lieutenant in the Revolutionary War and was pensioned 18 March 1818.[394]

26. GEORGE[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Joanna (____) Watson, was born about 1750 in Dover, New Hampshire, and was baptized there 5 October 1755 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing.[396] He died in Rochester, New Hampshire, probably about 1790 and certainly before the division of his father's estate on 11 August 1795.[397]

He married about 1775, EMMA ____, who was born about 1755. She is named in her son's death record,[398] but the date and place of death and her parentage have not been learned.

Ebenezer Meserve sued George Watson, a yeoman of Dover, in 1774 to collect an overdue note of £3 12*s* dated 10 May 1773 at Durham; Watson defaulted, but neither appeared and the case was dismissed.[399]

He resided in Dover from 1750 until 1770, and for some time thereafter. He moved to Rochester, where he lived from 1784 until his death about 1790. A share of his father's estate was set off to George Watson's heirs on 11 August 1795.[400]

27. DANIEL[3] WATSON (Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Isaac [4] and Joanna (____) Watson, was born during 1753 (calc.), in Dover, New Hampshire, and was baptized there 5 October 1755 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing.[401] He died 2 October 1822, "in Rochester N.H. [...] aged 69 years, a revolutionary pensioner,"[402] and was buried in the Meeting House Hill Cemetery.[403]

He married, first, in Dover, about 1772, ELIZABETH[5] BICKFORD (Richard[4], Jethro[3], John[2-1]), called "Betty," who was born about 1755, daughter of Richard and Sarah (____) Bickford. Evidence of her identity is found in a deed in which her son Daniel Watson, Jr. referred to his "grandfather Richard Bickford [...] late of Rochester."[404] She died in Rochester after 12 July 1794, when she signed a deed with her husband,[405] and before the 1800 census.

Daniel married, second, in Rochester, on 14 March 1811,[406] COMFORT TRICKEY, who was born there during 1777 (calc.), daughter of John Trickey. She died in Rochester on 29 November 1857, aged 80 years, and was buried in the Meeting House Hill Cemetery with her husband.[407] Daniel and Comfort had no children.

Daniel Watson lived in Dover from his birth in 1753 until 1775, when he moved to Rochester, where he lived as a farmer and tailor for the rest of his life, to 1822. His widow Comfort lived in Rochester another 35 years to 1857.

Daniel Watson served as a private in Capt. David Place's Company from October to 5 November 1775 on Seavey Island for the defense of Piscataqua Harbor.[408] He signed the Association Test on 15 October 1776 in Rochester.[409] He was on the 10 September 1776 muster roll in Capt. William McDuffee's Company, 2nd Regiment to reinforce [upstate] New York, and allowed 320 miles travel[410]; his nephew Isaac Watson was in the same company at the same time. He, aged 23 years of Rochester, enlisted again 1 May 1777 in Capt. Frederick M. Bell's Company and was paid for travel 22 May to Charlestown, Massachusetts.[411] Having enlisted for three years the previous year, during July 1778 Daniel was in Capt. James Carr's Company, Col. Nathan Hale's (2nd New Hampshire) Regiment, under Gen. Poor, at North Castle [New York].[412] In February 1779, the town of Rochester supplied £105 18*s* in "sundry Necessaries" to his family "in his absence" as a soldier.[413] He was on the 1 January 1780 muster roll in New York as a private in the 4th Company, 2nd New Hampshire Regiment (Col. George Reid), and paid $169.15 for currency depreciation.[414] On 30 March 1783 the town paid £93 10*s* 11*d* "bounty to several soldiers allowed by the General Court," including Daniel Watson.[415]

Daniel Watson of Rochester applied for a pension 4 April 1818, deposing that he was aged 65 years, that he enlisted in the Spring of 1777 and served in Capt. James Carr's Company, 2nd New Hampshire (Col. Nathan Hale's) Regiment, Gen. Poor's Brigade, until discharged 29 April 1780, and that he was in the battle of Hubbardton and was with Gen. Sullivan to the Genesee Country on the expedition against the Indians; James Carr corroborated his service, and the claim was allowed. He deposed again 4 July 1820, aged 67 years, that his family consisted of his wife, aged 50, insane. Comfort Watson, aged 75 years, of Rochester, deposed 28 February 1853 that Daniel died 2 October 1822, that they were married 14 March 1811 by Rev. Joseph Haven (confirmed by the Rochester town clerk), and that her maiden name was Comfort Trickey. On 14 April 1855, she, aged 77 years of Rochester, applied for bounty land; 160 acres were granted 29 December 1855.[416]

Real Estate Transactions of Daniel Watson:

1787, June 11: as tailor of Rochester, he quit–claimed one–thirteenth of 5a., his share of widow's "thirds set off to my Honored Mother, deceased," in the upper field leading to Littleworth (sold by Joanna Watson in 1780 to Otis Baker), to Otis Baker for £3; he acknowledged 19 Feb. 1796 at Dover [Strafford Deeds, 22:102].

1789, April 1: as tailor of Rochester, he bought 1⅛a. in Lot 10, Division 1, Rochester, from James How for £15 [Strafford Deeds, 44:402].

1793, Feb. 6: as tailor of Rochester, he sold his rights to one share "in my mothers thirds of the estate of Isaac Watson," except that portion sold to Otis Baker, to [nephew, son of his sister Joanna] Dominicus Hanson, tailor of Dover, for £15 [Strafford Deeds, 15:361].

1794, July 12: as tailor of Rochester with wife Betty, he sold his rights to the estate of his father Isaac Watson to [nephew] Dominicus Hanson for £30 [Strafford Deeds, 19:271].

1799, March 20: as tailor of Rochester, he mortgaged 1⅛a. in Lot 10, Division 1, Rochester, to Jabez Dame for $41.15; the mortgage was satisfied 4 June 1806 [Strafford Deeds, 44:403].

1806, June 3: as tailor of Rochester, he sold 1⅛a. in Lot 10, Division 1, Rochester, to Daniel Dame for $1.04 [Strafford Deeds, 50:516].

1825, Oct. 11: Comfort Watson, a widow of Rochester, sold land in Rochester from her late father John Trickey's homestead to David Wingate for $20 [Strafford Deeds, 128:206].

1843, June 10: Comfort Watson, a widow of Rochester, with Jacob, Isaac, and Mary Trickey and Charles and Ruth Harford, sold 3½a. in Rochester to David Wingate for $50 [Strafford Deeds, 195:262].

Daniel Watson was among about 300 Rochester citizens petitioning to repeal the Lumber Act [prohibiting trade with the British West Indies, etc., a major blow to the local economy, which relied heavily on lumbering] on 30 August 1785.[417] The only town office he held was that of field driver, elected 10 March 1787.[418] A share of his father's estate was set off to Daniel Watson's heirs, and not directly to him, despite the fact that he was still living, on 11 August 1795[419]; he had sold his own share in 1793 and 1794. Also in 1795, he settled with the tax collector, paying $2.62 "for Jn° Tanner for payment of Col. Roberts 179_."[420]

Daniel Watson is found in the 1790 census of Rochester with one male over 16, three males under 16, and one female. In 1800, still in Rochester, he was alone, aged 26–45. He is not separately listed in the 1810 or 1820 censuses, and was probably living by then with the Trickeys. His widow was doubtless included in one of the Trickey families in 1830 and 1840, and in 1850 she, aged 73 years, was enumerated with her brother Isaac Trickey in Rochester.

Tax records directly mirror Daniel's ownership of real estate. He worked his small plot of land until 1806, when he sold it to satisfy debts on it. In 1811 he remarried, and Comfort brought with her a parcel of land from her father's estate that appears on the tax rolls from 1812. It is clear that Daniel was only of modest means throughout his life, further shown by his being pensioned in 1818.

Watson Marriages to Descendants of Daniel[2] Horne

29. THOMAS[4] WATSON (Dudley[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Dudley [7] and Christine (Baker) Watson, was baptized "in private" 10 August 1743 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing in Dover, New Hampshire.[434] He died there on 25 February 1802, aged 60 years, "on Thursday last, Col. ... a native citizen, and a worthy Republican, [of] Pul[monary] fever."[435]

He married in Dover, on 31 December 1770, by Dr. Jeremy Belknap,[436] ABIGAIL[3] HORNE (Daniel[2-1]), who was baptized there on 2 October 1743 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing, daughter of Daniel and Lydia (Roberts) Horne.[437] Her sister Mary married Thomas' brother Winthrop Watson. She died there some time after Thomas' death in 1802.

Thomas, a farmer, resided at Tole–end in Dover on the family homestead, for his entire life, from 1743 to 1802. Later in life he was accorded the titles of respect in the community, "gentleman" and "Colonel."

Real Estate Transactions of Thomas Watson:

1777, Dec. 5: as gentleman of Dover, he bought 10a. at Tole–end, Dover, from Ichabod Horne for £80 [Strafford Deeds, 5:118].

1778, June 4: as gentleman of Dover with [brothers] Winthrop Watson and Otis Watson he sold 60a. in Lot 7, Division 2, Rochester [acquired by father Dudley Watson in 1761], to [brother–in–law] Aaron Ham for £40 [Strafford Deeds, 2:221].

1779, Jan. 29: as gentleman of Dover, he sold 40a. in Lot 7, Division 2, Rochester, to Benjamin Evans for £200 [Strafford Deeds, 2:396].

1783, April 23: as gentleman of Dover, he bought 30a. in Dover from Thomas Hayes for £270, and another 15a. adjacent for £85 the same day [Strafford Deeds, 7:495, 496].

Sept. 10: as gentleman of Dover, he sold land on the road to Littleworth in Dover to Ebenezer Baker for £25 [Strafford Deeds, 20:214].

1787, July 24: as gentleman of Dover, he bought half an acre and half of a house and barn in Dover from Thomas Hayes for £20 [Strafford Deeds, 12:31].

1797, Dec. 22: as husbandman of Dover with [brother] Winthrop Watson, he bought 40a. in Lot 176, Range 4, Barrington, from William and Samuel Hale and Isaac Waldron for $770 [Strafford Deeds, 56:12].

1798, Dec. 1: as gentleman of Dover, he sold 10a. in Dover, bought from Thomas Hayes, to Jacob Canney for $166.67; [brother] Winthrop Watson and [son] Dudley Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 68:490].

1804, March 13: his estate bought 10a. in Dover, held in common with [brother] Winthrop Watson, from Winthrop Watson (received from his father Dudley Watson), for $200 [Strafford Deeds, 50:105].

v. LYDIA WATSON, b. ca. 1783; d. Nov. 1814 in Dover.[447] As singlewoman of Dover, with her brothers and sisters, she sold 20a. in Barrington, half of the 40a. father Thomas Watson held in common with [uncle] Winthrop Watson, to Winthrop Watson for $1 on 27 March 1807.[448] As singlewoman of Dover, with [brothers and sisters] (children of Thomas Watson) Aaron Watson, Dudley Watson, Abigail Watson, and Hannah Watson, and with [uncle] Winthrop Watson, she sold 6+a. in Lot 176, Range 4, Barrington, to Abednego Drew for $30 on 28 Oct. 1809.[449] As singlewoman of Dover, with [brother] Aaron and [sister] Abigail, she bought 110a. in Dover on Tole End Road next to [cousin] Daniel Watson and 8½a. in Barrington, inherited from [father] "Col^{l} Thomas Watson," from [brother] Dudley Watson for $100 on 2 April 1814.[450]

30. WINTHROP[4] WATSON (Dudley[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Dudley [7] and Christine (Baker) Watson, was born 2 December 1747 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died there on 3 March 1834 and was buried in the family plot on the homestead at Tole–end, Dover.[451]

He married in Dover, on 12 March 1776, by Dr. Jeremy Belknap,[452] MARY[3] HORNE (Daniel[2–1]), who was baptized there on 13 October 1754 by Rev. Jonathan Cushing, daughter of Daniel and Lydia (Roberts) Horne.[453] Her sister Abigail married Winthrop's brother Thomas Watson. She died during early February 1842 in Dover, aged 87 years, as "widow of Winthrop," and was buried with her husband at Tole–end, Dover.[454]

Winthrop, a farmer later styled "gentleman," resided on the family homestead at Tole–end in Dover for his entire life, from 1747 to 1834. Mary lived there, with son Samuel, another eight years as his widow to her death in 1842.

Winthrop Watson, yeoman of Dover, aged 25 years, was on the rolls of Capt. Benjamin Titcomb's Company, Col. Enoch Poor's Regiment, on 13 June 1775.[455] He joined the company 26 May 1775 as sergeant, served two months, 11 days, and received a coat, blanket, and £2 8*s*. In the same company and regiment at Medford, Massachusetts, he received $4 coat money 4 October 1775.[456] On 17 September 1832, in support of pension application by Daniel Cushing [nephew of his aunt Deborah (Cushing) (Watson) Wingate], he deposed that he had "enlisted as a private soldier at Dover N. H. in a Company of New Hampshire Militia commanded by Capt. Benj^{n} Titcomb, in Col. Poor's Regiment and marched to Winter Hill [Massachusetts], we left Dover 19 June 1775. I continued in the Service three or four months — when my place was supplied by my Brother [Samuel Watson] as my substitute. Daniel Cushing of Dover enlisted with me."[457] The next day, 18 September 1832, he, aged 84 years of Dover, deposed that he had enlisted in the spring of 1775 for eight months in Capt. Benjamin Titcomb's Company, that he marched to Winter Hill, Massachusetts, and that he served as sergeant to the end of his enlistment, when he was verbally discharged. Daniel Cushing testified "We were in one mess." On 29 May 1833 he stated that he was born in Dover, New Hampshire, 2 December 1747 O.S. and that he had been married 57 years. On 22 October 1838 Mary Watson, aged 84 years of Dover, and daughter Sally Horn of Dover, with whom Mary was then living, deposed that Winthrop and Mary were married 12 March 1776 and that Winthrop had died 3 March 1834; the claims were allowed.[458]

Winthrop Watson was a Revolutionary War pensioner at $26.66 per year from 4 March 1831, on the rolls 28 September 1833, for service as private in the New Hampshire Continental Line; he died 3 March 1834, aged 86 years. His widow Mary Watson was a pensioner, aged 86 years, living with [son] Samuel Watson 3rd, on 1 June 1840.[459]

* "& son Sam'l"

These tax records demonstrate Winthrop's prosperity as a farmer. Returns for the years 1813–1819 do not appear in the records. By 1820 he had transferred the property to his sons and was living with Samuel on the homestead, but since he was over 70 he was not taxed, and his name is not found.

The town paid Lt. Winthrop Watson £31 8*s* for keeping Mary Roberts [his sister Mary's mother–in–law] in 1778, $24 in 1779, and $291 in 1780 (the year Mary Roberts died); his brother Thomas was also paid for 1779.[460] He and his brother Thomas were paid $729 for supplying beef in 1780.[461] His wife, "Polly," was one of the eight Watson women among the "ladies of Dover" petitioning for a reprieve of the death sentence on Elisha Thomas, 19 May 1788; three Watson men [but not Winthrop] also signed.[462] He and [second cousin, No. 49] George Watson were signers of a Dover petition for a law against playing billiards in 1791.[463] The Tole–end schoolmaster, Joseph Hanson, boarded with Winthrop Watson 1810–1813; Winthrop was active in voting to raise $150 for a new school house at Tole–end on 16 July 1817, and he was among the ten "chief property owners" who paid 70% of that levy.[464]

Real estate and tax records clearly show that Otis B. Watson was running the "day," or contract, saw mill at the fifth (Waldron's, or Watson's) falls up the Cocheco River above Tole–end, which had been in the Watson family since his grandfather David[2] Watson bought the 142 acres on the south side of the falls from Richard Waldron in 1732, giving half to Otis' father Dudley[3] Watson in 1736. He also owned shares in the local bank. At the beginning of 1800 he sold out his share of the business and mill rights to Obadiah Whittier, who was already operating mills downstream at the second (or Whittier's) falls.[499] Otis then farmed the land, bought in 1800, for eight years with some success, but had mortgaged the property and in 1808 sold out to satisfy his debts. Alton tax records reflect his modest farmstead with little livestock; this too he sold, in 1811, receiving full tax abatement from the town.[500] The last four years of his life were in Sandwich, probably on the 50 acres bought in 1811; no tax records have survived for this period in that town.

A petition of Otis Baker Watson to the New Hampshire House of Representatives was referred to committee on 26 January 1791.[501] He was elected tythingman for Alton 14 March 1809.[502] The town paid him $5 for timbers and work on roads in 1811.[503] A drift road was laid out past his house in Sandwich 19 November 1811.[504]

Administration of the estate of Otis B. Watson, husbandman of Sandwich, was granted to [son] James H. Watson, also husbandman of Sandwich, 12 November 1816.[505] Inventory was taken 15 November 1816, for a total of $388.42: real estate, $300; neat stock and horse, $35; furniture (two beds, five chairs, a table, and chest of drawers), $31; and, three wheels, a loom, tools, etc., $22.42.[506]

When Richard Garland was interviewed during the 1840s by Lucy Crawford for her 1846 History of the White Mountains, he recalled arriving in Bartlett in 1783 with four other pioneers. They had to transport goods the 75 miles from Dover, by hand sled in winter and by dugout canoe in summer. "He said it took him several years to clear a small plot of land for cultivation, but then he had neither plow to work it nor team to draw the plow" — both had to be borrowed from neighbors miles away. "A man of remarkable stamina, Garland often went back to his outdoor tasks after supper, working by the light of a brush fire which his wife stoked. Yet, when Bartlett became a town, he found time to serve as its first tax collector and constable," from 9 July 1790.[523]

Richard Garland supported the pension claim of [his wife's first cousin] Stephen Watson [No. 45] of Acton, Maine, who had traveled the 55 miles to Bartlett, New Hampshire, to get Richard's deposition on 18 August 1832.[524]

36. DANIEL[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [8] and Deborah (Cushing) Watson, was born, probably in Dover, New Hampshire, during 1746, his first poll tax at age 21 being in 1767. He died sometime after 17 March 1819, when he was on a pension list.

He married about 1772, MARY ____, who was born about 1750. The date and place of her death have not been learned.

A year after his birth his family moved from Dover to Exeter, New Hampshire, where they lived to 1752, then moving to Epping, New Hampshire, where he resided until 1819, and for some time thereafter.

Daniel "Wadson" served as a sergeant in Capt. Robert Crawford's Company on Goat Island for the defense of Piscataqua Harbor, from 5 November 1775.[535] In July 1776 he was on the roll of men raised for Canada in Capt. David Quinby's Company, Col. Josiah Bartlett's Regiment.[536] He submitted an account to the state for his £16 loss at Ticonderoga.[537] A Daniel Watson, aged 81 years, private in the New Hampshire Line, was on the Rockingham County [New Hampshire] pension rolls at $96 per year, 17 March 1819, from 4 April 1818[538]; while the age is off by ten years, it could well have been misrecorded, misread, or miscopied, and this is probably the correct placement for this individual — no other Daniel could fit. The only other records of Daniel were dated 1767 and 1768, when he was on Exeter tax rolls, in the former at the minimum amount indicating only a poll tax, and in the latter his name lined out, showing his short stay in town had ended.[539] Daniel is not found in any census records.

37. STEPHEN[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [8] and Deborah (Cushing) Watson, was born about 1747 in Exeter, New Hampshire. He died 10 September 1784 in Barrington, New Hampshire.[540]

He married in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, on 17 October 1778, by Rev. Samuel Haven, both of Portsmouth,[541] HANNAH[3] COLBARTH (Pitman[2], George[1]), who was baptized on 3 October 1756 by Rev. Joseph Adams in Newington, New Hampshire, daughter of Pitman and Jane (Hodgdon) Coolbroth.[542] She married, second, in Barrington, on 1 October 1788, JOHN SNOW, both of Barrington.[543] She died on 20 May 1842 in Portsmouth.[544] The family name was spelled with many variants, including Coolbroth, Coolbroath, Colbarth, and Colbath.

Stephen was a farmer. He lived in Exeter from his birth until 1752. His family then moved to Epping, New Hampshire, and he lived there at least to 1759. By 1777 he was resident in Brentwood, New Hampshire, and was of Portsmouth at the time of his marriage in 1778, living there at least to 1780. He had returned to Barrington by 1784, and died there that year. His widow stayed in Barrington at least to her remarriage in 1788, thereafter returning to Portsmouth.

Stephen Watson entered Capt. Nicholas Rawlings' Company, Col. Abraham Drake's Regiment 8 September 1777 and was discharged on 15 December 1777, serving three months and eight days, plus travel to Bennington [Vermont] (£2 7*s* 6*d* at 3*d*/mi.) and travel home from New Windsor (£2 11*s* 8*d* at 2*d*/mi.); the unit was stationed at Stillwater, New York.[545]

Stephen Watson, yeoman of Barrington, bought 60 acres in Lot 36, Division 1, Barrington, from Samuel Ham, Jr. for £72 on 1 April 1784[546]; Ham again deeded the land to Stephen's son Samuel on 1 September 1785, Stephen then deceased.[547] Hannah's Barrington taxes were abated on 29 May 1786 with the notation: "Voted from Abraham Waldrons list Widow Watsons rates."[548]

Stephen Snow, on behalf of the children of Stephen Watson's former widow, applied for a pension in 1851, stating that Hannah Colbath had married Watson in 1778 and that he had died 10 September 1782 [probably in error for 1784]. Hannah was remarried to John Snow, who died on 14 January 1837, and she died on 20 May 1842, leaving three living [Snow] children. Her brother George Colbath, aged 93 years, of Portsmouth, deposed 25 April 1851 that he knew Stephen Watson "of Brentwood" and that he attended his wedding to his sister, then of Portsmouth, in 1778; in a further deposition 5 May 1852, George, now aged 94 years, stated that he and Stephen served together in Capt. Nicholas Rawlings' Company, Col. Abram Drake's Regiment, for 5½ months, and that Stephen served again for another 3½ months. The claim was allowed for payment, from 1831 to Hannah's date of death.[549]

Jonathan[4] Watson Homestead and Barn, built ca. 1793 Limerick, Maine (1998).

38. JONATHAN[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [8] and Deborah (Cushing) Watson, was born during 1749 in Exeter, New Hampshire (calculated from his first poll tax at age 21 in 1770). He died during 1803 in Limerick, Maine, as reported in "Rev. Charles Freeman Record of Limerick Deaths," at age 47 [probably in error].[551]

After a first marriage to a wife whose identity has not been learned, he married, second, in Brentwood, New Hampshire, about 1781, SARAH (____) EDGERLY, who was born about 1752,[552] widow of Joseph Edgerly.[553] She died during February 1819 in Limerick, Maine.[554]

When Jonathan was three years old in 1752, his family moved to Epping, New Hampshire, where he spent his youth to 1774. He then moved to Brentwood, where he was living to 1799, when he removed to Limerick, Maine. He resided there for the rest of his life, to 1803. His widow lived in the family homestead, on Watson Hill in Limerick, until her death in 1819. Jonathan Watson was a farmer and carpenter. His farm remained in the family more than 150 years, until the 1960s, passing through son David's family; the original house built in 1797 still stands, with a fireplace in every room, high poster beds, and two grandfather clocks.[555]

Real Estate Transactions of Jonathan Watson:

1783, Oct. 2: as yeoman of Brentwood, he bought 20a. in Brentwood from Robert Metlin for £60 [Rockingham Deeds, 116:33].

Oct. 31: as yeoman of Brentwood with wife Sarah, both signing by "X," he sold 20a. in Brentwood to Sarah Mitlin; Job Judkins witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 115:426].

1784, Sept. 29: he of Brentwood bought 30a. in Brentwood on the north side of road from Thomas Odiorne for 300 Spanish milled dollars [Rockingham Deeds, 200:157].

Lorenzo Dow[7] Watson, No. 359, is the subject of the book carrying his name, written by one of his daughters and by a grandson. It is a comprehensive biography covering his whole life in fascinating detail, based on many family letters and interviews. It is apparently well researched: while it contains little documentation, verification of many facts from primary and secondary sources has found no conflict, making the work quite credible.

553. Joseph[4] Edgerly (Samuel[3], Thomas[2], Thomas[1]), son of Samuel & Abigail (____) Edgerly, was born ca. 1739 in the Brentwood section of Exeter, N.H., and died at the end of 1776 or beginning of January 1777 [Sarah administered the estate from 10 January 1777]; the Norman F. Edgerly Manuscript at NEHGS, Boston [SG/EDG/20], 2:10, 29, treats the family with good detail, but does not include the marriage to Sarah or the four children of Joseph and Sarah: Samuel, Abigail, Joseph and Sally, named for his parents and for them.

Jan. 14: as yeoman of Brentwood, he bought 24a. in Brentwood from Andover Academy for $73.97 [Rockingham Deeds, 201:532].

1797, Dec. 19: as yeoman of Brentwood, he bought an undivided one–third of Lot 10, Range H and Lots 5, 6, 7, and 8, Range I, Limerick, Maine, from Samuel Smith for $480 [York Deeds, 242:104].

Dec. 20: as yeoman of Brentwood, he bought an undivided one–quarter of 340a. Lot 10, Range H, and Lots 5, 6, 7, and 8, Range I, Limerick, Maine, from Moses and Eunice Wells of Hampton Falls, N.H., for $340 [York Deeds, 242:105].

Dec. 25: as yeoman of Brentwood, he bought 170a. in Limerick, Maine (half of Lot 10, Range H, and Lots 5, 6, 7, and 8, Range I) from Moses and Eunice Wells of Hampton Falls, N.H., for $680 [York Deeds, 96:156].

1798, April 25: as husbandman of Brentwood, signing by "X," he sold 50a. there on the road between Exeter and Epping (bought from the academies) and 30a. on the south side of the road, to Daniel Smith for $600 [Rockingham Deeds, 148:170].

May 1: as yeoman of Brentwood, he bought back land there on the road between Exeter and Epping from Daniel Smith for $200 [Rockingham Deeds, 154:210].

Aug. 2: as yeoman of Brentwood with wife Sarah, both signing by "X," he sold 50a. there (bought from Richard York) to Joseph Bean for $560 [Rockingham Deeds, 156:88].

1799, March 2: as yeoman of Brentwood, signing by "X," he sold 23a. in Epping and Newmarket (bought from John Connor) to Gilman Leavitt for $112 [Rockingham Deeds, 154:211].

Aug. 17: as yeoman of Limerick, Maine, with wife Sarah, both signing by "X," he sold 52a. in Brentwood (bought from Phillips Exeter Academy and Odiorne) to Gilman Leavitt for $312; [son] David Watson witnessed [Rockingham Deeds, 155:120].

1800, March 14: as of Limerick, Maine, with wife Sarah, both signing by "X," he sold 2a. in Brentwood to Caleb Swain for $350 [Rockingham Deeds, 185:31].

March 15: as yeoman of Limerick, he bought an undivided one quarter of Lot 10, Range H, and Lots 5, 6, 7, and 8, Range I, Limerick, from Sally Wells (received from her father Joseph Wells of Hampton Falls, N.H.) [York Deeds, 242:106].

Oct. 14: as husbandman of Limerick, signing by "X," he sold 19+a. in Brentwood to John Smart for $156 [Rockingham Deeds, 185:26].

Nov. 1: as husbandman of Limerick, he bought 25a. in Limerick (one–quarter of Lot 11, Range H) from [cousin] Peter Cushing of Exeter, N.H., for $125; [sons] David Watson and Jonathan Watson, Jr. witnessed [York Deeds, 96:155].

1802, Feb. 4: as yeoman of Limerick, he bought 40a., half of Lot 3, Range L, Cornish, on the Limerick line, from Andrew Wiggin [York Deeds, 106:20].

Jonathan Watson appears on the tax rolls for Exeter, New Hampshire, in 1770 and 1771, in the bottom quartile of rate payers; he reappears in 1785, taxed for a poll, two cows, and nine head of cattle.[556] He is not taxed before 1770, between 1772 and 1784, or after 1785, even though Exeter records exist for all years from 1763 onward; Jonathan apparently lived most of those years in Brentwood and only briefly rented property in Exeter. He does appear once more, in 1783, when Exeter paid him 9*s* "for 1 Load of Wood by order of the Overseers of the Poor."[557]

From Brentwood he was petit juror 14 July 1788.[558] He was elected fence viewer 21 March 1791, 19 March 1792, and 18 March 1793, and surveyor of highways and bridges 17 March 1794 and 16 March 1795.[559] The town of Epping paid him $8 for a road from Exeter through his land on the Brentwood line, he "Jr." signing by "X," and witnessed by [son] John Watson, on 6 December 1797.[560]

Sarah Edgerly was appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband, Joseph Edgerly of Brentwood, on 10 January 1777, with [neighbors] Nicholas Smith and Jonathan Connor as sureties. Inventory was taken 17 April 1777, totaling £228 4*s*. Jonathan Watson of Brentwood, signing by "X," became guardian of Joseph Edgerly, son of Joseph, a minor over 14, on 7 September 1791, with [neighbor] Daniel Smith and [cousin] Peter Cushing [No. 10, i.] as sureties. Jonathan Watson and his wife Sarah, as administrators, both marking by "X," rendered an accounting on 23 April 1796, which named all Edgerly children of Joseph and Sarah: Samuel, Abigail, Joseph, and Sally. Dower of six acres in Brentwood was set off to the widow Sarah Watson on 16 October 1792, and final division of Joseph Edgerly's real estate was made the same day: 13½ acres to Samuel Edgerly, 3¾ acres to Joseph Edgerly, 18½ acres to Sally Edgerly, and 6¾ acres to Abigail Edgerly, all in Brentwood on the road from Jonathan Watson's to Capt. Butler's, and next to [cousin] Peter Cushing's homestead.[561]

after the 1800 census and before 12 February 1811, when she is not named in her husband's will.[567]

David lived in Epping from his birth until 1769, when he removed to Meredith, where he lived as a farmer for the rest of his life, to 1811.

David Watson signed the Association Test in Meredith in 1776.[568] He was mustered 30 September 1777 into Capt. Nathaniel Ambrose's Company, Col. Welch's Regiment, which marched the same day from Moultonborough to Saratoga, New York; after Burgoyne's surrender they marched to Northampton, Massachusetts, and he was discharged 30 October 1777, having served one month and one day; he was paid for travel to No. 4 [Charlestown, New Hampshire, on the Connecticut River], 18*s* 3*d*, 73 miles at 3*d*, and for 180 miles home, £1 10*s* at 3d.[569]

Real Estate Transactions of David Watson:

1771, March 5: as yeoman of Meredith, he bought 100a., Lot 1, Range 6, Division 1, Meredith, from William Mead for £20 [Strafford Deeds, 2:251].

June 5: as husbandman of Meredith, he bought 100a., Lot 8, Range 14, Gilmanton, from Joseph Badger, Jr. for £67 10*s* [Strafford Deeds, 8:36].

1782, Nov. 10: he witnessed the deed for the sale of half of 100a. in Meredith from Ebenezer Smith to [brother–in–law] Job Judkins and was surety for the payment of a £30 note from Judkins; the mortgage was released on 19 Aug. 1793 [Strafford Deeds, 60:113].

1786, Feb. 6: as yeoman of Meredith, he sold 2a. from his homestead Lot 1, Range 7, Meredith, to John Perkins for £10 10*s* [Strafford Deeds, 12:267].

1794, Jan. 24: as yeoman of Meredith, with wife Elizabeth signing by "X," he sold 46a. of the 95a. in Division 3, Meredith, bought from the town, to Jonathan Philbrick for £94 [Strafford Deeds, 20:518].

May 1: as yeoman of Meredith, he sold half of the school lot in Division 3, Meredith, to Josiah Perkins for £90 [Strafford Deeds, 41:305].

1795, Dec. 1: as yeoman of Meredith, he bought 10a. in Lots 1 and 2, Meredith, next to his other land from Joshua Crocket for $100 [Strafford Deeds, 20:507].

1802, Oct. 8: as yeoman of Meredith, he sold half of 100a., Lot 8, Range 14, Gilmanton, N.H., to [brother] William Watson of Pittsfield, N.H., for $400; [son] Jonathan Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 42:23].

1805, Dec. 9: as yeoman of Meredith, he sold an undivided half of 100a., Lot 8, Range 14, Gilmanton, to [son] Job Watson for $400 [Strafford Deeds, 50:24].

In 1769 and 1770 the proprietors of townships in the New Hampshire wilderness commissioned Jotham Ridge to take stock of settlements on their grants. In his journal, Ridge recorded that he visited David Watson's homestead on Lot 1, Range 6, in "New Salem Jan^{y} 15th 1770," finding David and his wife [no children indicated], seven acres cleared and four acres felled; and a frame [not log] house, 24' by 30'. On 15 November 1770 the surveyor visited David again in Meredith and found ten acres cleared and five acres felled; he also noted that there were three in the family by then and they lived in "orignely Joseph Clerk fraim house."[570] From these records we can judge that he settled in Meredith with his new wife in 1769 and continued the clearing and building started by Joseph Clark not long before. That David had cleared three acres and felled four acres in 1770 is evident. The lot was between Great Bay and Round Bay on the point of land that is now in the heart of the city of Laconia. That their first child had been born that year is clear as well. As seen in the deeds above, he purchased the property the following year.

An 1885 biographical sketch noted that David, of Meredith, "cleared land in Gilford, near the Gunstock River and the present village, and began building in 1798. Sons Jonathan and Job lived on the place."[571] This was the 100 acres in Lot 8, Range 14, in the section of Gilmanton that became Gilford in 1812 and that David sold to his son Job Watson, half indirectly through his brother William Watson in 1802 and half directly in 1805. It is evident that he was actively assisting his sons in setting up their homesteads out of wild land.

[His son] Jonathan Watson of Meredith was granted administration of the estate of [brother–in–law] Job Judkins, yeoman of Meredith, giving a $3,000 bond with David Watson as surety.[572] In the division of Job Judkins' estate on 12 July 1811, heirs of his sister Elizabeth Watson (she near the last named and among the youngest of the siblings) were to receive six acres and 54 square rods in Meredith, and they were to provide $75 value for the upkeep of her brother Joseph Judkins, non compos mentis.[573]

12 February 1811; it was proved 18 March 1811. In it he provided: "unto my oldest son Jonathan Watson" $100 to be paid by son Winthrop Watson in six months and $100 value of land in the homestead farm; "unto my second son Job Watson" the return of two notes ($168 dated 9 December 1805, on which $50 had been paid, and $10 dated 7 April 1810); "unto my third son Winthrop Watson" half of the homestead farm in Meredith and the "farming utensils." Winthrop Watson was also to pay legacies: "unto my oldest daughter Deborah Watson" one–eighth of the homestead and one–third of the household goods; "unto my daughter Jenney Watson" one–eighth of the homestead and one–third of the household goods; "unto my daughter Sally Watson" one–eighth of the homestead and one–third of the household goods; "unto Henry Sanborn son of my daughter Hannah" one–eighth of the homestead; "unto my daughter Betsey Dearborn" $10; and "unto my daughter Hannah Lang" $10. Isaac Ladd was to be executor.[574]

Inventory of his estate was taken 26 June 1811, showing assets of $2,837.87: the homestead farm of 132 acres, $2,000; livestock (one yoke of oxen, one yoke of three–year steers, three cows, five heifers, a horse, colt, and mare, and nine sheep), $314.41; a pew, $20; notes due (from the town, $40, from [son] Job Watson, $164.46, and from [son–in–law] "Abraham Derborn," $6.37); furniture, $96.72; and, tools, etc., $195.91.[575] In April 1811, legacies were paid to Job Watson ($175.01), to Winthrop Watson ($166.72), to Deborah Watson ($49.21), to Jane Watson ($49.21), and to Sally Watson ($49.21); on 16 March 1813 the estate was settled in full with payments to Deborah Watson ($34.47), Jane Watson ($34.47), Sally Watson ($34.47), and Winthrop Watson ($172.33)[576]; Winthrop and "Jeney" were able to write their names, but "Debra" and "Sally" marked by "X." The real estate was divided among the heirs on 10 May 1817: to son Winthrop Watson 57 acres and half of the house and barn; to daughter Deborah Powell 18 acres and one–sixth of the house and barn; to grandson Henry Sanborn 16 acres; to daughter Jane Watson 14 acres and one room in the house; and to daughter Sally Watson 19 acres and one room in the house.[577]

Children of David and Elizabeth (Judkins) Watson, all born in Meredith, N.H., all in his will:

104. viii. HANNAH C. WATSON, b. ca. 1792; m. (1) (HENRY?) SANBORN, (2) ____ LANG.

40. NATHANIEL[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [8] and Deborah (Cushing) Watson, was born during 1754 (calc.), probably in Epping, New Hampshire. He died 20 July 1831 in Dover, New Hampshire, aged 76 years.[590]

He married in Dover, about 1785, CATHERINE[4] HEARD (Samuel[3–2], John[1]), who was born during 1765 (calc.) in New Hampshire, daughter of Samuel Heard.[591] She died during November 1827 in Dover, aged 62 years.[592]

Nathaniel spent his childhood in Epping from his birth in 1754 to about 1768. He then moved to Dover with his mother and resided there for the rest of his life, to 1831. Nathaniel Watson was a farmer and tavern keeper[593]; he was also a commercial investor in the early years of the industrial revolution in Dover, as seen in his real estate dealings.

1827, April 18: as husbandman of Dover, he bought 31+a. in Dover near the Bellamy Bank River from Elijah Austin for $808.40 [Strafford Deeds, 134:248].

April 19: as yeoman of Dover with wife Catherine, he sold 15a. in Dover next to Jonathan Young's to Elijah Austin for $300; [daughter] Christina Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 134:247].

1828, Feb. 8: as husbandman of Dover, he sold 21 sq. rods in Dover at Garrison Hill to Levi Sawyer for $65 [Strafford Deeds, 135:596].

March 18: as husbandman of Dover, he sold 6 sq. rods in Dover at Garrison Hill to Levi Sawyer for $26 [Strafford Deeds, 136:211].

April 2 and 18: his land was mentioned as near John[5] Watson, Jr. [No. 165] at Garrison Hill on the road from Dover to Rochester [Strafford Deeds, 136:236; 137:63].

Oct. 18: as yeoman of Dover, he bought 12a. and sold 1a., both on Garrison Hill, Dover, by the exchange of $300 with Ezekiel Hayes; three days later, as husbandman of Dover, he sold the 1a. to Hayes for $400 [Strafford Deeds, 132:483; 136:492, 494].

Oct. 27: as husbandman of Dover, he bought 15a. in Dover, with Samuel Dudley's machine factory, and sold 13½a. in Dover next to Capt. Samuel[4] Watson's [No. 66], bought at auction from the estate of Thomas Footman, exchanging $1,000 with James Whitehouse, John Wheeler, and William Palmer [Strafford Deeds, 136:512; 141:110].

Dec. 16: as husbandman of Dover, he leased, at $15/yr for three yrs., two rooms and a forge at Dudley's factory to Lewis Stark and George C. Thomson [Strafford Deeds, 133:529].

1829, March 25: as yeoman of Dover, he sold a Dover lot to Levi Sawyer for $87.50, and as husbandman, he sold 40a. at Garrison Hill, Dover, to Nathaniel Clark for $2,100 [Strafford Deeds, 140:349; 141:221].

1831, Oct. 6: Walter Sawyer, administrator of his estate, transferred rights under a lease from Anna Hanson (Strafford Deeds, 147:111) to Eri Perkins, et al. [Strafford Deeds, 172:589].

Late in his life, Nathaniel was actively engaged in business at one of Dover's major mill sites, Dudley's Falls. In 1827 and 1828 he bought land and factories there on the Bellamy Bank River, leasing out space to other manufacturers as seen in deeds. On 15 January 1830, Stephen, Abijah, Martha, and Anna Hanson leased the mill privileges at the main falls of the Bellamy Bank River for fourteen years.[598] On 6 October 1831, less than three months after his death, the administrator of his estate disposed of this lease. The property appears in his estate inventory in 1831, but was not included in the division among his heirs in 1833; between those dates, his sons Samuel H. and Nathaniel mortgaged the 46+ acres to the administrator, who apparently exercised the mortgage to satisfy debts.[599] Eventually this became the site of Sawyer's Mills, standing today.

While his commercial activity is amply demonstrated through real estate transactions, and the prosperity of his farm evident in tax records, Nathaniel only rarely appears in other town records: the town paid him £1 for highway timber in 1785, and he served as town meeting moderator

Administration of his estate, intestate, was granted to Walter Sawyer 22 August 1831.[604] The inventory was taken 9 September 1831 and totaled quite a large sum for the times, at $9,289.16: 40–acre homestead [at Cocheco], $4,000; nine acres opposite, $700; 40 acres at Littleworth field, $1,200; 47 acres on Bellamy Bank River with house and grist mill, $1,380; Belknap house and lot on Silver Street, $700; saw mill and 14–year lease, $500; livestock (one horse, one yoke of oxen, three cows, two steers, one heifer, one bull, five sheep, two lambs, and six pigs), $210.25; produce, $308.50; farm tools, $21.35; and, furniture (listed in detail by room, including a clock, parlor stove, and Windsor chairs), $200.76.[605]

All but one of his heirs met with the administrator at the homestead on 14 January 1833 to divide the real estate; [his daughter] Christina Watson, of Gilford, did not attend, but was represented by her brother–in–law Ebenezer Edwards; Susan Watson, the widow of [son] Samuel H. Watson and guardian of his children, also attended. On 26 April 1833 the estate was divided: to [his son] Moses Wingate Watson of Dover, 3½ acres and the west half of the "mansion house," divided through the center of the front door; to [his son] Nathaniel Watson of Dover, one acre, 20 square rods, the east half of the "mansion house," and two other parcels of land, 2⅛ acres and two acres; to [his daughter] Lydia Twombly, the widow of James Twombly, of Dover, 15 acres, 92 square rods; to [his daughter] "Patty" Edwards, wife of Ebenezer Edwards of Gilford, "the Waldron Lot," 6¾ acres, 100 square rods; to the heirs of [his son] Samuel H. Watson, late of Dover, "the Belknap Lot" on the north side of Silver Street, 103 square rods with buildings, and another two acres; to [his son] John Watson of Dover, the west 22 acres of "Knox Marsh field" and one acre at the homestead; and, to [his daughter] Christina Watson, the east 16½ acres of "Knox Marsh field" and one acre at the homestead.[606]

ix. CHRISTIANA WATSON, b. 1804 (calc.); d. 22 Oct. 1891 in Dover, of old age and fracture of hips, aged 87, single.[609] As "Christine" of Dover with siblings, she sold Dover land at Garrison Hill, part of Samuel Heard's homestead, to Nathaniel Clark for $600 on 25 March 1829.[610] Inventory of her brother Samuel H. Watson's estate taken 8 Feb. 1832 included a note from her for $68.19 dated 6 Oct. 1831.[611] She of Gilford, N.H., did not attend the meeting of her father's heirs with the administrator at the homestead in Dover on 14 Jan. 1833 to divide the real estate, but was represented by her brother–in–law Ebenezer Edwards; on 26 April 1833 the estate was divided, and she received the east 16½a. of "Knox Marsh field" and 1a. at the homestead.[612] As singlewoman of Gilford, she sold 1a., part of her father Nathaniel Watson's homestead in Dover, to John Riley for $80 on 7 May 1833, and the next day 15+a., Knox Marsh, Dover, to Joseph Hanson for $80.[613] In 1837, May 1838, and Jan. 1843 she was employed by the Cocheco Manufacturing Company in Dover, boarding at widow N. Chesley's (1837–1838) and at widow V. Shepard's (1843)[614]; she was in the 1810 [1F (0–10)] and 1830 [one of 2F (20–30)] censuses with her father; she was listed twice in the 1850 census, both in Dover, aged 42 and 44, once alone, once with brother–in–law William H. Blake; 1880 census, aged 75, single, with Henry Dow, Silver St., Dover.

41. ELIZABETH[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Jonathan [8] and Deborah (Cushing) Watson, was born about 1755 in Epping, New Hampshire. She died, probably in Epping, sometime during 1799 or 1800, after the birth of her last child and before the 1800 census.

She married in Epping, about 1776, JAMES COVILL[6] EWER (Nathaniel[5–4], Thomas[3–2–1]), who was born about 1755 in Newmarket, New Hampshire, son of Nathaniel and Drusilla (Covill) Ewer.[615] He died sometime after 1 May 1805, when he sold land.

Elizabeth lived in Epping from 1755 to about 1768, probably removing to Dover with the family when her mother remarried. Upon her marriage she moved to Newmarket, where she lived from about 1776 to the 1790s. James C. Ewer was taxed there 1794–1796.[616] They then removed to Epping, where he was noted in the 1800 census and in 1805 deeds.

42. WILLIAM[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [8] and Deborah (Cushing) Watson, was born 14 April 1756,[622] probably in Epping, New Hampshire. He died 11 September 1827 in Pittsfield, New Hampshire, and was buried near Jenness Pond.[623]

He married in Barrington, New Hampshire, on 17 August 1779, SARAH[5] BUZZELL (John[4–3–2], Simon[1]), who was born 4 December 1758 in Northwood, New Hampshire, near North (Jenness) Pond, daughter of John and Phebe (Evans) Buzzell.[624] She died 26 August 1855 in Pittsfield.[625]

William probably spent his childhood in Epping, from his birth in 1756 to about 1768. After the death of his father about 1759, his mother, with the help of his uncle Winthrop Watson, probably raised him. Although later pension records state that he was raised in Nottingham, it is likely that this was mistaken for the Red Oak Hill area of Epping on land owned by his uncle Dudley Watson, abutting the Nottingham line. He may have moved with the family to Dover about 1768, when his mother remarried. By 1779 he had removed to Barrington, probably living with or near his older brother Stephen, marrying there, where his first two children were born. In 1782 he settled permanently in Pittsfield, raising nine more children born there, and living there to his death in 1827. Sarah continued to live on the homestead as his widow to her death in 1855.

J. M. Moses gives an account of William and his family that is generally accurate, but which adds to the confusion of William's parentage by adding "said to be son of Solomon, [and] was of Dover." He goes on to say that William "settled in Pittsfield, near [the] Northwood line .... There are probably no buildings now on the place where they lived. (Farm of George B. Johnson in 1913.)"[626]

William appears in many original records: pension documents relating to his Revolutionary War service provide much family history; he was party to more than 40 real estate transactions over 45 years; town records document more than 30 years' service in various offices and on committees; tax records indicate his success as a farmer; he is found in all censuses 1790–1820, and his widow to 1850; and his will and associated probate records follow his family into succeeding generations.

On 17 September 1852 William's widow Sarah, at almost 94, applied for a pension, based on his service more than 75 years before.[627] These documents give a complete picture of this family, with all birth dates and places, their marriage information, and narrative on his early life; pages were torn from the family bible and submitted to the government to support the pension claim; his mother's identity is clear, but his father is unnamed (see his father Jonathan [No. 8] for a full discussion). His Revolutionary War service began with Benjamin Butler's Company from 5 November 1775 on Goat Island for the defense of Piscataqua Harbor [Portsmouth, New Hampshire].[628] He entered service again on 6 September 1777 in Capt. Enoch Page's Company, having been paid bounty on 4 September in Northwood; he was on the muster roll 20 September, and signed for travel money to Rhode Island on 25 September; William received his discharge on 7 January 1778, with service of four months and two days, and was paid for travel from Exeter, New Hampshire, to Providence, Rhode Island, and 120 miles home from Warwick, Rhode Island.[629] He once again briefly served, for 17 days including travel time, in Capt. Moses Yeaton's Company, Col. Joshua Wingate's Regiment, 6–20 August 1778, receiving pay for 132 miles out to Rhode Island and the return home; he received a £10 bounty from Dover on 8 August 1778 for volunteering to join Gen. Sullivan's Division in Rhode Island.[630] witness 15 April 1808.[638] William was appointed to serve on the committees to watch for persons "spending their time at the Taverns and Grog-shops" 13 March 1810, "to secure labor" of the poor, etc., 9 March 1813, and to advise on "the idle, etc." 10 March 1814; he was also in the Moral Society 23 January 1815 and on the committee on "licensed houses" 15 March 1821. He was also twice appointed a committeeman to lay out new roads, 20 May 1819 and 1 September 1824.[639]

Tax records show a prosperous farm with ample acreage; William enjoyed the help of his sons on the farm, with Andrew and John staying on the homestead and becoming subject to poll tax as each reached 21. Andrew died only two months after his father, and the property passed to John and to his line. Evidently William was in partnership with Josiah and James Fogg running a mill in Northwood during 1811 and 1812; other Epsom and Northwood taxes correspond well with recorded real estate transactions. William's appearance in the town records of Epsom (1809–1825) and Northwood (1811–1824) was solely as a non–resident taxpayer for land he owned in each town, which bordered on his land in Pittsfield; these tax records, along with the few years for Pittsfield, are detailed above.

William's will was dated 12 June 1827, three months before his death, and proved 26 September 1827, with sons Stephen Watson and John Watson granted administration. In it he provided: to his wife Sarah, the use, occupancy, and income of half his farm and buildings, to go to sons Andrew and John at her death or remarriage; Sarah also to have all the furniture and one cow, and the use of the chaise for her lifetime; to daughter Betsey Watson, $300, a cow, four sheep, and use of half the house with her mother as long as she is single; to son Stephen Watson, ten acres, on the north end of the Gilman Lot, Range 4, Division 2, Pittsfield, next to his other land; to son Daniel Watson, $1; to son William Watson, the Meredith farm bought from Andrew Woodman; to Mehitable W. Blake and Dearborn Blake, children of "my late daughter Mehitable Blake deceased," $1 each and $20 to the former if she lives to age 18; to Eliza Batchelder, Maria Batchelder, Albert Batchelder, and William Batchelder, children of "my late daughter Batchelder deceased," $1 each; to daughter Sally Kaime, $100; and, to sons Andrew Watson and John Watson, half of the farm.[642]

Dudley Watson was a farmer, shipbuilder, and trader or merchant, and later in life styled "Esquire," a title of respect in the community. He lived in Exeter from his birth in 1756 until 1789, when he moved to Newmarket, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1828. Anna Watson continued to reside in the house they built in 1792 until her death in 1845.

Dudley Watson of Exeter was mustered 20 September 1776 into Capt. Daniel Gordon's Company, Col. Tash's Regiment, to reinforce the Continental Army in [upstate] New York.[657] He signed the Association Test on 12 April 1776 in Exeter.[658]

Real Estate Transactions of Dudley Watson:

1776, June 27: as yeoman of Exeter, with Paul Jewett, he bought 300a., Lot 8, Range 9, Shapleigh, Maine, from Dennis Fernald for £21 [York Deeds, 43:255]. He sold 100a. of this land to [brother] Stephen Watson before 6 March 1785, when Stephen sold it [York Deeds, 56:229].

1777, June 20: as yeoman of Exeter with Paul Jewett, he bought Lot 4, Range 9, Shapleigh, Maine, on the Salmon Falls River from Edward Cutts for £24 [York Deeds, 45:146].

1778, Jan. 27: as yeoman of Exeter, he sold 100a., Lot 4, Range 9, Shapleigh, Maine, on the Salmon Falls River to [cousin, No. 10, i.] Peter Cushing of Exeter, for £100; [brothers] Daniel Watson and Stephen Watson witnessed [York Deeds, 46:77].

1780, Nov. 13: as yeoman of Exeter, he bought 46a. there from Bradstreet Gilman for £150 [Rockingham Deeds, 114:238].

1787, Jan. 27: as yeoman of Exeter, he bought a lot and buildings in Newmarket from Levi Chapman for £150 [Rockingham Deeds, 149:144].

1790, April 20: as trader of Newmarket, he bought 53a. there from [father–in–law] Edward Hilton for £25 [Rockingham Deeds, 137:43].

1794, Dec. 1: in the division of Edward Hilton's estate, Dudley Watson and "Anne his wife, daughter of the deceased," received Share No. 3, 27a. in Newmarket next to Dudley's other land [Rockingham Probate Files, 6022].

1795, Feb. 7: as trader of Newmarket, he bought 15a. and 5a. (received from [father–in–law and Nathan's father] Edward Hilton), and rights to [mother–in–law] Elizabeth Hilton's widows thirds in Edward Hilton's estate from [brother–in–law] Nathan Hilton for $200 and $224 [Rockingham Deeds, 138:313; 139:246].

Sept. 29: as merchant of Newmarket, he bought 2a. in Newmarket from Jonathan M. Smith for $150 [Rockingham Deeds, 187:148].

1796, Feb. 18: as merchant of Newmarket, he bought 36a. in Chichester from [brother–in–law] William Hook for $500 [Rockingham Deeds, 142:93].

Nov. 17: as Esquire of Newmarket, he bought 14¾a. in Newmarket, next to his other land, from the estate of Hubartus Neal for $236.20 [Rockingham Deeds, 218:79].

1821, Aug. 20: as Esquire of Newmarket, he sold 14a. in Newmarket (bought from [brother–in–law] Richard Hilton in 1812) to George Sullivan for $50 [Rockingham Deeds, 233:57].

Oct. 25: as Esquire of Newmarket, he took a $4,500 mortgage ($3,500 due in one yr.) on land in Portsmouth from [son–in–law] Joshua Neal [Rockingham Deeds, 230:438].

1822, May 23: as Esquire of Newmarket with wife Anna and with [nephew] Winthrop and Abigail Hilton, he sold rights to 31+a. in Newmarket (two–sixths of [mother–in–law] Elizabeth Hilton's dowry) to [nephews] Joseph, Henry, and Gurdon Burley for $5 [Rockingham Deeds, 241:256; 285:161].

1823, May 27: as Esquire of Newmarket with wife Anna and with [sister–in–law] Betsey Hilton of Lee, he sold 1½a. in Lee on Wadley Road to John Dow for $150; [daughter] Charlotte Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 165:269].

1833, Sept. 6: Anna Watson of Newmarket, the widow of Dudley, sold half an acre in Lee with buildings to George W. Chapman for $30; [daughter] Charlotte Watson and [son–in–law] George Robinson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 169:566].

1834, March 22: Anna Watson of Newmarket, with George and [daughter] Betsey Robinson and with [daughters] Nancy Neal (widow of Newmarket) and Charlotte Watson (spinster of Newmarket), sold 160a., "The Watson Farm" at Beech Hill in Exeter owned by Dudley Watson "late of Newmarket deceased," to Thomas Pendergast for $1,800 [Rockingham Deeds, 272:43].

1835, Aug. 3: Anna Watson of Newmarket, with George and [daughter] Betsey Robinson and [daughters] Nancy Neal (widow of Newmarket) and Charlotte Watson (spinster of Newmarket), sold land in Newmarket, near Newfields, owned by Dudley Watson, to the Newmarket Iron Foundry for $125 [Rockingham Deeds, 279:324].

Dudley Watson was first taxed in his own right after his father's death in 1777, the year during which he turned 21. Wild currency fluctuations during the Revolution are quite evident in tax records below. He was also well up in the top quartile of taxpayers every year, showing his considerable land and wealth inherited from his father.

The town paid him £1,290 in October 1780 "in part for one yoke of Oxen he sold Joseph Cram for s^{d} town."[659] The reduction in acreage in 1784 was for tax purposes only: he continued to own the land but part was then taxed to his mother, the widow Abigail Watson, to her death about 1795. His other appearances in Exeter records are all tax–related. On 29 March 1784 the town "p^{d} Dudley Watson, abatement in his Tax," 16*s*; in June 1787 "p^{d} Dudley Watson abatement in his Tax for over rated in Land for 1784, 1785, & 1786," £1 2*s* 1*d*; and again, on 3 July 1789 for 9*s* 3*d*.[660] And he was taxed for highways every year from 1778 through 1789, when he removed to Newmarket[661]; the highway district was on the west side of town, for the roads from the Epping Road to the Newmarket line, including what is now Old Town Farm Road, which went to his farm on Beech Hill above Daniel Smith's. Although he had moved out of Exeter by the end of the 1780s, he continued to own his father's homestead on Beech Hill for the rest of his life, subject to his mother's life estate to 1795, and his widow Anna retained it until 1834.[662] The 1802 map of Exeter[663] shows the house there, still in his name; the names of the actual occupants do not appear in the records, but could well have been his sisters Mary and Rebecca Watson. Exeter tax records for 1816–1817 indicate that John Palmer was working the property at that time.

Dudley Watson appears frequently on the records of Newmarket and other New Hampshire towns, as an active citizen. He is first noted when his beef rate was abated on 26 March 1781,[664] doubtless because he was a non–resident, having not yet moved into town with his new wife (who was from Newmarket). His error in giving a bond for Robert Pike as tax collector on 13 March 1790 became apparent when Dudley Watson was allowed to pay 7*s* in silver in lieu of 20*s* in certificates, by vote of the New Hampshire Senate and House 2 January 1792, to redeem a bond he gave for a tax collector who absconded.[665] He petitioned with others on 10 March 1791 to build a new meeting house, and he was a member of the West Society on 27 March 1791 in favor of a separate charter for a new parish.[666] On 25 June 1795 he signed another petition, for Samuel Tombs to settle as minister; he was on the committee to settle with Samuel Tombs 1 June 1797 and 31 July 1797, and petitioned to dismiss [cousin Elizabeth's father–in–law] Rev. Nathaniel Ewer 19 June 1797.[667] He continued to be active in church affairs, petitioning to hire Rev. Seth Noble to preach for six months on 4 May 1798; he dissented against John Osband as preacher on 5 April 1799; he petitioned to continue James Thurston's preaching on 20 September 1799; and, he again petitioned for money to build a parsonage 14 March 1809.[668]

Ivory Hovey of Berwick sued Dudley Watson, merchant of Newmarket, to collect an overdue note of £65 19*s* 10*d*, or $219.97, dated 3 March 1792 against which £26 17*s* 6*d* had been paid 11 November 1792, and was granted a $154.34 judgment in February 1795.[669] Dudley petitioned on 24 September 1797 that the schoolhouse be used only for scholars, and was on a committee to investigate and settle a lawsuit against the town 13 July 1798.[670] He was twice licensed as "Retailer of Spirits," 22 July 1799 and 4 November 1801.[671] He further petitioned for a meeting to discuss Portsmouth fire relief 3 January 1803.[672] On 8 March 1808, he brought "a cause ... in behalf of the State, against ... selectmen [of New Durham, New Hampshire], for the neglect of ... weights & measures,"[673] an action that was probably due to some elected 100–83 (first ballot) over George Hilton on 12 March 1811.[677] After serving one year, he lost again to David Chapman (both first ballots), 104–86 on 10 March 1812 and 114–60 on 9 March 1813, but won the seat on the fourth ballot 8 March 1814; he lost again, on the sixth ballot to John M. Smith 14 March 1815; he was a candidate one last time, running a distant third, on 14 March 1820.[678]

Dudley Watson and [his brother] David Watson were paid $45 by the town of Lee for a highway through their land, on the south side of Wadley's Falls near the Newmarket line, by "the house formerly Capt. Asa Folsom's now in possession of David Watson," on 11 January 1802; they were further paid $55 for 133 square rods for a "new road laid out from Wadley's Fall to Newmarket" on 24 December 1802.[679] He was taxed as a non–resident of Lee on three acres, one being orchard, another arable, in 1812 and 1814.[680] At a proprietors meeting for the Town of Woodstock, New Hampshire, held in Durham on 2 July 1794, he drew Lot 19, Range 4 and Lot 7, Range 10; he was taxed $3 on each lot 2 June 1799 and 7 September 1803; at another meeting in Durham on 4 February 1804 he drew half of Lot 15, Range 14; he was assessed a non–resident's tax 1798–1809.[681] At Newmarket, he was taxed in the South End of town for 1825 ($15.47) and 1826 ($20.69), both near the top amounts among taxpayers for those years.[682]

He was one of the last shipbuilders in Newmarket/Newfields, at the landing on the Lamprey River leading into Great Bay. He built his house, near Rockingham Junction (now in Newfields, just over the line from Newmarket) in 1792, on the land bought from his father–in–law two years before; in 1912, his grandson George D. W. Robinson was living in the house.[683] After Dudley's death in 1828, his widow Anna lived in the house with daughter Charlotte, who inherited it in 1845. Charlotte lived there, alone in both the 1850 and 1860 censuses, to her death in 1863, when son–in–law George Robinson fell heir to it, passing it at his death in 1870 to his son George D. W. Robinson. In 1997 the house still stands on Route 108; the barn, built the year following the house, is now the Ship to Shore Restaurant, seating 75, owned and operated by Joseph and Mary Mollicas[684]; this follows the tradition Dudley Watson established at the house two hundred years before as a "Retailer of Spirits."

Administration of his intestate estate was granted to Anna Watson, with [son–in–law] George Robinson as surety. Inventory taken on 13 August 1828 showed the handsome total of $10,727.75, 75% in real estate: the 55–acre homestead farm with buildings ($1,100); a lot with building in Newfields Village ($150); the nine–acre Hill pasture ($140); the 20–acre Hilton farm; the Portsmouth lot and building occupied by [son–in–law] Capt. Joshua Neal ($2,300); and, the 150–acre Exeter farm at Beech Hill ($2,250). George and [daughter] Betsey Robinson and [grandson] Alfred Burleigh on 15 November 1848 petitioned the probate court for division of the 160–acre Wiggin farm, Newmarket, held in common with Josiah Hilton; on 25 April 1849 they all met and divided the property, with Dudley Watson's heirs receiving the south and east half.[685] The estate was still open on 16 March 1864, when [grandson] Alfred Burleigh of Waterville, Maine, was granted administration, with [grandson] George D. W. Robinson as surety.[686]

Dudley's widow Anna Watson, aged 79 years of Newmarket, applied for a pension 24 October 1839 based on his Revolutionary War service, deposing to their marriage and to his date of death; her daughter Charlotte Watson, aged 30 years, testified the same day, and [daughter] Betsey Robinson, aged 64 years of Newmarket, further applied 14 September 1852. The claims were not carried forward, probably since she would not have qualified because of substantial financial resources.[687]

death, at age 34, was reported in the Eastport [Maine] Sentinal of 29 July 1820.[689] As gentleman of Newmarket, he bought 80a. with salt marsh in Newmarket on the Exeter River from James and [sister] Martha Burleigh 3rd for $2,000 on 17 Nov. 1818.[690] As gentleman of Newmarket, he sold 80a. in Newmarket bought from [brother–in–law] James Burleigh 3rd to [brother–in–law] George Robinson for $2,750 on 14 Dec. 1818.[691] As gentleman of Newmarket, he took a $1,100 mortgage, payable in 7 notes over 7 yrs. to [brother–in–law] James Burleigh 3rd, on 80a. in Newmarket from [brother–in–law] George Robinson on 14 Dec. 1818; [father] Dudley Watson witnessed.[692] Winthrop Watson evidently was active in the New Hampshire interior, bidding 95¢ for a cord of wood for the Chichester minister on 4 Nov. 1808,[693] but there is no record to indicate that he ever removed there. In Newmarket, he was among the petitioners demanding a vote against paying soldier bounty on 27 July 1812[694]; he was also elected pound keeper there 28 March 1814 and 27 March 1815.[695]

Daniel Watson in Court Records:

1793–1794: Daniel Watson, husbandman of Epping, sued Stephen Gale and obtained a $4.93 judgment and executions on 25 Nov. 1793 and 16 Feb. 1794 before receiving partial satisfaction in June 1794 [Strafford Court, 1793/1794:119].

1795: Daniel Watson, husbandman of Epping, sued William Thompson and was granted $10.25 executions on 23 Nov. 1795 and Feb. 1796; satisfaction was not received [Strafford Court, 1794:513].

1813: Daniel Watson, husbandman of Epping, sued John Merrill to collect an overdue note of $28 dated 4 Dec. 1811; he received a $30.49 judgment and execution on 31 Aug. 1813 [Strafford Court, 1813:145].

Before moving to Epping, Daniel was also subject to Exeter highway taxes, and he appears on those rolls from 1779 through 1786 in the same district as his mother and brothers on the west side of town, probably at or near Beech Hill.[701]

That Daniel Watson was a very prosperous landowner and farmer is evident from tax records, which, when added to the great number of real estate dealings above, show him to be among the wealthiest citizens of Epping. Further tax payments are found in Epping town records from 1820 each year to his death in 1837, but without asset inventories; his annual town taxes were very near the top of the list in amount every year.

Daniel Watson was active in Epping town affairs for many years. He was elected surveyor of highways 8 March 1790, 10 March 1800, 13 March 1804, 14 March 1809, 14 March 1820, and 19 March 1821; he was made selectman of the town 10 March 1807, 8 March 1808, and 14 March 1809; and he served as assessor from 16 March 1818 and moderator 20 September 1830.[702] He signed a petition in Epping on 13 October 1791 in favor of Nathaniel Rogers for sheriff.[703] He was on a committee 25 August 1800 to build a new meeting house, and he joined others in petitioning 10 March 1802, 5 April 1802, and 19 May 1803 to build a Congregational meeting house, to be on the road from the old meeting house to his house.[704] The town warrant of 19 February 1801 included a bill to discontinue the road from the old meeting house to his house, which was voted at town meeting 18 March 1801; on 19 February 1802 the warrant was to reconsider closing, which was voted on 8 March 1802.[705] He was taxed "for Support of the Gospel" 1794–1797, "to pay Rev. Peter Holt" 1798–1802, and for the Congregational Society 1803–1809.[706] On 22 September 1806, School District 8 began at Boston Bridge by his house, his land was again mentioned as across from Boston Bridge, and on 21 March 1829 School District 1 began at the Exeter Road by Boston Bridge and his house; he received the land from the old road in exchange for the new road through his land on 7 November 1800 and 1 January 1801, and he asked to straighten the road on 24 June 1834.[707]

His house was in a convenient location for meetings, which are first noted on 2 February 1789; on 22 September 1792, the records state that Daniel Watson "is a suitable person to keep a Tavern"; on 11 October 1797 he was licensed "for selling New England Distilled Spiritous Liquors on the Main Road in Epping"; and, his license for the tavern at his house was renewed 17 November 1800, 26 January 1802, 1808, and 13 March 1811.[708] His house, in addition to being a tavern, was also an inn, located at what is now the junction of New Hampshire Routes 125 and 27, near Epping Village. In the early years the inn was the location of proprietors' meetings for towns being organized in Grafton (now Coos) County, New Hampshire: Berlin, 1799–1803[709]; Errol, 1801[710]; Milan, 1799–1800[711]; and, Millsfield, 1800.[712]

Lydia's lineage is proven through various probate records: her 1839 will mentions her sister Mary Tilton and brother Jacob Smith. In his will dated 13 December 1773 and proved 23 February 1774, Nathaniel Smith, yeoman of Epping, provided for wife Mehitable, three sons, and seven daughters, including Jacob, Mary, and Lydia Smith; Nathaniel Smith of Kingston, New Hampshire, in his will dated 12 June 1753 and proved 26 September 1757, left to son Nathaniel Smith the 20 acres in Epping "on which he Now dwells."[713] Kingston Early Families and Genealogical Dictionary of Maine and New Hampshire complete the picture back to Nicholas[1] Smith of Exeter in 1658.[714]

Lydia Watson made her will 15 November 1839, proved 12 May 1847: to her sister Mary Tilton, $300; to nephew Nathaniel Ladd, $1,000 or "household stuff & furniture"; to three children of her late brother Jacob Smith, one large silver spoon each, "marked J.S.L.W."; to Lydia Ladd, daughter of [her nephew and adopted son] Daniel W. Ladd, one "good Gold Watch & my gold beads"; to Sarah Ladd, daughter of Daniel W. Ladd, $20 in silver spoons; to Daniel W. Ladd, executor, the homestead farm, mansion house, and buildings (provided he pay $2,000 to Loiza L. Ladd, daughter of Nathaniel Ladd) and "my Desk, two large blue gilt Pitchers & my late husband's & my Profiles"; and, to Loiza L. Ladd, the Lawrence meadows and $200 in furniture and fixtures. Inventory dated 9 June 1847 totaled $7,424.18, including the 40–acre farm at $3,800 and the three–acre meadow at $250; personal property included many notes receivable and a detailed listing of furniture.[716]

Lydia Watson's longer than ordinary obituary appeared in the Exeter News–Letter:[717]

> In Epping April 17 [1847], Mrs. Lydia Watson, wife of the late Mr. Daniel Watson, of Epping, aged 87 years. Mrs. Watson joined the M. E. Church in this place thirty–seven years ago last November and was baptized by the Rev. Asa Kent on the same day as the writer. Mrs. Watson was well known to the Preachers who traveled on this circuit in those early days of Methodism, as they found a welcome home at her house, she possessing an abundance of this world. For a few years past in consequence of advanced age she has not been able to attend public worship... She had no children of her own, but to the children she adopted she was, as mother, kind and affectionate, respected and beloved.

William Plumer (1759–1850) was a contemporary of Daniel and Lydia and devoted five pages in his journal to them with a rather less flattering view:[718]

> Daniel Watson, was a native of Exeter, New Hampshire. His education was slender – he could read, write a legible hand, and had a slight acquaintance with the three or four first rules of arithmetic. But he had no taste for reading, and of course neither purchased books, borrowed, or read them. Indeed, he seldom purchased news paper, read or looked into one.

717. NHSOG No. 3, Exeter News–Letter, XVII:2, 26 April 1847.

718. Plumer Manuscript: William Plumer of Epping was a U.S. senator 1802–1807, governor of New Hampshire 1812–1813 and 1816–1819, and the first president of the New Hampshire Historical Society; he was uncle of Rebecca Plumer, daughter of his brother Samuel, wife of Daniel Watson's adopted son Daniel Watson Ladd; he transacted at least two real estate deals with Daniel Watson, in 1789 and 1801, above.

I am not able to say when he became a resident in Epping, but think it was early in the year 1785. Soon afterwards he married Lyddia Smith, a daughter of the late Nathaniel Smith. She survived her husband, but never had any children. She was not only a frugal, industrious wife, but literally an avaricious woman – and in that respect a fit companion for her husband.

At the time of his marriage he had but little property – only a very few hundred dollars. He purchased an house & barn and about seven acres of land. It cost him about four hundred dollars. He commenced keeping a small tavern; but his principal business was buying, selling, and exchanging poor miserable horses. He soon became a real horse–jockey, and by that means acquired considerable property. He frequently received more money in exchange of a horse than both the horses were worth. What property he obtained he kept, for it cost him little to live. Tho at that period the labor of men and women was low he hired but little of either. His horses he pastured in the highways for eight months in the year. As a proof of his avarice and meanness, he also turned his cattle during a great part of the season of pasturing into the highways, to the great annoyance and injury of his neighbors. The boys to punish him, several times shut up his cows in an old meeting house, milked them, and drowned at least one of his horses.

From trading in horses, he was insensibly drawn to loan money. Having a considerable number of horses on hand at the close of autumn he loaned a sum of money to every man who would take one of his horses at a price exceeding double its value. This soon led him to loaning money on usurious interest, taking from twelve to fifty per cent. I have known him [to] give eighteen per cent for money, and loan it for thirty five. This practice he steadily and carefully pursued for a number of years. But during several of his last years the increase of banks, combined with other causes, reduced the rate of interest. Those who were willing to promise more than five per cent were men of doubtful property, he thot the risque [sic] of losing both principal and interest was too great, he therefore refused to loan them money – and reduced his terms to five per cent. The sole business of his life was to acquire property, and to this object he devoted all his time and attention. He acquired a large estate for a man of his means, character and situation – more than fifty thousand dollars. He was a miser – what money he obtained he did not spend. With all his property, and childless too, he never afforded the smallest aid or assistance to the poor and needy – nor a cent for any public useful purpose. He had brothers and sisters who were apprised with want, to whom, during his long life, he afforded little, very little aid or assistance.

One of his wife's sisters (for she had a number) married a Nathaniel Ladd of Concord, who by want of economy or rather by extravagance and waste became a bankrupt. She had a son whom she named Daniel Watson Ladd. She died the 16th of December 1798, a few days or weeks after the birth of that son. Before this son was two months old it was brot [sic] to Watson – received by him, and lived with him till he married. Young Daniel proved an unprincipled miser. To him Watson, in his life time, gave a considerable portion of his property; and by his last will and testament devised to him the principal part of his wealth.

As to meats and drinks, Daniel Watson lived a life of strict temperance. He scarcely tasted of ardent spirits or wine. For the last twenty years of his life, he did what he promised; but his promises were few, cautious and guarded with provisos.

The only offices I recollect of his holding were those of selectman and surveyor of highways. In the last he grossly neglected his duty; but in the first he was attentive and punctual.

As to the two subjects that engage the attention of many in this country, religion and politics, he felt no interest. The inordinate love of money engrossed his whole mind, and absorbed all his attention. Neither politics or religion troubled him. He neither thot [sic] on either so much as to form a definite opinion.

His constitution was not strong and vigorous; and for more than twenty of his last years he was affected with a slight, not violent, cough. For a few years he was troubled with stranguary and the piles. For seven weeks before his death he was confined alternately to his bed and easy chair; afflicted with pain, restlessness, cough, faintness, want of appetite, and raised small quantities of blood. He had for many years a strong aversion to medicine. Three physicians occasionally attended him, but he refused to take most of the medicines they prescribed.

Eight or ten days before his dissolution, he had a paralytic shock on his right side. A few days before his death he was able to move his leg, but never recovered any feeling in his arm or hand. The blood he raised, when I saw him, was not only in very small quantities but congealed – it would not run – and, in one instance, it did not stain the vessel in which it fell.

He died suddenly, calmly, and without a struggle or groan, early in the morning of the 9th of April 1837, aged seventy five years one month and nine days.[719]

Epping's Watson Academy is named after Daniel Watson and was originally funded in the 1870s by the $3,000 bequest in Daniel Watson Ladd's will to establish the trust.[720]

Daniel and Lydia (Smith) had no children. They did care for children of others over the years, as seen in census records, and at least one child, the son of Lydia's sister, was adopted, as seen in many real estate transactions and in probate records.

Child of Daniel and Lydia (Smith) Watson, adopted:

i. DANIEL WATSON LADD, b. 21 May 1798 in Concord, N.H.,[721] son of Nathaniel and Dolly (Smith) Ladd; d. there 5 April 1874, aged 76, farmer, of consumption[722]; m. 1820 REBECCA PLUMER; five children.[723]

45. STEPHEN[4] WATSON (Winthrop[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Winthrop [11] and Abigail (____) Watson, was born during 1762 (calc.) in Exeter, New Hampshire. He died during October 1846 in Acton, Maine, "aged 84, ... a native of Exeter and a brother of the late Daniel Watson of Epping."[724]

He married in Epping, New Hampshire, about 1788, MARY[5] FOGG (Seth[4–3–2], Samuel[1], John[A–B]), called "Polly," who was born 23 June 1770 at Red Oak Hill in Epping, daughter of Seth and Eleanor (Philbrick) Fogg.[725] She died on 10 May 1835 in Acton, Maine, aged 64 years, 9 months, and was buried in the Watson Cemetery on the west side of Milton Mills Road.[726]

Stephen Watson was a farmer and trader, and ran a store, tavern, and saw mill; he was also occasionally called by the title of respect, "gentleman." He lived in Exeter from his birth in 1762 until 1786 and then moved to Epping, where he lived until 1789. He moved again to Rochester, to the section set off in 1802 as Milton, where he lived from 1790 to 1802. During this period Stephen apparently resided by his mills at the upper end of town, on the line with Wakefield, New Hampshire, as he was listed as resident there in the Pension records say that Stephen Watson enlisted in Capt. Penniman's Company, Col. Henry Dearborn's (1st New Hampshire) Regiment, during May 1780, hired by the town of Brentwood; he marched from Brentwood 1 June 1780 to West Point, New York. The company spent most of the summer of 1780 around Orange, New Jersey, and he was discharged near New York City 1 January 1781.[727] With minor differences, state records agree: Stephen Watson, aged 18 years of Exeter, was recruited for Brentwood 5 July 1780 and entered service 11 July 1780, traveling first 80 miles to Worcester, Massachusetts; he was discharged on 6 December 1780, having served five months and 14 days.[728]

Stephen Watson of Acton, Maine, applied for a pension on 22 April 1832, based on his Revolutionary War service, deposing that he was born in Exeter, New Hampshire, and that he had removed to Milton [then still part of Rochester], New Hampshire, when he was about 26 years old. In August 1832 he traveled the 55 miles from Acton, Maine, to Bartlett, New Hampshire, to get Richard Garland [husband of his first cousin Sarah A. Watson, No. 34] to support his claim, which was allowed in 1833.[729]

Stephen Watson in Court Records:

1788–1789: Stephen Watson, husbandman of Epping, sued Ephraim Young of Dover, obtained a £4 3*s* judgment in Aug. 1788, and was granted execution on 5 Dec. 1789 [this was probably for the note he bought from Abraham Hanson below] [Strafford Court, 1789/1790:167].

1789, June: Stephen Watson, husbandman of Epping, sued Abraham Hanson to collect on a note he had bought from Hanson; he obtained a £4 3*s* judgment [Strafford Court, 1789/1790:40].

1794: Stephen Watson, trader of Rochester, sued William W. Blaisdell, obtained a £3 9*s* 8*d* execution on 20 June 1794, and received satisfaction Aug. 1794 [Strafford Court, 1793/1794:349].

1795–1796: Stephen Watson, trader of Wakefield, sued Samuel Hall, obtained $36 executions on 23 Nov. 1795 and 27 Feb. 1796, but satisfaction was not received by June 1796 [Strafford Court, 1794:514].

Stephen's service to the towns in which he resided was limited to three terms as surveyor of highways in Rochester [probably in the Milton section], from 28 March 1791, 26 March 1792, and 25 March 1793,[730] once in Wakefield as hog reeve, elected 28 March 1803,[731] and one term in Milton as "hog constable," elected 3 May 1813.[732] He was licensed to keep a tavern and to "retail Spiritous liquors at his Dwelling house in Rochester," which was in the Milton section, on 3 October 1792.[733] Upon removing to Wakefield, he was licensed in that town to keep a tavern and to retail spirits, on 25 August 1794, 12 October 1795, 16 September 1796, 14 January 1799, and 7 September 1801.[734]

His brother Daniel Watson of Epping, New Hampshire, in his will dated 7 May 1832 and proved on 12 April 1837, left Stephen the use of the "Herd Farm" in Acton, Maine, which was to pass at his death to Stephen's son Daniel Watson; Stephen and Daniel signed a receipt for the "Heard Farm" on 28 May 1844.[735]

Stephen lived with or very near to his mother and brothers in Exeter and was taxed in the Mast Swamp [Epping] Road school and highway district from 1781 until 1786.[736]

From real estate, town, and tax records it is clear that Stephen Watson was actively engaged in operating a significant enterprise known as "Watsons saw mill" on the Salmon Falls River between Milton [Rochester before 1802], New Hampshire, and Shapleigh, Maine, from his purchase in 1791 to the end of the 1830s. He owned 24 days' milling per month, sometimes exercising them for his own account, and sometimes selling days to others, as seen in land and tax records. His interest in that area began even before then, when he briefly owned property in Shapleigh, 1785–1787. He also ran a store and kept a tavern at his house.

David Watson was first taxed by the town of Exeter in his own right [at age 21] in 1790, and then annually through 1795; at the same time he was on the rolls for the highway district in the west part of town with his mother and brothers.[747]

747. Exeter TRs, 2A:527, 532, 548; tax records, 1791–1813, unpaginated (FHL 15,787].

On 19 November 1800, David Watson was given "appribation ... to keep an open tavern" in Lee for three months.[748] He and [his brother] Dudley Watson were paid $45 by the town of Lee for a highway through their land, on the south side of Wadley's Falls near the Newmarket line, by "the house formerly Capt. Asa Folsom's now in possession of David Watson," on 11 January 1802; they were further paid $55 for 133 square rods for a "new road laid out from Wadley's Fall to Newmarket" on 24 December 1802.[749] He was paid 99¢ for two cords of wood supplied to the minister in Chichester and another 47¢ for a half–cord, 2 October 1809; his tax was abated 19¢ in 1811 and another 16¢ in 1815 "for being over taxed"; and, his tax was abated 95¢ in 1816 because he "lost a horse."[750]

Administration of his estate was granted on 10 January 1823 to his "oldest son" Francis H. Watson, with [brother] Daniel Watson as surety. Inventory was taken 19 March 1823, totaling the small sum of $70.90: his seven acres were worth $50, and personal property of $20 included one cow. An accounting was rendered 11 March 1824, and final settlement made on 22 March 1824, with $3.06 left after expenses, to pay debts of $90.15.[751]

She died on 25 March 1805 in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, aged 55 years.[782]

George Watson resided in Dover for his entire life, from 1748 to 1800. He was a tailor of Dover on 29 February 1772, when he bought from Nathaniel Balch for £60 a house and lot between Cocheco and Tole–end,[783] at the corner of Locust and Silver Streets, on the site of the old Quaker Meeting House. Quint wrote in 1851: "In 1780 George Watson, the tailor, lived there; his house was sort of [a] business house for Friends' meetings; it was taken away but a few years ago. The tailor did considerable business in that little house; it answered for his home and his workshop. He died 9 October 1800, aged 52."[784]

In 1775, Samuel Wigglesworth sued George Watson, tailor of Dover, to collect an overdue note dated 4 June 1772 of £2 3*s* 9*d* in boards, and was granted judgment.[785] Ebenezer Meserve sued George Watson, yeoman of Dover, to collect an overdue note of £3 12*s* dated 10 May 1773, due 10 July 1773; neither appeared in court, and the case was dismissed.[786]

LUCY CUTTS WATSON, b. 26 Jan. 1790 (calc.); d. 23 Dec. 1867 in Boston, Mass., at the Home for Aged Women, of phthisis, aged 77y 10m 27d[808]; unmarried; her father left her £10 "when she arrives of age" in his will, 5 May 1798; in 1790 and 1800 censuses with parents; in Boston censuses, 1850 (aged 56) and 1860 (aged 70).

50. LILLIAS[4] WATSON (Samuel[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Samuel [14] and Lydia (____) Watson, was born 21 November 1750 in Dover, New Hampshire.[809] She died 14 April 1814 (or 15 April[810]) in Northwood, New Hampshire, aged 65 years.[811]

She married, first, in Dover, on 28 February 1771, by Dr. Jeremy Belknap,[812] THOMAS[4] SHANNON (Cutts[3], Nathaniel[2-1]), who was born on 17 January 1749 in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, son of Cutts and Mary (Vaughan) Shannon. He died 29 May 1800 in Farmington, New Hampshire, aged 51 years.[813]

In the same company and regiment at Medford, Massachusetts, he received $4 coat money 4 October 1775.[833] He was on the 10 September 1776 muster roll in Capt. William McDuffee's Company, 2nd Regiment, to reinforce [upstate] New York, and allowed 320 miles travel[834]; [his younger uncle] Daniel Watson was in the same company at the same time. He was aged 24 years of Dover when he enlisted again 8 May 1777 in Capt. John Drew's Company and was paid for travel to Charlestown, Massachusetts.[835] Isaac reenlisted for three years from Dover in May 1778, in Capt. Frederick M. Bell's Company, Col. Stephen Evans' (later Col. Nathan Hale's) Regiment.[836] The town of Dover gave his family 1½ cords of wood in 1778 (£7 4*s*), and in 1779 his wife Mary received a long list of goods for her support from the town while Isaac was "a Continental Soldier for the Town of Dover"; among the donors was [his uncle] William Watson.[837] Dover records also show payments: Ephraim Ham was paid £49 7*s* "for supplying Isaac Watson's family," Andrew Torr £17 12*s* "for Isaac Watson's wife" (both in 1778), and Capt. John Gage $477.19 "for supplying Isaac Watson's family," in 1779.[838] He was on the 1 January 1780 muster roll as a private in the 2nd Company, 2nd New Hampshire Regiment (Col. George Reid), and paid $170.50 for currency depreciation.[839]

52. JOHN[4] WATSON (John[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of John [16] and Elizabeth (Larrabee) Watson, was born 22 October 1757 in Scarborough, Maine.[852] He died there on 13 January 1837, of "dropsy in his bowels," aged 79 years and 3 months.[853]

He married in Scarborough, on 29 August 1784,[854] intention filed there on 18 May 1784, both of Scarborough, [855] MARY[3] HASTY (William[2], Daniel[1]), who was born 19 August 1765 in Scarborough, daughter of William and Agnes (Starrett) (McCartney) Hasty.[856] She died there on 6 August 1805, of "disentery and puking, confined to her bed but three days, left a young child four months old," in her 41st year.[857]

John Watson resided in Scarborough for his entire life, from 1757 to 1837, and was a farmer. He served as a private in Capt. Benjamin Larrabee's Company, marching out 28 October 1778, for six days until 2 November, to fortify Falmouth, Maine. He again served in the same company, Col. Mitchell's Regiment, from 9 July 1779 to 12 September 1779, for two months and three days, on the Penobscot Expedition.[858]

Real Estate Transactions of John Watson:

1784, Sept. 4: as yeoman of Scarborough, he bought 83a. in Scarborough from Jonathan and Alice Larrabee for £124 10*s* [Cumberland Deeds, 16:248].

1786, July 3: as yeoman of Scarborough, he bought 5a. in Cape Elizabeth, Maine, from Dominicus Jordan for £12 [Cumberland Deeds, 16:323].

1788, Nov. 24: as yeoman of Scarborough, he bought 8a. in Scarborough, next to his other land, from Thomas Libby for £10 16*s* [Cumberland Deeds, 16:311].

1789, Jan. 21: he of Scarborough, with wife Mary and with her brothers and sisters, sold half of 60a. in Scarborough, received from the estate of her father William Hasty, to [her brother] William Hasty for £5 [Cumberland Deeds, 16:334].

1790, Feb. 23: he of Scarborough, with wife Mary and with Benjamin and [her sister] Hannah Larrabee, sold 4a. at Oak Hill in Scarborough, received from the estate of her father William Hasty, to Josiah Beals for £26 [Cumberland Deeds, 58:416].

vi. JANE WATSON, b. ca. April 1805; d. 9 Sept. 1805 in Scarborough, of "bloody flux, aged about 6 mos."[862]

53. DAVID[4] WATSON (David[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [17] and Mary (Lang) Watson, was born about 1756 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died, probably in Brookfield, New Hampshire, about 1805, after the last reference to him in town records 13 March 1804, and before 27 September 1808, when his wife was called widow in a deed.

He married about 1775, TEMPERANCE ____, who was born about 1758. She died, probably in Brookfield, some time after March 1825, when she was last mentioned in town records.

David was a blacksmith. He lived in Dover from his birth until 1769, when his father moved the family to Rochester, New Hampshire, where he lived to 1775. He moved to Middleton, New Hampshire, the section that was set off as Brookfield at the end of 1794, living there from 1776 for the rest of his life, to about 1805. Thereafter, his widow Temperance lived in Brookfield to about 1825.

David Watson is first noted in town records 11 September 1783, as the main road crossed his lot, for which he was paid $4 in 1784.[863] He signed a petition to the General Court for relief from tax on the town and from the soldier quota, for Middleton, 16 October 1783.[864] As an inhabitant of the Second Division in Middleton he joined in the petition to divide the town and annex themselves to Wolfeborough in October 1785[865]; the division was finally made on 30 December 1794, with the northern part where he lived becoming the new town of Brookfield. He signed yet another petition in December 1786 from Middleton, for more tax relief as there was no money in the town and one of the selectmen had made off with the tax money.[866] He was elected tythingman 27 March 1789 and 14 March 1797, and hog reeve June 1790.[867] The 1796 tax inventory shows David with no poll [indicating advanced age, over 65], four acres mowing, eight acres pasture, 20 acres wild land, two oxen, three cows, one horse, two two–year cattle, and one one–year cattle.[868] In 1798 in Brookfield, David owned a house, valued at $10, and 50 acres.[869] On 13 March 1804, the last note of David in the records, it was voted not to build the new meeting house near his house.[870] On 11 March 1823 town meeting voted to pay [nephew] William Watson 33¢ per week for Temperance Watson's care, in March 1824 to Samuel Lang at 28¢ per week, and in March 1825 at 49¢ per week.[871]

54. JOHN[4] WATSON (David[3] Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [17] and Abigail (White) Watson, was born 16 October 1760 in Dover, New Hampshire.[872] He died 21 August 1823 in Wakefield, New Hampshire.[873]

He married in Middleton, New Hampshire, on 24 October 1784, MARY CLOUTMAN,[874] whose parentage has not been learned. She was born 12 May 1751,[875] and died in Brookfield, New Hampshire, after the 1840 census.

John lived in Dover from his birth in 1760 to 1769. His father then moved the family to Rochester, living there to 1775, when the family returned to Dover. In 1780, John moved to Wakefield, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1823. He was a farmer.

Census Records

1790: Wakefield, N.H.: 1M (16+), 1M (0–16); 3F.

1800: [Wakefield returns missing]

1810: Wakefield, N.H.: 2M (0–10), 1M (26–45), 1M (45+); 2F (0–10), 1F (26–45), 1F (45+) [includes son Nathan's family].

1820: [Wakefield returns missing]

1830: Wakefield, N.H.: Mary Watson with son Nathan Watson [1F (70–80)].

1840: Brookfield, N.H.: Mary Watson with son Nathan Watson [1F (80–90)].

According to pension documents, John Watson was enlisted from Wakefield for three years in March 1781 by David Copp; he was mustered in at Exeter 18 April 1781 and joined Capt. David McGregor's Company, Col. George Reid's Regiment, at West Point, New York; he was in that company to June 1783, when he transferred to Capt. Isaac Frye's Company, New Hampshire Line, until discharged by Brig. Gen. Jackson at West Point on 20 December 1783.[876] State records, with minor differences, tell the same story: he enlisted with his brother Nathan on 17 April 1781 and received New Hampshire bounty for three years' service or to the end of the war; he was then aged 20 years, six feet tall, with light complexion, of and for the town of "Wackfield"; in 1781 they were privates in the 4th Company, 2nd New Hampshire (Col. Reid's) Regiment.[877] Town records say he enlisted on 9 April 1781.[878]

John Watson applied for a pension on 14 April 1818, based on his Revolutionary War service, deposing that he was "late a Corporal in Capt. Isaac Fryes Company New Hampshire," and that he had always been a resident of Wakefield, New Hampshire. He filed his actual discharge certificate, and his claim was allowed. On 11 July 1820 he testified that he had a wife aged 70 years, but his pension was discontinued as he had land valued at $312; he appealed, producing evidence of a $300 mortgage on that land, and the Wakefield Selectmen testified for him; he further appealed 7 August 1823 [two weeks before his death], and notification was sent 2 September 1823 that his name was restored to the pension list. His widow requested back pension payments 11 September 1830, and Nathan Watson testified that he was John's only son. Mary Watson, now of Somersworth [with son Nathan], again applied 6 August 1838, and gave their marriage date and his date of death; John's doctor indicated that he died of "Hernia." Her claim was allowed.[879] On 1 June 1840, Mary Watson, aged 89 years of Brookfield, was a pensioner living with [her son] Nathan Watson.[880]

Real Estate Transactions of John Watson:

1804, Aug. 9: as husbandman of Wakefield, he sold 10a. in Lot 14, Division 2, Wakefield, to Samuel G. Vickery for $100 [Strafford Deeds, 168:19].

1821, Sept. 1: as husbandman of Wakefield with wife Mary, he sold 4a. in Lot 15, Division 2, Wakefield, to John Clark for $40; [son] Nathan Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 112:288].

1822, Aug. 3: as husbandman of Wakefield, he sold 80a. in Lots 14 and 15, Division 2, Wakefield, all his homestead with buildings, to Henry L. Wiggin for $500; his son Nathan Watson bought this land back, 2 yrs. later in 1824, after John's death [Strafford Deeds, 115:49; 121:402].

John was elected surveyor of highways 7 April 1797, 6 March 1798, and 10 March 1807.[881] The 4 February 1785 town warrant included a proposal to open a road for him; it was voted to "pass over" 28 March 1785; on 7 March 1786 it was voted to "lay out & open"; another road was laid out between John Watson and Josiah Allen on 2 September 1799.[882] During 1798 in Wakefield, John owned a house, valued at $20, and 100 acres.[883] He petitioned with others on 13 February 1802 to be exempted from paying for Rev. Asa Piper; they were exempted "respecting the incorporation of the Baptist Society in this town" on 9 March

1802, but at the same meeting the vote was reconsidered; he again "entered his dissent ... against paying a ministerial tax to the Rev. Asa Piper" 30 April 1805.[884] With [son] Nathan Watson, he was allowed to "disannex & set off" from School District No. 3 in 1813.[885] In 1820 he and [son] Nathan were listed in Highway District No. 13, on the main road to Brookfield.[886]

Children of John and Mary (Cloutman) Watson, all born in Wakefield, N.H.:[887]

142. i. NATHAN[5] WATSON, b. 28 July 1785; m. (1) DORCAS BORDEN, (2) FANNY ALLEN.
ii. ABIGAIL WATSON, b. 7 June 1787; d. 30 Aug. 1800 in Wakefield.[888]
iii. HANNAH WATSON, b. 31 Aug. 1789; d. 22 Oct. 1796 in Wakefield.[889]

55. NATHAN[4] WATSON (David[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [17] and Abigail (White) Watson, was born about 1763 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died during 1815, before 14 April,[890] in Brookfield, New Hampshire.

He married in Wakefield, New Hampshire, about 1786, MARY[5] WINGATE (John[4], Joshua[3–2], John[1]), who was born there on 24 April 1769, daughter of John and Mary (Philbrick) Wingate.[891] She died, probably in Brookfield, sometime after her last tax record in 1818.

Nathan Watson was a farmer, styled "gentleman" from 1796 and later "Captain." He lived in Dover from his birth until 1769. His father then moved the family to Rochester, New Hampshire, where they lived to 1775, when they returned to Dover. In 1784 Nathan moved to Middleton, New Hampshire, the section set off as Brookfield at the end of 1794, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1815. His widow Mary continued to live on the homestead at least to 1818. He was listed in the 1790 census of Middleton with two males over 16 [he and probably his father], one male under 16, and one female. He is not found in the 1800 and 1810 censuses.

Nathan Watson enlisted with his brother John on 17 April 1781 and received New Hampshire bounty for three years' service or to the end of the war; he was then aged 18 years, 5' 8" tall, with dark complexion, of "Wackfield" and hired for the town of "Kensenton"; in 1781 the brothers were privates in the 4th Company, 2nd New Hampshire (Col. Reid's) Regiment.[893]

Nathan Watson petitioned from Wakefield during August 1785 to repeal the Lumber Act.[894] He was active in town affairs at Brookfield: he was elected tythingman June 1790, field driver 28 March 1792, surveyor of highways 8 April 1794, and, as "Captain," second selectman 8 March 1796; he was again elected surveyor of highways 14 March 1797, auditor 11 March 1800 and 10 March 1801, and fence viewer 12 March 1811. He gave a bond on 14 March 1797 for William Guppy as tax collector; he, again as "Captain," won on 9 March 1802 with a bid of $2.47 to be tax collector, and in March 1803 he bid $2.98, but none of his fellow citizens were willing to bond him and he withdrew the bid. Nathan was town constable from 9 March 1802 for a year.[895]

The moderate prosperity of Nathan's farm is seen in these tax records, but he was frequently short of money to pay, as seen in the town records; he had to give notes to the town for his taxes: $5 on 21 March 1796 and $30.50 on 25 January 1797; $35.50 on 13 June 1801 and $2.75 (interest) from 13 June 1802; he repaid the town $43.16 principal and $3.02 interest on 1 July 1806.[896] Even so, in 1815 his estate was solvent, if not very large, as shown above. In 1820, his acreage was included in the tax holdings of Nathan's nephew Benjamin Watson [No. 57, vii.], son of his brother Jonathan.

On 18 January 1799 he called for a meeting to reconsider the vote on money for preaching and again petitioned on 18 March 1799 to reconsider Mr. Russell as preacher; on 31 March 1800 he joined the petition to sell town land to pay Mr. Russell, rather than collect taxes.[897] He was paid $3 for "house room and board" on 1 March and $2.10 on 15 March 1800 for boarding the schoolmaster. He was listed as an inhabitant of the South School District on 10 December 1800, and the school house was on his land 1 January 1801; "Capt. Nathan Watson, Gentleman," gave the land to the town for the South School house on 13 July 1802, in lieu of a bond to be collector that year; and, the town paid him $29 in July 1802 "for building School house." At a district meeting held at his house on 2 January 1807 it was voted to begin a new South school (apparently the previous one had closed) and he, "Capt.," was to be paid $1.80 for hauling firewood. The district again met at his house 7 December 1807 and 22 June 1809, when he was again low bidder for school firewood at $1.89.[898] With many others he petitioned to resolve the issue of a road to Wolfeborough on 18 August 1801. He also petitioned on 21 June 1810 to straighten the road from Brookfield to Dover by his house; on 14 July 1810 it was voted to give him the land from the old road when the new road was straightened.[899]

Nathan Watson's estate was among the creditors of [brother] Jonathan Watson's estate on 15 December 1815, with a $13.40 account; his estate received $8.71 to settle this account on 11 June 1816.[900]

Administration of his estate was granted to [brother–in–law] Joshua Wingate on 14 April 1815. Inventory of the estate of Nathan Watson, gentleman of Brookfield, was taken 13 May 1815 and totaled $910.11: his homestead in Lots 13 and 78, with buildings, $650; livestock (two steers, three cows, two calves, one horse, eight sheep and seven lambs, and two heifers), $126; and, tools, furniture, clothes, etc., $134.11. Claims against the estate were $283.11, including a $12.13 note given to

Elizabeth (Mordeaux) Wiggin. She died 24 August 1849 in Sandwich, New Hampshire.[912]

Thomas, a farmer, lived in Dover from his birth in 1764 until 1783 when he moved to Tamworth, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1837. His widow lived on the homestead farm into the 1840s, but was resident in Sandwich at her death in 1849.

In his will dated 16 July 1836 and proved on 1 August 1837, Thomas Watson left $5 to his "only son" Nathan Watson and his homestead to his wife Abigail.[913]

57. JONATHAN[4] WATSON (David[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [17] and Abigail (White) Watson, was born about 1765 in Dover, New Hampshire. He died 14 January 1815 in Ossipee, New Hampshire.[914]

He married in Wakefield, New Hampshire, on 22 September 1791, by Rev. Asa Piper, both of Wakefield, PATIENCE HALL,[915] whose parentage has not been learned. She was born about 1770 and died, probably in Brookfield, New Hampshire, sometime after the 1850 census.

Jonathan was a farmer and ran a grist mill. He lived in Dover from his birth until 1769 when his family moved to Rochester, New Hampshire, living there to 1775. They moved back to Dover in 1776. In 1791 he removed to Wakefield, lived there to 1804, and then moved to Brookfield, where he lived to 1811. He relocated finally to Ossipee, where he resided for the rest of his life, from 1811 to 1815. His widow Patience stayed on in Ossipee for another year until she had settled his estate; she then moved back to Brookfield, residing there for the rest of her life, to sometime after 1850.

In 1817, 1821, and 1822, William C. Frost was taxed as a non–resident "on part of the Watson Lot," 60 acres, Lot 24.[917]

Patience Watson was granted administration of the estate of Jonathan Watson of Ossipee on 14 February 1815.[918] Inventory was taken on 23 February 1815, showing $754.35: the homestead of 55 acres and buildings, $450; half the grist mill in Ossipee with half of the gears, $200; livestock (three cows, ten sheep, nine pigs) and hay, $75.70; and tools, furniture, etc., $28.65.[919] The dower was set off to the widow, Patience Watson, on 11 July 1815: 18 acres of land on the road to Wolfeborough, the west half of the house, and one–third of the barn.[920] Claims on the estate as of 15 December 1815 totaled $627.59 to some 28 creditors, including a $13.40 account with [brother] Nathan Watson; $404.78 was paid to settle these accounts on 11 June 1816 (Nathan received $8.71). In the final accounting, the judge paid the doctors for "his last sickness" and allowed Patience $50 plus her dower; she signed by "X."[921]

Children of Jonathan and Patience (Hall) Watson, all except Hannah born in Wakefield, N.H.[922]:

ii. WILLIAM WATSON, b. 29 Jan. 1795; d. after 1840 census. On 13 Sept. 1814, he of Ossipee enlisted as a private for 3 mos. in the War of 1812, in Capt. Hugh Moore's Company, 1st Regiment, Detached Militia; a week later, on 20 Sept. 1814, he was recorded as enlisting for 3 mos. in Capt. Oliver Warren's Company, in the same regiment, with the notation "Transf'd Capt. Kimball's Co."[923] In 1810 census with father [1M (10–16)]; 1820 and 1830 censuses, not found; 1840 census, Wolfeborough, N.H., 1M (5–10), 1M (30–40); 2F (0–5), 2F (30–40); no record has been found of William Watson marrying or having children, but the 1840 census would indicate both.

vii. BENJAMIN WATSON, b. 24 Jan. 1804; Brookfield tax inventories 1820–1825 list him with about 140a., oxen, cows, and cattle; only 1822 and 1825 lists taxed him for a poll, and 1824 stated "Alias Reuben Hanson Jr"[925]; no deeds for Benjamin appear in the records of Strafford County; it is likely that he lived on and worked the land of Reuben Hanson Jr. [who was married to his second cousin Mary Watson, No. 183] during the 1820s; the only census record of him was his apparent inclusion with his father in 1810 at Brookfield; his father's death date of 14 Jan. 1815 was apparently incorrectly placed next to Benjamin's name in the Wakefield town records, when his mother had the family recorded in 1828.[926]

148. viii. HANNAH WATSON, b. Jan. 1807 in Brookfield, N.H.; m. ITHIEL ALLEN.

58. JOSEPH[4] WATSON (David[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of David [17] and Abigail (White) Watson, was born during May 1768 (calc.) in Dover, New Hampshire. He died 5 November 1835 in St. Albans, Maine, aged 67 years and 5 months, and was buried there in the Watson Cemetery.[927]

He married about 1792, ABIGAIL ____, who was born during August 1774 (calc.) in New Hampshire. She died 28 April 1853 in St. Albans, aged 78 years and 8 months, and was buried in the Watson Cemetery with her husband.[928]

Joseph lived in Dover from his birth in 1768 until the next year when his father moved the family to Rochester, New Hampshire, where they lived until 1775. The family then moved back to Dover, where he lived to 1790. He then removed to Middleton, the section set off in 1794 as Brookfield, living there to 1806. He then moved finally to St. Albans, Maine, where he lived to his death in 1835. Joseph was a farmer.

Real Estate Transactions of Joseph Watson:

1791, Nov. 26: as yeoman of Middleton (called "my son"), he bought part of Lot 78, Division 2, Middleton, from his father David Watson for £40 [Strafford Deeds, 22:336].

1793, Feb. 18: as yeoman of Middleton, he sold 11a., Lot 94, Division 2, Wakefield, bought from David Copp, to Jacob Lock for £10 16*s*; David Copp witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 23:16].

1795, Aug. 1: as husbandman of Brookfield, he bought the southwest half of Lot 55, Brookfield, from Robert Calder for $166.68; Reuben Hanson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 22:327].

1796, March 19: as yeoman of Middleton, "now called Brookfield," he bought 140a., Lot 77, Division 2, Middleton, from Lydia Cabot for $300 [Strafford Deeds, 22:336].

April 9: as yeoman of Brookfield, he sold 70a. and 51a. in Lots 9, 77, and 78, Brookfield near [brother] Capt. Nathan Watson, to Thomas Chamberlain for £120; the same day, he sold 34+a. in Lots 77 and 78, Brookfield, to [brother] Nathan Watson for £44 [Strafford Deeds, 22:328; 37:385].

1801, Sept. 3: as yeoman of Brookfield, he sold 11a. in Lot 55, Brookfield, to [brother] Nathan Watson for $115.50 [Strafford Deeds, 37:382].

1805, Feb. 9: as yeoman of Brookfield, he sold the rest of the half of Lot 55, Brookfield, to [brother] Nathan Watson for $600; [nephew] Ebenezer Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 49:66].

In the 1796 tax inventory for Brookfield, he was next to [his father] David Watson, with one poll and eight acres of pasture land.[929] In 1798, he was taxed on a house, valued at $30, and 70 acres.[930] On 18 January 1799, he called for a town meeting to reconsider the vote to raise money for preaching, and a road was to be opened by his place 17 March 1801.[931] By 1806 Joseph had removed with his family to St. Albans, Maine, where he was one of the "pioneers of the town"; Joseph and [son] Jonathan were taxpayers in 1816; and, "Records of St. Albans state Joseph Watson, an early settler of St. Albans, was a cousin to the Hiltons."[932] His relationship to the Hiltons, whether through his family or through his wife's, is not clear; however, his oldest child appears to have been named directly after Jonathan Hilton, another early St. Albans settler, born 16 January 1779 in Brookfield, New Hampshire.[933]

He married in Northwood, New Hampshire, on 21 June 1786, by Elder Edmund Pilsbury, both of Dover,[938] PATIENCE[6] LEIGHTON (James[5–4], John[3], Thomas[2–1]), who was born during 1764 (calc.) in Barrington, daughter of James and Patience (Twombly) Leighton.[939] She died 28 April 1854 in Dover.[940]

Benjamin lived in Dover from his birth until 1786, when he moved to Barrington, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1818. His widow Patience lived there into the 1840s, but by 1850 had removed to Dover to live with a daughter for the rest of her life, to 1854.

Pension documents show that Benjamin Watson was mustered into the New Hampshire Line, not the militia, in April 1781 at Exeter, New Hampshire. He was a private in Capt. Jeremiah Fogg's Company, Col. George Reid's Regiment, in skirmishes with the Indians at White Plains

Tax, real estate, and court records show that Benjamin had but modest holdings throughout his life. He looked to his brother John Sullivan Watson for capital, but was apparently unable to repay the debt, and ownership of his small plot in Barrington passed to his brother in a court action. The property was resold to another brother, Nathaniel in 1807, but Benjamin was still living there and probably remained on the land for the rest of his life, supporting his large family through his trade as a cordwainer, or shoemaker.

His widow Patience Watson, aged 74 years, applied for a pension on 17 September 1838 based on his Revolutionary War service; she deposed that he was of Dover at the time of his entry into the army in 1781; she also gave his date of death and their date of marriage. His brother, Ahimaez Watson, testified that they were living together at their father's homestead in Dover at the time of his enlistment, that he drew a suit of clothes and marched off, not returning to visit home until November 1783, and that he attended his funeral in 1818. [Son–in–law] Solomon Cate also deposed that he attended Benjamin's funeral, and Levi Buzel said he was there, "as present as water." The claim was allowed, as were further claims on 16 August 1843 (Patience aged 79 years, marking by "X," with [children] Jeremiah F. Watson and Abigail Geer witnessing)

1811, Nov. 13: Samuel Hanson, husbandman of Dover, with [brother–in–law] Benjamin Watson, bought 15a. in Dover from Elizabeth Howard, her dower from [his wife's uncle] Joseph Watson (five–sixths of the land and all the buildings to Watson and one–sixth of the land to him), for $100 [Strafford Deeds, 69:348].

1815, May 15: Samuel Hanson, husbandman of Dover, traded one–sixth of the land for five–sixths of the land and all the buildings set off to Elizabeth (Watson) Howard in Dover with [brother–in–law] Benjamin Watson for an exchange of $100 [Strafford Deeds, 84:329, 331].

Samuel Hanson made his will on 13 August 1812, and it was proved 27 June 1815. In it he left "all the household furniture now in my house brought there by my late [first] wife" to Sarah Watson, daughter of Benjamin Watson. He also named many of his Hanson kin: sisters Sarah Howard and Anna Tuttle; brother Jonathan Hanson; nieces Kezia Hartford, wife of John Hartford, Sarah Hanson, wife of Israel Hanson, Phebe Howard, wife of Stephen Howard, and Lydia Howard.[1069]

Sarah resided in Dover from 1780 until 1815, and for some time thereafter. She and Samuel had no children.[1070]

69. LILLIAS[4] WATSON (Jonathan[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Jonathan [20] and Olive (Seavey) Watson, was born 24 February 1764 in Scarborough, Maine.[1071] She died, probably in Scarborough, sometime after the 1820 census.

She married in Scarborough, on 3 November 1786, both of Scarborough,[1072] intention filed there on 17 June 1786,[1073] JONATHAN[5] MCKENNEY (John[4–3], Robert[2], John[1]), who was born on 11 December 1761 in Saco, Maine, son of John and Mary (Rand) McKenney.[1074] He died, probably in Scarborough, some time after the 1820 census.

75. WILLIAM[4] WATSON (Daniel[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Daniel [27] and Elizabeth ("Betty") (Bickford) Watson, was born about 1773 in Rochester, New Hampshire. He died about 1812 in Alton, New Hampshire, after December 1811, when he was last mentioned in Alton town records. His taxes for 1812 were abated.

He married in Rochester about 1795, SARAH DELAND,[1119] who was born about 1775. The date and place of her death and her parentage have not been learned.

William lived in Rochester from his birth until 1795, when he moved to Brookfield, New Hampshire, living there to 1797. He then moved to New Durham, New Hampshire, where he lived to 1805, when he moved finally to Alton, living there to 1812, when he is presumed to have died. Although it is possible that he simply left the town, he does not appear again elsewhere. In 1810 he was not taxed in Alton; he was evidently living in neighboring Wolfeborough, New Hampshire, that year, as he was enumerated there in the 1810 census with: 1M (0–10), 1M (10–16), 1M (26–45); 2F (0–10), 1F (10–16), 1F (26–45). He and his family appear in no other censuses. William Watson was a farmer, but of limited means as indicated by real estate and tax records.

William Watson was reimbursed $8.94 for David Stockbridge's district school in Alton for 1802, and he was in School District No. 12 on

FIFTH GENERATION

77. DUDLEY[5] WATSON (Thomas[4], Dudley[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Thomas [29] and Abigail (Horne) Watson, was born 29 April 1773 in Dover, New Hampshire.[1134] He died 27 October 1836 in Rochester, New Hampshire, aged 63 years.[1135]

He married in Madbury, New Hampshire, on 19 September 1799, by Rev. William Hooper,[1136] HANNAH[5] HAYES (Elihu[4], Hezekiah[3], John[2-1]), who was born there 11 May 1781, daughter of Elihu and Elizabeth (Davis) Hayes.[1137] She died on 11 September 1853 in Rochester, aged 72 years.[1138]

Dudley lived in Dover from his birth in 1773 until 1804, when he moved to Rochester where he lived as a farmer for the rest of his life, to 1836.

Real Estate Transactions of Dudley Watson:

1806, April 5: as husbandman of Rochester, he bought 7a. in Dover, formerly owned by Thomas Hayes next to land of late [father] Thomas Watson, from John and Susanna Foss for $100 [Strafford Deeds, 52:432].

1807, March 27: as husbandman of Rochester with wife Hannah and his brother Aaron and sisters Lydia, Hannah, and Abigail, he sold 20a. in Barrington, half the 40a. their father Thomas Watson held in common with [uncle] Winthrop Watson, to Winthrop Watson for $1; [uncle] Otis B. Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 56:14].

1809, Oct. 28: as husbandman of Rochester with [brother and sisters] Aaron Watson, Hannah Watson, Lydia Watson, and Abigail Watson (children of Thomas Watson), and with [uncle] Winthrop Watson, he sold 6+a. in Lot 176, Range 4, Barrington, to Abednego Drew for $30 [Strafford Deeds, 63:527].

1810, Dec. 21: Hannah Watson, seamstress of Rochester and wife of Dudley, bought 12a. in Rochester from [father] Elihu Hayes for $1 [Strafford Deeds, 128:93].

1814, April 2: as husbandman of Rochester with wife Hannah, he sold 110a. in Dover on Tole End Road next to [cousin] Daniel Watson and 8½a. in Barrington, inherited from [father] "Col[l] Thomas Watson," to [brother] Aaron Watson and [sisters] Lydia Watson and Abigail Watson for $100 [Strafford Deeds, 128:217].

1815, March 11: as husbandman of Rochester, he sold 15a. in Dover, next to Nathaniel Ham's and Ezra Green's, to John Tebbetts for $217; the same day, with wife Hannah, he sold 11½a. in Lot 176, Range 4, Barrington, next to [brother] Aaron Watson's, to Joseph Church for $250, and [cousin] Daniel Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 83:328; 88:520].

June 11: as husbandman of Rochester with wife Hannah, he sold rights to the estates of father Thomas Watson and of sisters Lydia and Abigail Watson, to brother Aaron Watson for $450; [cousin] Daniel Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 100:247].

78. HANNAH[5] WATSON (Thomas[4], Dudley[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Thomas [29] and Abigail (Horne) Watson, was born about 1780 in Dover, New Hampshire. She died some time after the 1850 census, probably in Dover.

She married in Dover, on 14 May 1809, by Rev. Caleb Sherman, both of Dover,[1155] her first cousin BENJAMIN[4] HORNE (Paul[3], Daniel[2-1]), who was born there 28 February 1782,[1156] son of Paul and Hannah (Smith) Horne. He died there 26 March 1862. [1157]

Except for a brief time between 1810 and 1812 when she and Benjamin resided in Sandwich, New Hampshire, Hannah lived in Dover from her birth at least until the 1850 census. They lived on the west side of the Cocheco River, opposite the Upper Factory.

Benjamin Horne was active in school affairs, first petitioning 16 June 1817 to Dover selectmen for a meeting and then voting on 16 July 1817 to raise $150 for a new school house at Tole–end; he was among the ten "chief property owners" who paid 70% of that levy.[1158]

89. JONATHAN[5] WATSON (Daniel[4], Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Daniel [36] and Mary (____) Watson, was born about 1773 in Epping, New Hampshire. He died some time after the 1850 census, probably in Perry, Maine.

He married about 1807, DEBORAH ____, who was born about 1790 in New Hampshire. She died sometime before the 1840 census, probably in Perry.

Jonathan resided in Epping from his birth about 1773 to some time after 1800. He moved to Robbinston, Maine, living there from 1813 to 1820, and for some time thereafter. He moved again to Perry, where he lived from 1822 at least to 1830. He was residing in Pembroke, Maine, during 1840, but had returned to Perry by the 1850 census, the last note of him on record. He was a farmer.

Beyond these taxes, Job appears only three other times in town records, all at Gilford: he was a witness on 21 October 1825; a fence on the line with land sold 14 July 1817 to Sally Sleeper was divided with Benjamin Jewett 3rd on 13 January 1826, he a husbandman on Lot 8 where "he now lives"; and a new road ran through his land on 27 May 1826.[1378]

Job first lived on his father's place in Meredith, occupying "the estate in 1811, and had a large family"[1379]; he "was a stock raiser of note, and took a just pride in the cattle he raised."[1380] He was a member of the Free Will Baptist Church, and in politics followed Jefferson and Jackson.[1381]

His father, in his will dated 12 February 1811 and proved 18 March 1811, gave back to him, as second son, two notes (one for $168 dated 9 December 1805, on which $50 had been paid, and one for $10 dated 7 April 1810); he received $175.01 in April 1811 [probably the value of

Joseph Walton,[1467] SUSANNAH STEVENS[6] HALEY (John[5], Samuel[4], Thomas[3–2–1]), called "Susan," who was born 18 March 1796 in Gosport (on Haley's Island, Isles of Shoals), New Hampshire,[1468] and baptized there by Rev. Jedediah Morse on 10 August 1800,[1469] daughter of John and Mary (Bellamy) Haley. She died 30 May 1868 in Dover, aged 73 years, and was buried in the Pine Hill Cemetery.[1470]

With the exception of a brief period around 1820 in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Samuel Heard Watson, a farmer, resided in Dover his entire life, from 1798 until 1832. After his death, his widow Susan continued to live there to her death in 1868.

Real Estate Transactions of Samuel Heard Watson:

1829, March 25: as husbandman of Dover with siblings Moses W., John, Nathaniel, and Christina Watson and Lydia Twombly, he sold Dover land at Garrison Hill, part of Samuel Heard's homestead, to Nathaniel Clark for $600 [Strafford Deeds, 138:70].

1831, Oct. 6: as husbandman of Dover with [brother] Nathaniel Watson, he gave a $600 mortgage ($434.02 by Samuel H., $157.57 by Nathaniel) due in 6 mos. on an undivided two–sevenths of deceased [father] Nathaniel Watson's land (40a. homestead, 46a. on the Bellamy Bank River, 40a. Knox Marsh, the half–acre Belknap Lot, and 9a. [father] Nathaniel bought from Hale and Atkinson) to Walter Sawyer; the mortgage was released 23 May 1833 [Strafford Deeds, 152:146].

1833, May 9: Ezekiel Hurd, administrator of his estate, he late of Dover, intestate, sold 2a. in Dover, part of [father] Nathaniel Watson's homestead at auction on 7 May 1833 to pay debts of $260, to Thomas Bickford for $200 [Strafford Deeds, 155:595].

1843, May 8: as widow of Dover with [daughter] Caroline S. Watson (a one–quarter undivided part), Susan Watson gave a $172 mortgage due in 6 mos. on her right of dower to the Belknap House on Silver Street, Dover, to Richard P. Harper [Strafford Deeds, 192:179].

Samuel Heard Watson was taxed in Dover with one poll, and no other assets, each year 1822 through 1828; in 1822 he was noted as "4th" to distinguish him from the three other Samuel Watsons in town at that time.[1471] He was listed on the levy to raise $733.79 for the new school house at Pine Hill, in the center of Dover where he lived, on 16 June 1824; at $1.19, he was among the 57 of 157 rate payers assessed the minimum amount.[1472] In August 1830 he was listed as a cordwainer living near his father on Silver Street; Susan, as his widow, lived in the "Belknap place, Silver St." in March 1833, 1837, May 1838, 1843, and 1846; by 1848 she had moved to St. Thomas Street, where she was also listed in July 1859.

110. NATHANIEL[5] WATSON (Nathaniel[4], Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Nathaniel [40] and Catherine (Heard) Watson, was born in Dover, New Hampshire, during late 1804 or early 1805, calculated from his first tax in 1825 and his first poll at age 21 in 1826. He died in Dover after 20 May 1833, when he gave a mortgage deed, and before 29 July 1833, when administration of his estate was granted.[1497]

As "jr. of Dover," he married in Somersworth, New Hampshire, during November 1825, by Rev. Porter,[1498] intention filed in Dover on 28 August 1825,[1499] JOANNA CHICK; she was "of Berwick, Maine" but her parentage has not been learned. She was born about 1805 in Berwick. She married, second, in Berwick, on 26 February 1848, intention recorded there on 12 February 1848, she of Berwick, he of South Berwick,[1500] RUFUS THURRELL, who was born on 12 December 1799 in Berwick,[1501] son of James and Hannah (Hamilton) Thurrell. The date and place of their deaths have not been learned.

Nathaniel, a farmer, resided in Dover for his entire life, from 1804 to 1833. The only census record is for 1830 in Dover, he and Joanna in their 20s, with a daughter under five indicated. Joanna moved to Berwick, Maine, sometime after 1834, but certainly by 1840, when their son died, and was resident there at least until her remarriage in 1848.

John Kimball,[1518] RUTH[6] FOGG (Jonathan[5], Abner[4–3], Seth[2], Samuel[1], John[A–B]), who was born 30 December 1794 in Pittsfield,[1519] daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Page) Fogg. She died there on 27 March 1885.[1520] Ruth's sister Sally had married Stephen's brother Daniel in 1807. Stephen and Ruth had no children.

Stephen lived in Barrington from his birth in 1780 until 1782, when his father moved the family to Pittsfield. He resided there, near the Northwood line, for the rest of his life, to 1855, and was a blacksmith and a farmer. His third wife, Ruth, lived in Pittsfield as his widow to her death in 1885.

Enoch Place preached at Stephen's funeral on 25 April 1855 and added that "B[r] Watson was a man of much prayer and devotion. He died

121. CHARLOTTE[5] WATSON (Dudley[4], Winthrop[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Dudley [43] and Anna (Hilton) Watson, was born during June 1791 (calc.) in Newmarket, New Hampshire. She died 9 December 1863 in South Newmarket/Newfields, New Hampshire, "Last week, suddenly ... aged about 70,"[1663] and was buried in the family Lot 48, First Parish Cemetery, aged 72 years and 6 months.[1664]

Real Estate Transactions of Charlotte Watson:

1834, March 22: Charlotte Watson, spinster of Newmarket, with [mother] Anna Watson of Newmarket and George and [sister] Betsey Robinson and [sister] Nancy Neal, sold 160a., "The Watson Farm" at Beech Hill in Exeter owned by [father] Dudley Watson "late of Newmarket deceased," to Thomas Pendergast for $1,800 [Rockingham Deeds, 272:43].

1835, Aug. 3: Charlotte Watson, spinster of Newmarket, with [mother] Anna Watson of Newmarket and George and [sister] Betsey Robinson and [sister] Nancy Neal, sold land in Newmarket, near Newfields, owned by Dudley Watson, to the Newmarket Iron Foundry for $125 [Rockingham Deeds, 279:324].

1848, April 5: Charlotte Watson of Newmarket, with [sister] Nancy Neal, sold land of [father] Dudley Watson in Newmarket, for a right–of–way crossing, to the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad for $400 [Rockingham Deeds, 330:148].

June 29: Charlotte Watson of Newmarket, bought one–sixth of 30a. in South Newmarket and Newmarket, bought by [father] Dudley Watson in 1811 from Neil and in 1817 from Webber, from Daniel and [sister] Clarissa Cook for $166.66 [Rockingham Deeds, 327:399].

July 1: Charlotte Watson of Newmarket, bought one–sixth of 30a. there and in South Newmarket, bought by [father] Dudley Watson in 1811 from Neil and in 1817 from Webber, from [nephew] Alfred and [niece] Hannah Burleigh for $166.66; with [her sister] Nancy Neal, Alfred and [her niece] Hannah [Gilman] Burleigh, George and [her sister] Betsey Robinson, and Daniel and [her sister] Clarissa Cook, she sold five–sixths of 9a. in Newmarket, bought by [her father] Dudley Watson from the Concord Bank 7 May 1812, to William H. H. Treadwell for $187.50 [Rockingham Deeds, 327:398; 330:372].

July 5: Charlotte Watson of Newmarket, with [sister] Nancy Neal and Daniel and [sister] Clarissa Cook, sold an undivided half of [father] Dudley Watson's farm in Newmarket, occupied by Nathaniel Wiggin, to Josiah Hilton for $1,500 [Rockingham Deeds, 327:367].

1849, Sept. 26: Charlotte Watson of Newmarket, bought one–sixth of 30a. in South Newmarket and Newmarket, bought by [father] Dudley Watson in 1811 from Neil and in 1817 from Webber, from George and [sister] Betsey Robinson for $200 [Rockingham Deeds, 336:198].

1852, Dec. 1: Charlotte Watson of Newmarket, bought one–sixth of 30a. in South Newmarket and Newmarket, bought by [father] Dudley Watson in 1811 from Neil and in 1817 from Webber, from Caroline McClellan, Winthrop Watson Gilman, and George E. Gilman, as heirs of [their mother, her sister] Lydia Gilman, for $200 [Rockingham Deeds, 355:259].

1663. NHSOG No. 3, Exeter News–Letter, XXXIII:40, 21 Dec. 1863.

In his will dated 7 May 1832 and proved 12 April 1837, her uncle Daniel Watson bequeathed $100 to Charlotte; she signed for receipt of $100 on 29 May 1837.[1665]

[Her nephew] George D. W. Robinson was granted administration of Charlotte's estate on 16 December 1863. Inventory taken that day totaled $10,374.45, including the farm in South Newmarket at $1,800 and one–fifth of a house in Portsmouth [probably from her sister Nancy Neal] at $200; stocks worth $3,736.16 were in the Boston and Maine Railroad, the Concord Railroad, the Newmarket Savings Bank, the Portsmouth Bank, and the Newmarket Bank; and notes receivable of $1,350 included $927 due from [brother–in–law] Daniel Cook.[1666]

She resided in Newmarket, the section that became South Newmarket in 1849 and later renamed Newfields, for her entire life, 1791 to 1863. She lived in the house her parents built the year after her birth, first with them, then with her widowed mother, and finally alone to her own death in 1863. Charlotte Watson was a "singlewoman" – she never married or had children.

134. MARY[5] WATSON (David[4], Winthrop[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of David [46] and Elizabeth (Hook) Watson, was born about 1805 in Chichester, New Hampshire. She died some time after the 1860 census, possibly in Hooksett, New Hampshire.

She married in Hooksett, on 8 February 1829, both of Hooksett,[1812] JEFFERSON DAVIS, whose parentage has not been learned. He was born there about 1805 and was apparently deceased prior to the 1850 census.

Mary lived in Chichester from her birth until her marriage in 1829. She and her husband lived in Hooksett during 1829, when their first child was born. After a brief stay in Pembroke, New Hampshire, about 1830, they were resident in Manchester from 1832 to 1837, but returned to Hooksett by 1844, when their last child was born. She lived there at least to 1860.

138. SAMUEL[5] WATSON (George[4], Samuel[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of George [49] and Elizabeth (Gerrish) Watson, was born in Dover, New Hampshire, during 1773 (calculated from his first poll tax at age 21 in 1794) and baptized at the First Church there by Mr. Buckminster 16 October 1780.[1868] He died, probably in Dover, about 1836, but certainly after 18 December 1835, when he last deeded land, and before 1837, when Priscilla was listed as his widow in the town directory.

He married in Somersworth, New Hampshire, during December 1811, "by the Rev. Mr. Thurston ... both of this town [Dover],"[1869] PRISCILLA CLARKE, who was born during 1794 (calc.) in Dover, daughter of William H. and Hannah H. (____) Clarke. She died 3 May 1874 in Chelsea, Massachusetts, of paralysis, aged 80 years.[1870]

Samuel was a tailor, following his father's trade. He resided in Dover for his entire life, from 1773 to about 1836. After his death, Priscilla moved to Massachusetts and died there in 1874.

Real Estate Transactions of Samuel Watson:

1803, March 21: as tailor of Dover, he mortgaged the house and a quarter–acre lot in Dover, "the same lot whereon my late father George Watson deceased lived" [at the corner of Locust and Silver Streets], subject to his mother's life estate, to William Shannon and Mark Walker for $500 [Strafford Deeds, 45:187].

1835, Jan. 19: as tailor of Dover, he mortgaged property on High St., Dover, "where I now live," to the Savings Bank Company of Strafford for $150; the mortgage was released 25 Jan. 1840 [Strafford Deeds, 163:355].

24 March 1857 in Dover,[2001] and was buried in the Babcock–Cate Cemetery in Barrington, aged 70 years, 8 months, and 27 days.[2002]

Lillias resided in Barrington from her birth at least to 1840. By 1844 she and her family had moved to Dover, where she lived at least until 1860.

Real Estate Transactions of Solomon and Lillias (Watson) Cate:

1839, Nov. 15: Solomon Cate, of Barrington with wife Lillias, sold 4a. in Barrington to [her brother] Jeremiah F. Watson for $100; [her sister] Abigail Watson witnessed [Strafford Deeds, 194:276].

1844, Feb. 22: Solomon Cate of Dover took a $416.12 mortgage, due on demand, on the 80a. homestead farm in Barrington from [brother–in–law] Jacob K. Watson; the mortgage was released on 19 Feb. 1852 [Strafford Deeds, 195:209].

1858, March 13: Lillas Cate, "widow woman" of Dover, sold [her husband] Solomon Cate's homestead farm and buildings in Dover on the road to Rochester over Garrison Hill to [nephew] George P. Watson for $3,000 [Strafford Deeds, 223:505].

Solomon Cate's "next of kin" petitioned for administration of his estate on 7 April 1857: his widow "Lillas" Cate, Abigail Otis, Lucy Waterhouse, Eleazer Cate, Mary C. Cook, and Nathaniel K. Cate. Eleazer Cate of Dover was granted administration of the estate of [his father]

155. JACOB K.[5] WATSON (Benjamin[4], William[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Benjamin [59] and Patience (Leighton) Watson, was born about 1788 in Barrington, New Hampshire. He died some time after the 1860 census, probably in Barrington.

He married in Durham, New Hampshire, on 24 July 1808, both of Durham, by Rev. John Osborne,[2010] DEBORAH LEIGHTON WILLEY,[2011] who was born there on 4 July 1791 (calc.), daughter of James and Keziah (Leighton) Willey. She died 11 November 1874 in Lynn, Massachusetts, of pneumonia, aged 83 years, 4 months, and 7 days, a widow.[2012]

Jacob lived in Barrington from his birth until 1818, when moved to Durham, where he lived until 1839. He then moved back to Barrington, living there at least to 1860. Separated from Jacob, Deborah resided in Boston during 1850, and then in Lawrence, Massachusetts, from at least 1860 to 1870 and for some time thereafter. She was living on Union Street, Lynn, Massachusetts, at the time of her death in 1874. Jacob was a farmer and a stonecutter.

During the War of 1812, Jacob served as a private in Capt. William Wiggin's Company, 4th Regiment, Detached Militia, 14 to 28 September 1814.[2013]

He was surety for [sister] Abigail Watson as executrix of the estate of Jacob appears on the 13 March 1827 voter list in Durham,[2016] but he apparently spent time in Dover, New Hampshire, during 1827 and 1828, as he was taxed for one poll each year (1828 as "Daniel K."); however, those taxes were abated.[2017] That his marriage ended is shown when he, of Durham in September 1839, declared Deborah a "runaway spouse" in the newspaper[2018]; two months later she joined him in selling property as seen above, but she is missing from the family in the 1840 census. She again appears on a deed with Jacob in 1842, but, at the latest by 1850, she had left him for good, moving to Massachusetts, where she is found in the 1850–1870 censuses, as seen above.

Real Estate Transactions of Jacob K. Watson:

1828, Jan. 7: as stonecutter of Durham, he bought 1a., on Durham Point Rd., where he was then living, from Andrew Drew for $50; a condition of the deed was that he was to build and maintain a fence or wall all around the property [Strafford Deeds, 135:595].

1839, Oct. 31: as stonecutter of Durham, he bought 100a. in Range 2, Barrington, at Ayers Pond from Stephen P. Blake and James Hayes for $1,000 [Strafford Deeds, 183:586].

Nov. 18: he of Durham, with wife Deborah, sold 1a., where he "has resided the last 20 yrs," bought from Andrew Drew, to Clark Mathes for $200 [Strafford Deeds, 184:65].

Geer (or Gair). He died some time after the 1860 census. No record of children from this marriage has been found.

Abigail resided in Barrington from her birth to at least 1844. She lived in Dover during 1850, and by 1860 she had moved to Madbury, New Hampshire.

Census Records

1810: Barrington, N.H.: Abigail with father [one of 3F (0–10)].

1820: [Barrington returns missing]

1830–1840: [Abigail not found]

1850: Dover, N.H.: James Geer with [brother–in–law] Solomon Cate, aged 59, farmer; Abigail aged 47.

1860: Madbury, N.H.: James Geer aged 69, farmer, RE=$1,500, PP=$300; Abigail aged 57.

[Her sister] Lucy S. Watson, in her will dated 15 October 1839 and proved 21 January 1840, bequeathed four acres of land in Barrington for Abigail's use during her lifetime, to revert thereafter to Lucy's nephew [Abigail's son] Richard Benjamin Watson.[2047] Abigail Watson became executrix of the estate of [sister] Lucy Watson of Barrington on 21 January 1840, with [brother] Jacob K. Watson as surety.[2048] Abigail Watson, "single lady" of Barrington, sold four acres in Range 2, Barrington, formerly owned by Eliphalet Cloutman, deceased, to [brother] Jeremiah F. Watson for $50 on 29 March 1843.[2049] She, as Abigail Geer, on 16 August 1843 witnessed her mother Patience Watson's pension claim in Barrington.[2050] [Her nephew] Nathaniel Watson of Barrington was appointed guardian of [her son] Richard Benjamin Watson, minor under 14 of Barrington, on 21 March 1844; [her brothers] Jeremiah F. Watson and Jacob K. Watson, both of Barrington, were sureties[2051]; this legal action was probably occasioned by her marriage to James Geer.

Child of Abigail Watson by an unknown father:

Galen served in Company C, Fourth Massachusetts Heavy Artillery. He enlisted and was mustered in 9 August 1864, then 44, resident in Scituate, shoemaker. He was mustered out 17 June 1865 at Fort Richardson, Virginia.[2270] Late in his life he received a pension for this service. After his death, Martha applied for a widow's pension, but the claim was rejected since the examiner found that two weeks earlier she had withdrawn $2,000 from the estate's total value of $8,080 and given it to her son Galen to reduce her income to less than pension maximums. A copy of Galen's will, dated 19 February 1894, is included in that file, leaving the household goods and income of the estate to Martha A. for her lifetime; at her death, the real estate was to go to son Galen and the personal property to be divided equally among sons William, Frank, and Galen.[2271]

As the above acreage does not appear in Strafford County deeds in his name, it is likely that he rented from the Havens; this is probably the land in Lots 73 and 74 they bought from his second cousin Ebenezer Watson [No. 141] in 1810 and 1811, on which Ebenezer's mother Temperance still lived, as the town paid William 33¢ per week for care of Temperance Watson on 11 March 1823.[2289] It also appears that he was close to his sister's husband, Reuben Hanson, Jr.

211. ALANSON T.[6] WATSON (Jonathan[5], Daniel[4], Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Jonathan [89] and Deborah (____) Watson, was born 15 February 1813 in Robbinston, Maine.[2526] He died 12 April 1855 in Perry, Maine.[2527]

He married in Perry, 24 October 1837, at his father–in–law's house by Rev. William Eaton, intention recorded there 24 September 1837, both of Perry,[2528] NAOMI SEELEY, who was born about 1817 in North Perry, Maine, daughter of Isaac Seeley. She died sometime after the 1880 census, possibly in Cooper, Maine.

Alanson T. Watson resided in Robbinston from his birth in 1813 at least to 1820. His father and family removed to Perry by 1822, and he lived there for the rest of his life, as a farmer, to 1855. His widow lived there at least another ten years, and was last noted in Cooper, Maine, in 1880, where she was living with her son George H.

Alanson was taxed in Perry each year 1852 to 1854, with real estate valued at $122 and personal property of $23 to $39. After his death, Naomi's taxes were abated for inability to pay each year, 1855 to 1865, when she sold the modest property to Samuel Seeley.[2529]

Census Records

216. LUCY ANN[6] WATSON (Samuel H.[5], Stephen[4], Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), daughter of Samuel H. [90] and Lucy (Dinsdell) Watson, was born about 1811 in Portland, Maine. The date, after the 1860 census, and place of her death have not been learned. She resided in Portland from 1811 to 1860, and for some time thereafter.

She married in Portland, on 7 June 1834, both of Portland,[2561] JOSIAH BAKER, whose parentage has not been learned. He was born during 1812 (calc.) in Maine and died 26 March 1842 in Portland, of liver complaint, aged 30 years.[2562]

217. LEWIS[6] WATSON (Dudley[5], Jonathan[4–3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Dudley [91] and Polly (Sherborn) Watson, was born 3 July 1806 in Mount Vernon, Maine.[2564] He died after his father's will of 6 April 1848.

He married in New York about 1825, HARRIET SIMPSON, who was born say 1805. The date and place of her death and her parentage have not been learned.

Lewis resided in Mount Vernon from his birth in 1806 until 1816, and for some time thereafter. He moved with his father and family to Lyons, New York, by 1820, and lived there at least to 1848.

Census Records

1810: Mt. Vernon, Me.: Lewis with parents [one of 2M (0–10)].

1820: Lyons, N.Y.: Lewis with parents [one of 2M (10–16)].

1830: Lyons, N.Y.: 1M (0–5), 1M (20–30); 1F (20–30); next to father.

1840: [not found]

In his will dated 6 April 1848 and proved 26 February 1849, his father Dudley Watson gave to "Eldest son Lewis and his present wife Harriet Simpson the woman with which he now lives the sum of two hundred dollars and to his eldest son by said Harriet my rifle."[2565] Dudley's reference to his oldest son is curious. While Lewis was apparently alive in 1848, the relationship with his father must have been somewhat strained, even though Dudley left him $200; Lewis' three children were living with their grandfather in the 1840 census, and the sons were with their uncle Otis in 1850, not with Lewis and Harriet.

Children of Lewis and Harriet (Simpson) Watson, all born probably in Lyons, N.Y.:

i. SHERBORN DUDLEY[7] WATSON, b. July 1828; d. after 1900 census, probably in Bath, Clinton Co., Mich.; m. in 1876 (calc.), MARY L. In his will dated 6 April 1848 and proved 26 February 1849, his father Dudley Watson gave to "youngest son Otis T. Watson" the farm, a wood lot in Arcadia, and all stock and farming utensils.[2573] Otis T. Watson was listed in the Wayne County directories of 1867–8 (with 109½ acres) and 1880 (107 acres), as a farmer in Lyons, and not thereafter; his son Irving Watson was in the 1886–7 directory, boarding in the town of Lyons, a laborer.[2574]

246. WILLIAM[6] WATSON (Stephen[5], William[4], Jonathan[3], David[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Stephen [111] and Mehitable (Dow) (Brown) Watson, was born during 1812 (calc.) in Pittsfield, New Hampshire. He died during 1870, after the census was taken, in Northwood, New Hampshire.[2818]

He married in Pittsfield, on 23 July 1837, both of Pittsfield, by Elder John Knowles,[2819] MARIAH JANE DAVIS, who was born during 1811 (calc.) in Nottingham, New Hampshire, daughter of Stephen and Sarah (Dyer) Davis. She died during 1882 in Deerfield, New Hampshire, of heart disease, aged 70 years, widowed.[2820]

William Watson, a blacksmith and farmer, lived in Pittsfield from his birth until 1836, when he moved to Northwood, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1870. Mariah Jane removed to Deerfield some time after the 1880 census and lived there, probably with her daughter Flora Mary Ambrose, to her death in 1882.

Real Estate Transactions of William Watson:

1851, May 30: as blacksmith of Northwood with wife Mariah J., he sold 1¼a. in Northwood to Aaron Cilley for $39 [Rockingham Deeds, 344:173].

1852, Jan. 7: as blacksmith of Northwood with wife Maria Jane, he sold 10a. on Turnpike Road, Northwood, to Charles H. Osgood for $700 and took back a mortgage due on 1 April 1853; the same day they sold 2+a. on Turnpike Road, Northwood, to Darius J. Dow [Rockingham Deeds, 347:455; 348:597; 352:366].

The only note of William in town records was during the Civil War when, on 4 March 1864, the town of Northwood owed him $250 on a note dated 25 September 1862, plus 50¢ interest.[2821]

His homestead on the "south end of the original Samuel Johnson homestead, sixty acres lying between the Turnpike and the pond, were occupied before 1839.... He grew up on the Pittsfield side of Jenness Pond and had his first shop there. The relocation on the Turnpike no doubt proved profitable. ... The present William Watson house is not the first one he built after moving to Northwood. The first house evidently stood west of the present dwelling and was gone by 1892. The house now [1973] standing was built about 1850, just before fireplaces were completely outdated. There are two small fireplaces in the main part of the dwelling and evidence of a kitchen fireplace and bake oven in the ell."[2822]

well–stocked, and more farm equipment.[2880] Nancy A. Watson, their mother, was appointed guardian of Lulu N. Watson, Florence A. Watson, and Cora E. Watson, minor children of Daniel Watson 2nd of Pittsfield on 26 February 1895.[2881] The homestead was sold a month later, to Erskine Denison, to provide liquidity to the estate, and Nancy was forced to seek other accommodations with her three daughters away from Daniel's first family. To support her family, she took in washing and worked as a mid-wife.

Daniel was a deacon of the Free Will Baptist Church and politically a Republican.[2882]

Real Estate Transactions of Daniel Watson:

1836, April 6: his father Daniel Watson sold all of Lot 34 and 75a. in Lot 8, Pittsfield, where he "now lives," to [his brother] Solomon Watson for $1,000, provided, however, that if Daniel Watson, Jr., yeoman of Pittsfield, "son of Daniel Watson," lives on the homestead for 7 yrs., he is to receive half [Merrimack Deeds, 64:54].

1849, Sept. 19: as yeoman of Pittsfield, he bought rights to land next to Solomon Watson in Pittsfield from [brother] Solomon Watson and [mother] Sally Watson for $1; [father–in–law] Nehemiah Tilton witnessed [Merrimack Deeds, 106:195].

1895, March 30: Edgar L. Carr, administrator of the estate of Daniel Watson 2nd, sold the homestead farm on Tilton Hill, Pittsfield, to [son–in–law] Erskine Denison for $1,900 [Merrimack Deeds, 300:313].

1896, Dec. 26: Nancy A. Watson of Pittsfield took a $150 mortgage on 25a. and 8a. in Allenstown from Eugene G. and Abbie C. G. Cate; Nancy A. (Watson) Tebbitts released the mortgage on 15 Dec. 1905 [Merrimack Deeds, 342:346].

was left. As was common, though, the estate, while solvent, was quite illiquid, and the farm was sold to Edward's brother–in–law Erskine Denison. In the 1920s he further paid each of his half–sisters a small amount for their agreement to relinquish all claims to family assets.[2902] Edward graduated from Dartmouth College, class of 1895. He was the Somersworth High School principal for 2 school years, 1896–7 and 1897–8, and the highest paid teacher in town at $1,200.[2903] In his will dated 21 March 1951 and proved 28 Oct. 1952, he gave $1,100 to the town for perpetual care of the family cemetery plots on Tilton Hill and at Floral Park; the rest of his $30,000 estate was left to his wife Sadie.[2904] In the 1953 tax inventory for Pittsfield, his estate owned 10 acres, the old schoolhouse, and Winslow land, on Tilton Hill Road ($700), and 4 acres, the Dennett land on Lovers Lane ($100) [what was left of his father's and grandfather's homestead]; his widow Sadie had 5 acres and the residence at 8 Berry Ave., Pittsfield ($3,000).[2905] "Edwin" in 1880 census with father, aged 9, in school; 1900 census, Woburn, Mass., Edward S. aged 29, b. 11/1870, schoolteacher; rented house at 22 Franklin St., mar. 3 yrs., Florence M. aged 31, b. 9/1868, no children. Edward Stockman Watson was a schoolteacher throughout his life. There were no children with any of his three wives.

Watson, her mother, was appointed guardian of Lulu N. Watson, minor child of Daniel Watson 2nd of Pittsfield, on 26 Feb. 1895.[2912] After her husband's death in 1920, Lula went to Florida as a companion and housekeeper to George Clinton Smith and his wife, living there for the rest of her life. In the 1950s she was left the Florida cottage in her employer's will. In the late 1960s, with her health failing, she was placed in a nursing home, which proved a bad experience: there were forced feedings, and the nursing home owner pilfered her cottage. The

Hooksett, she of Candia, by Rev. J. A. E. Long,[3067] ALVERSIE FARMER (or VARNUM[3068]), who was born during 1833 (calc.) in Hooksett, daughter of John and Lizzie (Wiggin) Farmer. She died 18 February 1892 in Allenstown, of an abscess on the lung, aged 59 years.[3069]

Francis Watson was a farmer, teamster, and stone mason. He lived in Chichester from his birth in 1828 until 1838, when his family moved to Manchester, residing there until 1845. They moved again to Hooksett and he lived there at least to 1856. By 1858 he and Alversie were resident in Melrose, Massachusetts, living there, and in neighboring Medford, at least until 1864. They moved to Salem by 1869, and the next year moved to Allenstown, where they lived for the rest of their lives, she to 1892, he to 1908. Francis evidently kept his connections with Salem after returning to New Hampshire, for he is noted in his daughter's 1901 marriage record as superintendent of a stone crusher there, aged 73 years.[3070]

283. JOHN L.[6] WATSON (Nathan[5], John[4], David[3], Isaac[2], Jonathan[1]), son of Nathan [142] and Dorcas (Borden) Watson, was born 19 May 1808 in Wakefield, New Hampshire.[3172] He died 10 October 1892 in Dover, New Hampshire, of heart disease and debility from old age, 84 years, 4 months, and 22 days, a watchman, and was buried in Lot 558, Pine Hill Cemetery.[3173]

He married, first, in Wakefield, on 11 September 1831, both of Wakefield, by Rev. Samuel Nichols,[3174] LYDIA (____) PERKINS, who was born say 1805 and about whom nothing else has been learned. No record of children with his first wife has been found.

John married, second, in Somersworth, New Hampshire, on 8 December 1836, both of that town, by Rev. James A. Smith,[3175] SARAH MCKEITH JONES, who was born 18 February 1816 (calc.) in Topsham, Vermont, daughter of Ephraim and Sally (Chamberlain) Jones. She died on 6 March 1895 in Dover, of heart disease, aged 79 years and 16 days, and was buried with her husband.[3176]

John L. Watson lived in Wakefield from his birth in 1808 until 1836, when he moved to Somersworth and later that same year to Dover, where he lived for the rest of his life, to 1892. He was at various times in his life a blacksmith, a dresser, a farmer, and a watchman.

At Wakefield, the inspection on 31 May 1831 of the 2nd (South) Company, 33rd Regiment, 2nd Brigade, 2nd Division, New Hampshire Militia, found that "John Watson was deficient of a priming wire and brush and canteen on said day." On 1 May 1832 he had no gun. He was appointed 3rd sergeant on 21 September 1833 and served in the company until discharged on 7 May 1844.[3177] He enlisted 13 August 1862 and was mustered in two days later as a private in Company D, 2nd New Hampshire Infantry, "aged 44" – actually 54, he was nine years over age – 5' 7", blue eyes, sandy hair, born in Wakefield, and resident in and credited to Dover. He was discharged for disability on 22 September 1863 at Point Lookout,

In 1876 he was listed as a farmer boarding at his father's house on Payne Street.[3469] A 1914 biography relates that "John H. Watson, a prominent citizen and lifelong resident of the town of Dover, owns a valuable farm of 100 acres and carries on general farming and dairying. He was born in the house in which he still resides. ... John H. Watson attended the district schools in Dover in boyhood. Having no occasion to leave the homestead he has remained on it, continuing the agricultural industries of father and grandfather and making such improvements as he has deemed advisable. He occupies the old round log house built by an ancestor on a hardwood frame and it has sheltered eight [sic] generations of the family, often being repaired and remodeled but never changed to any great extent. This staunch old dwelling house remains as one of the landmarks of pioneer days in the county. ... Mrs. Watson is a member of the Baptist Church of Boston, Mass. Mr. Watson attended the M. E. church. He has always acted with the Republican party but has never accepted public office. He belongs to the A. O. W. W., to the Knights of Pythias and to the Royal Arcanum, all in Dover."[3470]
